

A LOVELY LOTUS FLOWER

"Jasmin" by Castillo for Lan-walk. Castillo's entire collection this season is completely Japanese in inspiration, stressing freedom of movement and lightness of fabric. Here he has used to great advantage a modern version of the obi sash... placed on it an enormous organdy lotus flower.

Lyons-Gillis Wedding Solemnized in Halifax

St. Nicholas Chapel "H.M.C.S. Stadacona", Halifax, was the scene of a pretty, but quiet wedding on Thursday, February 14, when Janet Christine Gillis, daughter of Mrs. Annie L. Gillis and the late J. H. Gillis, Flat River, P.E.I., was united in marriage to Terrence Cecil Lyons, son of Mrs. Cecil Lyons, Sarnia, Ontario. The double ring ceremony was performed by chaplain H. F. Bourne. The bride, wearing a two-piece knitted dress, pastel blue with pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations, was attended by Miss Velma Gillis, who wore a dress of blue-grey tweed with black and white accessories and a corsage of tallisman roses. The groom was attended by Mr. Ronald Marshall.

SHEATH FLAIR

Just soft, lovely shoulder curves—it's as simple as that, it seems. Yet there's a flair, a sudden excitement in the sheath of ESTEVÉZ, that sets it apart from all others. Here, the Estevéz ensemble in the designer's incomparable style—barewoman's figure, fitting any occasion. You might sew it in silk with the rich texture of linen, dazzling brocade, fine imported cotton. You might choose quick deep blacks for city, colors for cruise wear. Designer-of-the-

Survey Finds Reasons Why Women Choose Their Work

By CAROLYN WILLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—A group of women teachers list the "endless marking of papers" and too much report-keeping as difficulties encountered in their profession. The problems—but also the satisfaction; and the reasons for their choice of teaching—are outlined in a study of university women's occupations made recently by the women's bureau of the federal labor department. Of some 1,000 members of the Canadian Federation of University Women in 79 local branches who replied to the bureau's questionnaire, nearly 400 were teachers. EXPERIENCED GROUP Also contributing to the survey were nurses, librarians, home economists, dietitians and women in scientific, medical and office work. Reports on the survey now are being published monthly in the department's Labor Gazette. "The real purpose of the survey was to get some authentic reflections on the reasons why women choose their work," says Mariott Royce, bureau director. The CFUW membership is comprised of older graduates and members of certain professions, but their professional experiences and their reasons for choosing careers are still valid, the report said. Although the teacher answering questionnaires represent only a fraction of the total in Canada, they seemed to echo the ups and downs of the profession generally. SOME DRAWBACKS This group listed low salaries, struggles for education standards and limited opportunities for advancement—men are still preferred for administrative posts—as major drawbacks. Average salary for the group was $4,000 or $5,000 annually. In daily teaching, "the difficulties encountered reflect the realities of the modern classroom," the report said. Teachers complained of classes too large to enable them to give students individual attention, and said that repeating the same lesson to several classes was monotonous. Others noted a sense of frustration or failure in trying to teach the gifted or disinterested child. Many teachers were critical of parental concern with monetary rather than academic and cultural achievement. LIMITED CHOICE The survey found "striking evidence" that older women had a limited choice of careers, particularly in the depression years or the years when fewer teachers were required. Many older teachers followed members of their family into the profession. Others went into school rooms because parental opposition barred fields such as law, once thought unsuitable for women. Younger teachers were influenced by summer teaching jobs, camp counselling and encouragement from school principals. Despite the fact that since the Second World War married women have returned to classrooms in increasing numbers and that teaching offers ready employment, there are still limits to teaching opportunities. Science graduates, for example, found a tendency to regard science as a man's field, with only secondary posts open to women science teachers. Home economics, however, has become an increasingly popular subject and one that fits well into the career of teacher, or housewife.

SPRINGTIME

Springtime and a sailor! Well, that's the millinery outlook and a pleasing prospect it is. The sailor hat is capable of many variations enough to please and flatter practically every type. Chanda likes the style and does this tall-crowned Dandy in gleaming licorice-black straw. It is finished with a black mesh face veil and a tilted crown band of black and white pin striped ribbon accented at the side with a tuft of scarlet feathers. An ideal suit hat.

MORNING SMILE

Middle age is when you find yourself using one bend-over to pick up two things.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

To remove a stain from wallpaper, treat it quickly. Make a thick paste by putting 2 or 3 tablespoons of Fuller's earth, white talcum or cornstarch in a small bowl. Add a little cleaning fluid. Put it on the stain; let it stand until dry. Remove carefully with the suction end of the vacuum cleaner, or dust it off very lightly with a clean, dry cloth. Repeat if necessary.

COOK'S CORNER

BRAN BREAD

4 quarts white flour
2 tablespoons salt
1 small quart bran
1 pint scalded milk
Butter size of an egg
1½ cups molasses or 2 cups Brown sugar
1 yeast cake dissolved in 1 cup warm water sweetened. Add water to scalded milk to make 2 quarts liquid. Let rise to double its bulk, knead down. This makes four large loaves.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Gravies and creamed dishes are likely to separate if frozen. They can be made to make them smooth by stirring. If not, mix a small amount of thickening and add it to the heated mixture, stirring until it is smooth and thick.

ELLEN'S DIARY

The Old Brown Bean Crock Gives Good Cheer

"I've something to tell you, Ellen," Mrs. James said with a happy smile, coming in through the gold of the twilight this evening. "Mack with him, to supper. A dish of beans was our main fare they baked in a browned crock James had bought at a sale last Autumn. We had been amused at the time over the purchase, since his buyings incline more to livestock and outdoor things than to household equipment. And curious to discover the underlying urge which has prompted it, we had asked: "And why did you buy it?" "I don't know, Ellen," he replied. "I guess" he chuckled, "I just had a hankering to taste the home-baked beans again. And too the shape of the crock appealed to me—there was something happy in the sight of it. . . . The following members were appointed to collect for the Red Cross Mrs. Sutherland Montgomery, Mrs. Duncan Cole, Mrs. John Campbell and Mrs. Angus Green. A crokinole social was planned for Monday evening Feb. 18th, to be held in Graham's Road school. Interesting views were given on the Women's Institute Radio programme. Programme for the evening consisted of a most interesting travelogue by Mrs. Ray MacLeod on her recent trip across Canada. Mrs. Vernon Ferguson entertained with memory test contest, prize going to Mrs. Louis Campbell. Programme committee for next meeting, Mrs. George MacLeod and Mrs. Ralph Wigmore, Hostess committee, Mrs. Duncan Cole and Mrs. Earle Campbell, Roll call to be answered with Irish Joke. Collection amounted to $57.75. Meeting adjourned to meet next month at the home of Mrs. Earle Campbell.
