AGENTS!

Our "Home, Farm and Business Cyclopaedia" is a large work containing 900 pages profusely illustrated, and also contains portraits of the leading statesmen of the Dominion. The three departments into which the work is divided, treat fully every feature in connection with Home and its happiness, successful Farming and still more successful Business Life. Each department of the work has the advantage of being written by Canadian specialists. The work is purely Canadian. We want an Agent in every Town and County. If you want territory, terms and full particulars, write to W. E. EARLE, St. John, N. B.

Extraordinary Episcopal order.—A Boston paper tells of a funny blunder which was made by Bishop Eastburn at a crowded church wedding in that city. Some spectators at the back of the church stood upon the benches in order to get a better view of the ceremony. The Bishop saw them, and, pausing in the service, said in his most solemn tones, "Remember the sacred character of this house; let all who are present sit down upon the floor and put their feet upon the seats."

Total Abstinence and Longevity.

A few days ago our correspondent "Percy" referred to some statistics obtained by the investigating committee of the British Medical Association purporting to show that total abstainers do not live so long as those who drink moderately. As was to be expected the total abstainers are not disposed to accept the results of these figures which have caused no small commotion in their ranks. The London Lancet, than which there is no higher medical authority among serial publications, in its issue of July 25th, deals with these statistics. The Lancet remarks that it is unsatisfactory that returns were received from only 178 practitioners giving returns of but 4,374 deaths. After reproducing the table as recently published it adds:—
"No wonder that the total abstainers refuse to accept such statistics. It may still be believed that really temperate people, who take their alcohol with extreme moderation, fare better and live longer than those who absolutely abstain. Many men of great authority and judgment think so. But it can scarcely be credited that the decidedly intemperate live longer than total abstainers, and that free drinkers and careless drinkers live much longer. Such conclusions raise the strongest suspicion of the value of the statistics. We are sure Dr. Isaac Owen would handle his materials with impartiality, but we cannot accept them as a serious contribution to a very interesting social and medical question. To expect medical men to say of a patient who died three years ago to which of five classes of drinkers he belonged, is to expect too much. 'Careless drinkers are thus defined. They are neither intemperate nor free, yet do not confine themselves within a rigid rule, do not object to spirits occasionally as a beverage, at times drinking between meals, or even getting drunk occasionally, but not making either a practice or a habit, and on the average not materially exceeding the 'physiological amount' of one ounce and a half of pure alcohol daily. We decline to recognize such habits as fairly within the definition of temperance as sanctioned now by medical authorities, and we gravely suspect the figures which credit such men with a longevity of 8.45 years greater than that of abstainers, who have their faults and even their diseases, and who die in spite of abstinence, but who certainly escape or 'keep under' many diseases and degenerations which shorten and impair life. We are not sorry that these statistics have been published. But we shall be sorry indeed if they lead men to drink 'carelessly,' and they are to be numbered by millions—into thinking they do so with impunity. Unless medical experience and pathology are altogether unworthy of trust, that is an illusion."

The Northwest Crops.

HARVESTING PROGRESSING RAPIDLY UNDER FAVORABLE CONDITIONS.
The Winnipeg Free Press of 29th ult. publishes reports of the crops from every portion of Manitoba, which it thus summarizes: "Harvesting throughout the province and Assiniboia commenced in most cases from five days to a week ago and is now general. Many thousands of acres have already been cut and if the royal weather of the last few days continues the results will surpass all expectations. A careful examination of the reports which have been arranged alphabetically for purposes of easy reference, shows that the yield of wheat promises in nearly all, if not all, cases to be as great as it was last year, averaging from 25 to 35 bushels to the acre. The average yield of barley is estimated in most cases at about 40 to 45 bushels, and extra yields run all the way from that up to 60, 70 and even more. The yield of oats seems to vary between 50 and 80 bushels to the acre. The hay crop has in many cases been most excellent, and vegetables, especially potatoes, are a heavy crop in nearly all localities. The acreage of cereals will be much greater than it was last year, the additional amount shown in barley being particularly noticeable. The crop is certainly most magnificent, and the prospects of getting it all in are excellent. The tone of farmers is almost uniformly hopeful. A great deal depends on the next few days. We are in the midst of harvesting one of the grandest crops the world ever saw, and should nothing occur to mar our splendid prospects, immediate, a marvellous prosperity for Northwest Canada is assured."

Farm Notes.

Russian eggs are selling in England at six cents a dozen.
Keep all kinds of young stock in a thrifty condition. It never pays to economize in the feeding of young animals. Once stunted they never recover from the effects of the neglect.
Here is the Arab test of a good horse, which every farmer can apply. It is simply to observe your horse when he is drinking out of a brook. If, in bringing down his head, he remains square without bending his limbs, he possesses sterling qualities, and all parts of his body are built symmetrically.

In selecting a family cow, especially when the milk is to be used by children, make sure that the cow is the mother of a healthy and thrifty calf. There is no better evidence than this of the good quality of the milk and the good health of the cow.
A few nice lambs kept about the yard will answer the purpose of a lawn mower and will grow into money at the same time. It is an item to be able to get a market value out of the grass that is generally wasted around dwellings.
A large quantity of bran has been fed to beavers in the West and Northwest of late, and the extensive millers are now keeping large herds to use up the bran, as this is found to be more profitable than selling it. The same weight of bran has been found better for feeding to cattle than of corn, making as much meat and of better quality. For young cattle bran is the best of all foods, as it provides every nutritious element required for growth.
Farm economy is not in working fourteen hours a day and doing chores after dark, plowing with an old, worn-out plow when the quality and quantity of work can be nearly doubled with a new improved plow, neglecting a valuable garden for the sake of saving a day and a half expense for labor, and buying an inferior article because it is cheap. True economy consists in making a reasonable amount of work accomplish the greatest results, which can only be done by careful study and labor-saving implements, buying no more than is needed for the family comforts, and procuring the best always.
There was a heap of philosophy and sense in the reply of a Catholic priest when besought by his poor farmer parishioner, to pray for a fruitful harvest on an impoverished field, who replied, as he looked at the spindling stalks: "This is a case that don't yield to prayer—this field needs manure." This came to mind as we read Mr. Smith's description of his potato field, heavily laden with all the vines potatoes need to blander; and that, too, from one eye seed. He has been doing his praying with fertilizers. That is the "effectual and fervent" kind that is answered with—potatoes.

In Short.

Cupid is always shooting and forever making Mrs.
Estimates place the wine production of California for this year at about 21,000,000 gallons.
Keep cool. Nothing is made by fretting and fuming.
The right to pay taxes has never been denied women.
Funny, isn't it, that after a man has once given his word, he should try so hard to keep it?
"Talk about infant industries," said Mr. Barkins. "Eating seems to be the leading industry of my infant."

Mr. Blaine has no hesitation in saying that Canada does as it has a right to do. In this he is a better Canadian than Mr. Laurier.—Empire.
It always bothers a Frenchman who is learning English to read one day that a murder has been committed and the next that the murderer has been committed.

Force of habit.—Lady customer: "Now please do not ask me, after I have bought all I want, if there's anything else. If I want anything else I can remember to ask for it without being reminded that there is something else that I may want. Do you understand?" Shopman: "Yes, m. Anything else?"

The man that's rich should happy be,
