Famous in His Line.

Walter White, for many years assistant secretary of the Royal society, gave in his journals many amusing and witty speeches and sayings, some of which he heard at first hand. Among those repeated to him by other people was a bon-mot made by one of the founders of the Athenaeum club of London.

When the Athenaeum club was first founded, Croker was urgent that no man should be admitted who had not in some way distinguished himself in literature.

Soon after he proposed the Duke of Wellington, when some one said, "The duke has never written a book."

"True," replied Croker, "but he is a capital hand at reviews."

Queer Feminine Nature.

"You don't seem to be attracting as much attention as some of your comrades," said the bystander to the soldier boy.

"Hang it all," he answered, "I've kept my uniform too clean."
