

THE DAILY EXAMINER. NOVEMBER 6, 1889.

Notes and Comments.

Holland leads the world in the amount of foreign trade per capita of population. The average business done by the Dutch amounts to $197.34 per annum; Switzerland comes next, but far behind, with $99.45; then England, $82.09; while Germany and France do a business of only $19.50 for each man, woman and child inside the boundaries.

A travelling agent sold a Clinton, Mich., farmer a receipt for adding 50 per cent. to the weight of his wheat when he put it on the market, the farmer signing a contract to pay the peddler half of the money he made out of the extra weight given to his grain. The "contract" a little later turned up in the shape of a note for $300, which the farmer had to pay out of the proceeds of his wheat from the dearly bought process. Served him right.

There's nothing small about Tallage. Referring to the new $200,000 tabernacle which he is asking the whole world to help in building, Dr. Tallage says: "I say now to all the Baptists, that we shall have in a baptistry. I say to all Episcopians, we shall have in our services, as heretofore at our communion table portions of the liturgy. I say to the Catholics, we shall have a cross over the pulpit, and probably on the tower. I say to the Methodists we mean to sing there like the voice of mighty thunders. I say to all denominations, we mean to preach a religion as wide as heaven and as good as God."

The Chronicle, of Halifax, has quoted Mr. Davies' "parliamentary" denial that he said the people of the States, not being ardent fools, would never consent to unrestricted reciprocity, as if that settled the matter. The Chronicle is mistaken. THE EXAMINER'S report, as quoted by Hon. Mr. Foster and the Herald, is, in effect, absolutely correct. It is but right to add that Mr. Davies afterwards tried to get himself out of the fix he was in when Mr. Cartwright came down with the unrestricted reciprocity resolutions, by saying he did not, when he spoke before the Board of Trade, contemplate the retention of custom houses on the border between the States and Canada. But he did not, here in Charlottetown, dare to call in question the accuracy of THE EXAMINER'S report.

The general superintendent of the Eastern division of the Canadian Pacific Railway, replying to a communication from the Secretary of the Dominion Alliance, says:— "This matter is covered by rule No. 121, which reads as follows: The use of intoxicating liquors will be followed by immediate dismissal from the company, and preference will be given to employees who abstain from the use of same altogether."

"I consider," he says, "that the only guarantee of safety for railway companies is to have this rule strictly enforced. We have very little difficulty with our men in this respect, as they are well aware of the fact that the violation of the above rule is followed by immediate dismissal. Any employee found to be under the influence of liquor, even off duty, is dispensed with for future service."

The mission in St. Dunstan's Cathedral, concluded last evening, was attended by immense congregations. One thing was made exceedingly clear: the old church is entirely too small. It is hoped that among the many fruits of the spirit which will be made visible as a result of the mission, a new church will be erected as soon as possible. Apart from religious considerations, a cathedral such as that which has been projected would not only supply a felt want, but reflect great credit upon the Roman Catholic portion of the community, and be an ornament to the city. So many members and adherents as the Catholic Church has in Charlottetown ought not to make much difficulty about the supply of the means that are necessary—though the amount required will, undoubtedly, be large. We are very sure that there is hardly anything which would give the venerable Bishop of Charlottetown greater pleasure in his declining years than to see a grand cathedral erected and consecrated. We learn that His Lordship will, if he live so long, celebrate the golden jubilee of his elevation to the priesthood in about four years. As Father Strubbe has suggested, it would be an eminently fitting event if the new cathedral were ready for consecration at that time.

The vast equipments of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways are this year unequal to the carriage of the produce of the country to market. The traffic manager of the Grand Trunk says:—"From 14,000 to 15,000 cars are either running on the Grand Trunk proper or waiting loads, or being unloaded. The company is turning out, as rapidly as possible, 1,000 freight cars from its own shops, and in addition has others being manufactured elsewhere. But with all that can be done it is impossible to supply all the requirements of traffic of the present period. We have in Montreal several hundred cars with freight for export simply awaiting the action of the steamship companies. They are unloading these cars as fast as possible, but unfortunately there are not enough vessels in port to handle the freight."

And the assistant manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway is reported to have said:—"There was an enormous rush to market the crop, and a little trouble must be expected, as it was impossible to provide cars at certain points on the line at all seasons of the year. Montreal wanted to hurry along her harbor improvements, for one great cause of the trouble was that there was not now room in the harbor to handle the business now coming there, to say nothing of the vast increase which was taking place."

It is evident that the resources of our country are being rapidly developed.

TYPHOID FEVER.—Referring to the prevalence of typhoid fever at Amherst Rev. V. E. Harris says: It is very probable that few, if any of the cases of fever in our town have been directly communicated from the sick to the healthy, but they have been caused by the rapid spread of the contagion in the cess pools, water closets, purid and filthy ditches, cellars, etc., and that the water of the "dug wells" in the infected districts has been contaminated and consequently rendered extremely dangerous."

The Last Prop Knocked Away.

BURKE AND O'SULLIVAN ARE NOW FULLY IDENTIFIED—BURKE'S COUNSEL WITH-DRAWS.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 2.—There was only one prop under Martin Burke when the great Cronin trial was resumed this morning. His tenacity of the Carlson cottage before the murder having been proved by the prosecution and admitted by the defence, the only link necessary to connect the young man with the big packing trunk and the mysterious J. B. Simonds was his identification by expressman Maxom Mortensen, who hauled the goods from the Clark Street house to the slaughter house on North Ashland Avenue. If this identification were complete, it not only branded Burke as one of the conspirators, but established the fact that there was a conspiracy and that O'Sullivan had knowledge of it. Mortensen was on the stand to-day, and positively identified Burke as the man who hired him in the latter part of March to carry the goods from Clark Street to the cottage. He had previously picked him out of a crowd of 50 prisoners in the yard of the provincial jail at Winnipeg. The value of this witness to the state is inestimable. If he had not been found Burke's connection with the steel pigeon furniture could not have been established and O'Sullivan's conversation with Frank Williams (Burke) would have gone for nothing. Now, however, Burke and O'Sullivan have been tightly linked to the long belt which drew Dr. Cronin from his home to the den of the conspirators. Coughlin has always been identified as the man who negotiated for the rig in which the Doctor was driven to his death. His association with the cottage will, at the same time, identify little Kertes as the man who drove the detective to the place.

BURKE'S IDENTIFICATION CLINCHED. The Carlsons clinched the identification of Burke during the first two hours of court. Charles Carlson had drank beer and talked with Williams at the cottage before Dr. Cronin disappeared. He had been in the house which was soon to be the scene of the now famous tragedy, and saw the furniture and carpet which J. B. Simonds had bought in February. At that time there was no paint or stains on the floor of the front room and vestibule, and the walls bore no evidence of a crime.

Senator Kennedy, who made such a gallant fight to prevent Burke's extradition from Winnipeg, and who was retained to defend the prisoner in the present trial, to-day abandoned the case and returned to his home in Wisconsin. In an interview with the Herald correspondent he said he was prompted to take the step by revelations of the jury-bribing conspiracy and the unfriendly attitude of his associates. He declared he was sick of the whole thing, and wished to wash his hands of the case. Mr. Forrest, it is understood, will now look out for Burke's interest.

IS BURKE THE MYSTERIOUS J. B. SIMONDS? During the dramatic scenes which had their climax in the identification of Burke as the Carlson cottage tenant, the prisoner became visibly agitated, and his usually ruddy complexion paled perceptibly. A significant part of Jonas Carlson's testimony was this: "When Burke rented the cottage he said he had bought some furniture, and would move into the house in a few days." This gives rise to the query: "Has the state got the mysterious J. B. Simonds in the person of Martin Burke." Allowing for Burke's change of dress and absence of moustache after the murder, the description of Simonds given by Salesman Hatfield and Agent Throckmorton, correspond closely with that of Burke, though the witness cannot swear that Burke is Simonds.

GILLETTE'S STORY. In connection with the alleged confession of Burke to the convicted forger Gillette, while the two men were in the Winnipeg jail, in which the convict goes into details, giving names and places in Chicago which he could have no knowledge of unless the confession was actually made, or Gillette was posted to tell the story for a purpose, Judge Longenecker admits there is no way in which the story can be utilized against Burke at the trial; the forger is serving a long sentence, and he could be immediately set free if brought across the border. Unless, through the courtesy of the Canadian Government, Gillette could not be taken from the Manitoba penitentiary at Stony Mountain, and his affidavit could not be used as evidence. Those who doubt the truth of Gillette's story believe it is a clever ruse to get to Chicago as a witness, with all the chances such a trip would afford of his bolting and avoiding the long sentence that hangs before him in Stony Mountain penitentiary.

THE NOOSE UNCOMFORTABLY NEAR. Martin Burke was a dejected-looking specimen of manhood when he took his seat in the court to-day. Burke is undoubtedly beginning to feel that the noose is uncomfortably near his neck. His air of bravado has completely melted away. To-day, when young Carlson took the stand and testified to Burke's occupancy of the cottage, his suspicious actions, his intimacy with P. O'Sullivan, the ice man, and his sudden disappearance, Burke gritted his teeth, and his face assumed the ghastly pallor which came over it when the bloody trunk was brought into court the other day. The testimony introduced to-day was perhaps more important than that of the two days preceding, including the story of Mortensen, the express man, who hauled the furniture from the Clark Street flat to the Carlson cottage, thus establishing the connection between the two places.

A READY WITNESS. Mortensen was a ready witness. No amount of persistent cross-examination could break him down. Perhaps the most important bit of testimony was that given by a police officer, John Lorch, who found the key to the trunk in which Cronin's body was conveyed to the catch basin. When this key was first found in a pool of red paint in the Carlson cottage, the importance of the discovery was at first under-rated. Afterward, when it was found to exactly fit the bloody trunk, the State realized that it constituted an important link between the tragic events which transpired at the cottage and those which took place at the catch basin, where Dr. Cronin's body was found.

Telegraphic Odds and Ends.

A BULLETIN OF GENERAL NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—A. H. Armsby, of Victoria, B. C., corroborates the statement that a constant stream of Chinamen are being smuggled into this country through British Columbia.

CORK, Nov. 4.—The Recorder of Cork to-day rejected the appeal of Father O'Dwyer and eight others convicted of boycotting, and sentenced to imprisonment by the court at Fermoy.

LEBANON, Pa., Nov. 4.—By the breaking out of molten iron in the stock of Colebrook furnace, No. 1, this afternoon, five men were killed and three severely burned. The men, all laborers, were overwhelmed by the rush of molten metal while at work. Some were burned almost beyond recognition.

BELGRADE, Nov. 4.—The Czar has written a letter to Natalie in which he assures her of his sympathy. He says he continues to recognize her as Queen of Serbia. It is believed the letter will expedite the settlement of Natalie's position.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—The approaching anniversary of the anarchists' execution in Chicago is the occasion for a sensational article in the Times, which declares the anarchists are organized as they never were before. An informant places their number at 2,000, and says their plan of campaign has been changed in that they will direct their efforts towards the destruction of property by fire rather than to destroy life.

Personal.

Dr. Blanchard returned from New York last evening.

Hon. Jos. O. Arsenault, Wellington, is registered at the Osborne.

Hon. Senator Prowse, Murray Harbor, and Hon. A. J. Macdonald, Georgetown, are at the Hotel Davies.

Hon. Senator Montgomery is in the city.

Rev. D. J. G. Macdonald, St. Margaret's, is in the city.

Rev. Father Burke, of Alberton, crossed over to Point du Chene yesterday on his way to Montreal and Ottawa.

A monument to Joachim II. was unveiled at Syandau, Germany, on Monday last, the celebration marking the opening of the celebration of the Reformation.

Charles Bradlaugh, M. P. for Northampton, who was recovering from his recent illness, has suffered a relapse.

Mrs. Bessie Starr Keefe's lectures have been most satisfactory in Pownal, Vernon River, Uigg, Belfast, Brown's Creek, New Perth and Montague. She speaks this evening at Murray River; 7th, Murray Harbor South, 8th, St. Peter's Road, 9th, Sturgeon, 11th, Lower Montague, 12th, Georgetown, 13th, Charlottetown, 14th, Dundas, 15th, Bay Fortune, 16th, South, 18th, Head St. Peter's Bay, 19th, Morell, and 20th, Mount Stewart.

A number of relatives and friends of W. H. Findley, Esq., and Mrs. Findley were at the railway station this morning to bid them good-bye. Mr. Findley has long been a prominent and successful merchant in this Province. He has won not only a competency, but also that which is far more valuable, a good name. While promoting energetically and creditably, his personal interests, he identified himself with many enterprises which have helped to develop the resources of the country. He was not one of those who tried to overreach his fellows; his transactions were marked not only by the strictest integrity, but by good will towards all honest men. His removal from Charlottetown is, we understand, due to his declining health, which has not been robust in recent years. We trust that the climate of Southern California will have the effect of completely restoring that without which living anywhere is hardly worth while.

HOTEL ARRIVALS.

HOTEL DAVIES. Nov 5—F. S. White, Montreal; W. P. Downy, W. B. Freeman, Halifax; J. S. Willey, Detroit; J. D. LeVie, Gloucester; S. Prowse, Murray Harbor; O. P. Hanagan, Houlton; A. Pichette, Quebec.

OSBORNE HOUSE. Nov 5—G. W. W. Cameron, Augustine Cove; May Pease, Boston; W. H. Docherty, Cardigan; D. W. Palmer, P. H. Palmer, Victoria; M. Delaney, North Tryon; L. H. McLain, St. Peter's Bay; H. S. It was once supposed that scrofula could not be eradicated from the system; but the marvellous results produced by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla disprove this theory. The reason is, this medicine is the most powerful blood purifier ever discovered.

FREDERICTON'S RECORD.—The police records of Fredericton for the year ending 31st October, show that there were 361 persons before the court, the total receipts footing up $2,001.50, of which $1,250 were collected in Scott Act fines.

PEDESTRIANISM.—The Bridgeport, Conn., walking match finished on Saturday night, Higman winning over the Guerry second. The 300-mile record in forty-eight hours was broken. Cartwright and Spicer ran five miles for a purse, and Cartwright won in 27. 33 1/2.

A WARNING.—A few days ago a Bridgeport, Conn., girl named Amy Murphy was chewing gum, and not feeling well, gave the gum to another little girl. The latter chewed it, and then passed it to two other playmates. All four girls were soon afterward taken down with diphtheria, and two have died. The physicians say the disease was carried from the Murphy child to the other in the chewing gum.

LEPAGE'S GLUE.—A Boston newspaper man recently visited the establishment of the LePage Company, at Gloucester, Mass., where the celebrated "LePage's Glue," the invention of Mr. W. M. LePage, formerly of Charlottetown, is manufactured, and was well pleased with what he saw. This glue, the reporter was informed, is not made from horns, like the glue in general use, but is a fish glue in liquid form. The industry was established in 1876, since which time it has grown considerably, and the factory has been kept supplied with all the modern labor-saving machinery. An idea may be formed of the great popularity achieved by the company when it is stated that a trade has been established in its glue all over the world. We congratulate Mr. LePage on his prosperity.

Imprisoned by Fire.

TRAGIC EXPERIENCE OF A WATCHMAN IN A BURNING STORE.

AKRON, Ohio, Nov. 1.—Following a terrific explosion, flame burst out from every part of the new stone and glass front building of O'Neil & Dyas, dry goods dealers, early this morning, and in less than an hour all was a mass of ruin. Not even a spool of thread was saved from the $175,000 worth of stock, and all that remained standing was the corner of one wall.

Stephen Hogan, the porter of the store, was asleep on the fourth floor. He bounded from bed at the shock of the explosion, and clad only in a shirt, sprang into the elevator. In an instant every part of the building was full of fire, and the flames sucked into the elevator shaft scorched his face and blistered his hands and legs. He pulled the rope and started down.

Reaching the first floor he burst through the iron doors, and crying out at the top of his voice ran to the front of the store. The heavy plate glass windows stood like a wall against the battering of his fists, and with flames enveloping him, burning all the hair off his body he caught up a stool, broke through the front, and leaping out ran down the street, yelling like mad.

When he burst into the corridor of the nearest hotel he was a mass of blood, cuts and blisters and was well nigh frozen from the exposure of his bare limbs and feet. Physicians have been in constant attendance and there is some hopes of recovery.

The building burned fiercely for nearly an hour and then the fire crossed to Howard Street, cleaning out three blocks. O'Neil & Dyas lost $200,000 on stock and building. The loss on the Howard Street block is $25,000.

O'Neil & Dyas employed 75 clerks. Mr. O'Neil is now in New York buying goods, and another store was rented while the fire was raging. The origin of the explosion is a mystery, the theory being that it was due to escaping gas, but the watchman detected nothing in his rounds half an hour before the shock occurred.
