THE ALL PUNCHY SQUAD ('69 - '70)

Heisman Trophy - Peter Sprague
 Centre - P. Sprague (6'3", 220 lbs. Ottawa, Ont.)
 Forward - V. Paolini (5'11", 170 lbs., Saugus, Mass.)
 Forward - M. Darcy (5'10", 240 lbs., Saugus, Mass.)
 Guard - R. Holz (4'11", 260 lbs., Newark City Council)
 Guard - J. Kane (5'6", 190 lbs., Charlottetown, PEI)

This is the first year for the All-Punchy squad; it should, however, have been organized last year when many great free-lance performances were registered. The Select Selecting Committee, in a sincere attempt to honor last year's greats, have put together a Hall of Fame Honor Roll in order that the heretofore unrecognized efforts of the past will receive their muchmerited recognition.

The committee has tried to disregard performances influenced by alcohol, but so many great ones occurred as a by-product of the demon rum's fungiving qualities that the committee, being only human, was influenced against its will, particularly in the selection of Hall-of-Famers. This year's all Star performance were, for the most part soberly done.

The Heisman winner and starting centre Peter Sprague began his career enthusiastically upon arrival at Saint Dunstan's and has not faltered a whit in the ensuing years. Now that the 60's are over, Peter is in serious contention with several members of the Charlottetown police force for player of the decade. However, seasoned observers don't give him much chance against the fine phalanx of the boys in blue. Much of the credit for Petey's fine play must go to Don "Human speedbag" Niles, who, because of his size, and retiring nature did not participate in punching this season.

Mike Darcy, a freshman performer, came on strong in all aspects of the game. It is to be hoped that current attempts at curtailing his fine efforts will terminate in ignominious failure. Some people have no sense of humour. Hear that Junior.

Ray Holz's performances were largely unnoticed during the early part of the season but as soon as the league governors realized he wasn't a fire hydrant he received recognition.

The selection of J. Kane requires no illumination. The fifth starting spot was given, after much consideration to Jim Paolini (Guido) on the merit of two outstanding performances. Also he is handsome, well dressed and sophisticated.

THE MELTING ALL STARS ('69 - '70)

Heisman Trophy - Donald Niles
 CentreCentre - Jim Fitzgerald (6'5", 220 lbs. Springfield, Mass.)
 Forward - Bob Connaughton (6'1", 311 lbs., Saugus, Mass.)
 Forward - Kenny Chan (4'1", 16 lbs., Vientiane, Laos)
 Guard - Don Niles (5'10", 108 lbs., Providence, R.I.)
 Guard - Max MacCormick (5'2", 280 lbs., Westmount, P.Q.)

MELTING

The quality of melting at UPEI has gone down, while, on the whole, the quantity has gone up. The Selection Committee tried to select the starting five on the basis of fine performances rather than number of opportunities.

Niles, the fans most popular performer won the Heisman in a walkaway, setting a league record for most successful attempts and tying his previous season's mark in the quality category.

Best single melt of the season went to Jim Fitzgerald, who entered a catatonic state in front of an assembled throng of over 100 strangers in a hotel ballroom. His feat was equivalent to scaling Everest with a hand and a leg tied together, (carrying your Shirpa guide). It was on the basis of this performance that Fitz was selected.

Bob Connaughton (or Gonzo as his fellow amphetathoids call him) merited selection on this basis of most attempts by a rookie. We trust his quality will improve next season when the competition will improve.

Max earned recognition through his proxy melts, that is melting for someone else who is either unfamiliar with the rules, or who, through pure bad sportsmanship refuses to participate.

Kenny Chan, a Hanoi vet of the Indonesian wars, earned a berth at forward for his use of sneaky tactics and because of his imposing physical structure.

THE GREAT GRABARSE GROUP

Heisman Trophy - J.....M.....
 Centre - J.....M..... (5'10", 120 lbs., Slemon Park, P.E.I.)
 Forward - Don Niles (5'10", 108 lbs., Providence, R.I.)
 Forward - Billy Corcoran (5'10", 170 lbs, Saugus, Mass.)
 Guard - D.....L..... (5'3", 104 lbs., Campbellville, N.B.)
 Guard - Owen Jay 5'1", 198 lbs., S. Boston, Mass.)

This squad is composed of people of various sexes. The committee uses initials to designate female selections, as publication of their full names might invite participation by second rate minor leaguers.

J - - - started off well, but faltered towards the end of the season when she seemed to fall back on defence; however, the committee feels she earned the MVP award on the basis of the mid-season balloting.

Niles, initiator of the sport on the Island, had a great season. An active enthusiast, Donny's forte is his offence. Defensively, he flinches, a fault that cost him the Heisman.

Billy Corcoran, a late call-up from the minors, filled a wide gap, many for that matter, and finished strongly with improved under-handed moves.

D - - - , a seasoned veteran, had a balanced season, combining a flawless offence with a massive defence.

Probably the stealthiest member of the squad is Owen Jay whose greatest talent lies in giving the credit for his fine play to others.
