thinness

The diseases of thinness are scrofula in children, consumption in grown people, poverty of blood in either. They thrive on leanness. Fat is the best means of overcoming them. Everybody knows cod-liver oil makes the healthiest fat.

In Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil the taste is hidden, the oil is digested, it is ready to make fat.

When you ask for Scott's Emulsion and your druggist gives you a package in a salmon-colored wrapper with the picture of the man and fish on it—you can trust that man!

THE BURTON TRAGEDY.

BY LEROY GRIBBER.

Continued

I had hardly time to say this for the Burton train was on the point of starting. I carefully jumped in a compartment where there was one vacant seat, for I did not wish to enjoy any more of Egbert Lloyd's society. But I found on getting out at Burton that he was quite as anxious to see no more of me as I was to see no more of him. He ran down the steps and started off at a great pace without as much as a glance at me. I had to ask my way and was directed to a busy street lined on the one side with factories, and on the other with shops and small houses built for the work people, who were now, at the sound of the second bell, to cease work. At last I came to the "long, black wall, with two big gates a little way from one another," as Jones' brewery had been described to me.

As I approached the second gate I saw that Egbert Lloyd was standing there, talking to a stout man, whom I thought was the lodge-keeper. Before I was near enough to hear more than the angry tone of the visitor and the surly tone of the servant I saw Egbert walk on away from me abruptly and impatiently, while the man in charge took a step out on to the pathway to shake his head and look after him.

My heart sank within me. If Egbert was not admitted, neither certainly should I be.

Instead of being able to put a bold face on for the occasion I felt that the consciousness that I had come on a vain errand made me particularly bashful and meek. As it happened, however, this fact proved my salvation. Just as, in answer to my timid question, whether Miss Clarke was at home, the lodge-keeper replied rather curtly that he didn't know whether she was at home or not, but that in any case I could not see her, his wife ran out from the lodge and said in a hasty whisper: "James, James, perhaps it's one of the young women come after the place."

James, bless him! didn't think it was. But my gentility evidently did not impress his better half, for she insisted on asking me, on tiptoe over her husband's shoulder, whether I had come after the place.

My first impulse was to answer "No," in such a tone of high-bred haughtiness as should cover Mrs. Jim with confusion at her mistake. My second, and that upon which I acted, was to mumble meekly "Yes," and to enter through the closely guarded portals on the strength of the lie, while the woman looked triumphantly at her husband, and he with superior sagacity, for which I felt quite grateful, muttered, "Bless me, how they do dress themselves up! If I didn't take her for a lady!"

I walked down a long drive, bordered by shrubs, flowers and trees, until I reached the back of a big, plainly built house which might have been picturesque among trees if it had not recently been "done up" in a very villainous manner. I was hesitating as to whether I should go in at an open door opposite me or wander round in search of the front, when a stout lady with a florid complexion came to one of the ground floor windows, opened it and addressed me.

"Are you come about the situation?" she asked.

Look and tone were encouraging. I set the lady down as vulgar, but good-natured, and thinking I would have some fun I said much more boldly than before "Yes!"

"Yes!"

"Ma'am," I added, hastily.

She beckoned me in with another smile and I entered through the French casement, a large double drawing-room which ran right through the house from back to front. The furniture was old-fashioned, stiff and ugly. There must indeed be something the matter with Alice when, having command of money, she suffered these abominations. The lady whose appearance I could now examine more closely, was evidently one who had seen better days, and also worse ones. That is to say, her manners were better than her speech. It was not long before she explained this anomaly.

"I think you will suit us very well," she said, when I admitted that I had not been out before. "I want a very superior young person, just like yourself, in fact. More of a confidential maid than a parlor maid really. I must tell you I am not quite the mistress here; I am chaperon to Miss Clarke, a young lady of fortune, a most amiable person, but who has such indifferent health that I don't quite like being left alone with her, as it were. The responsibility is too great for me, the widow of a physician, and unused to anything derogatory." I wondered if the physician had married his cook. She was a good creature, though, with self-complacent kindliness beaming from every feature. She must have been handsome, too, in the days when shell-pink became lobster-red, plumpness, stoutness and fair hair in need of dye.

"And am I to be maid to you, ma'am, or to the other lady?"

"Oh, Miss Clarke has her own maid and I am not supposed to have a maid at all. You are to help the parlor maid and look after the house linen. But—but I want you to sleep in the next room to mine, so that if I should call to you in the night you would hear and come to me. Don't you think the house is haunted," she went on hastily, with a nervous laugh, "the girls who came last week all thought it must be, and refused to take the situation. But it is not so; it is only that Miss Clarke is nervous, and sometimes walks about the house at night, in fact." The lady blurted this out in a frightened way. I was electrified. Alice a somnambulist! What should I hear next! Forgetting my interlocutor, I let my eyes rove out of the window through which I had entered. As I did so all my fears, all my doubts received a shocking confirmation. Gliding rather than walking among the trees on a small lawn on the other side of the carriage drive was a figure that looked to me the wreck of my beautiful Alice. With a face white and drawn, a figure limp and stooping, a furtive hesitating manner, this I thought could never be the girl whose only faults a few months ago had been levity, thoughtlessness, frivolity. Was this what her uncle's fortune had brought her? I had risen from my seat and was watching her spell-bound. The chaperon, whose name was Mrs. Ellis, left her chair and came close to me to whisper:—

"That is Miss Clarke, and oh! you wouldn't believe the change that's come over her in only three months' time. I can't make it out."

"No," said I, slowly, "but we must find out the cause, you know; we must."

"You'll stay, then? You'll take the situation? You'll have good wages, anything you like," cried poor Mrs. Ellis with startling eagerness.

I had forgotten the part I was playing. Remembering it suddenly, and reflecting that I might be turned out ignominiously if I confessed, I said:—

"Oh, yes, I'll stay," and stepped closer to the window. Whatever stratagem I might be forced to use, I could not leave the house until I had found out the reason of the change in my poor friend.

NEVER HEARD OF.

A Single Instance in Which Dodd's Kidney Pills Failed to Cure Kidney Cure.

MOUNT FORREST (Special) Sept. 21.—The proprietor of the Queen's Hotel of this town declares that he has every reason to believe, that any claim made by the people who are advertising and selling Dodd's Kidney Pills is true. These people were the first to inform, and instruct him as to the cause of his long continued suffering from extreme nervousness. He says that "unable to obtain any relief from other sources, that it was on account of reading the particulars of other cures that his confidence was gained." Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills were all that were required to complete his cure.

A rich gold discovery is reported to have been made near Grahamstown, Cape Colony.

Mr. C. Donnelly, wholesale liquor dealer, Alliston, Ont., was troubled for years with itching piles. He was persuaded by James McGarvey, Alliston, livery man, to use Chase's Ointment, which he did, was cured, he has no return of them and highly recommends this Ointment as a sovereign cure for Piles.

A Rome despatch says that the pope has granted an audience to Mgr. Chicoutimi on electoral and educational questions in Canada.

Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Chase's Pills have gained popularity because they are a specific for the uric acid condition, prevent Bright's disease, cure Rheumatism and all Catarrhal conditions of the Kidneys and Bladder. They do this because they possess remarkable alterative, tonic and deuretic properities, exerting a wonderfully soothing influence on irritated or inflamed mucos membrance of the kidneys or bladder. One pill a dose. 25 a box. The cheapest medicine in the world.

A despatch from Tickfaw, La., reports that three members of the Cotton family, living near that place, were murdered by a negro, and another member of the family was seriously injured.

It Saved Our Child.

"My little daughter, three and a half year old, suffered three years with Eczema. Her little body was covered with the itching rash, and doctors did no good. Four boxes of Chase's Ointment entirely cured and saved our child. Her skin is clear and not a sign of rash is to be seen." Andrew Aiton, Hartland, N. B. Mr. Aiton is one of thousands benefitted by this unfailing cure for piles and skin diseases.

There could be no better illustration of the fatal facilty for blundering on the part of the Turkish Government than an order issued the latter part of August to all the railway companies in the Empire to substitute Ottoman subjects for all the foreigners in their service, except those who have techuical knowledge. As almost all the companies are foreign, it was natural for them to refuse; and they threatened, in case the order was persisted in, to stop all the trains.

Completely Knocked Out.

"I was so much run down I had to give up work, and I felt as if life was not worth living," writes Wm. W. Thompson, Zephyr, Ont. "I took Scott's Sarsaparilla and am now feeling as I did years ago." Scott's Sarsaparilla tones up the entire system, purifies the blood, and eradicates rheumatic and scrofulous poisons. Ask for Scott's and get it.

RHEUMATISM
Its Cause and Cure.

A poisonous Acid in the Blood, which needs removal.

Only one means for a radical cure.

Rheumatism is a blood disease, due to the presence of uric acid—a poison—in the system, and it is only by the removal of this pain-producing poison, that a radical cure can be effected. Acute rheumatism is hereditary, and thus it is that young children are often victims to this torture. The use of liniments, embrocations and outward applications, may give temporary relief, but can never cure, for the poison is in the blood, and until it is expelled, rheumatism, sciatica and neuraligic pains will continue. Scotts' Sarsaparilla cures rheumatism by removing the cause—by neutralizing and expelling this poisonous acid. In chronic cases, this medicine reaches the source of the disease as no other medicine can. It gives renewed energy to the organs that sustain life, the forces that make the blood. For the nervous troubles of youth, for the debility that precedes old age, for ladies in their severe ordeals, it is without a compeer.

Scott's Sarsaparilla is a concentrated compound of the finest medicines known to modern medical science—The dose is from one half to one teaspoonful and during its use the ordinary vocations are not interfered with.

A splendid monument of Pierre Cabochard, grocer, stands in a conspicuous position in the cemetery of Pere la Chaise. It bears a pathetic inscription, ending:—

"His inconsolable widow dedicates this monument to his memory, and continues the same business at the old place, No. 167 Rue Mouffotard."

A gentleman had the curiosity to call at the address given.

"I came to see the widow Cabochard," said the caller.

"Well, sir, here she is," said the man.

"I beg pardon," said the gentleman, "but I wish to see the lady herself."

"Sir," was the answer, "I am the widow Cabochard."

"I don't exactly understand," quoth the visitor. "I allude to the relict of the late Pierre Cabochard, whose monument I saw yesterday at Pere la Chaise."

"I see, I see," was the smiling rejoinder. "Allow me to inform you that Pierre Cabochard is a myth, and therefore never had a wife. The tomb you admired cost me a good deal of money, and although no one was buried there, it proves a first-rate advertisement, and I have had no cause to regret the expense. What can I sell you in the way of groceries?"—Tit-Bits.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ar

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
