Canso Causeway's Rock Value Debated In Court

OTTAWA (CP)—The merits of various evaluations on 10,000,000 tons of rock that went into the Canso Causeway were argued in Exchequer Court Wednesday as a four-year-old legal battle involving a former Nova Scotia lieutenant-governor neared an end.

The causeway rock, used to bridge the gap between the Nova Scotia mainland and Cape Breton Island, was chopped from a cliff known as Porcupine Mountain on the property of Alistair Fraser, Nova Scotia's lieutenant-governor from October, 1952 until January of this year.

Mr. Fraser is seeking more than $1,000,000 compensation for the rock. He has refused the federal government's original offer of $5,500 plus return of all but 12.8 acres of his land that was expropriated to get at the rock.

The legal action began in August, 1954, almost exactly a year before the 4,500 - foot causeway was opened. It is being heard before Mr. Justice J. C. A. Cameron, who likely will hear the final argument today.

H. P. MacKeen of Halifax, council with David R. Chipman, also of Halifax, for Mr. Fraser, argued Wednesday that the federal government valuation experts gave unsatisfactory evidence that overlooked the key question of what a purchaser would have paid for the property under circumstances of voluntary sale.

He charged that the federal government witnesses also were used to suggest that there were alternate sites from which rock for the causeway could have been obtained, thus detracting from the value of Porcupine Mountain.

However, he said, the rock from Porcupine Mountain was unique in that it was the only granite available within a reasonable distance and it was therefore far more suitable for causeway building than other nearby rocks supplies.

This other rock was less economic to quarry and was neither as hard nor as durable—an important feature where the swift current of the Canso Strait is concerned — as the Porcupine Mountain rock.

He added that no evidence was given that the alternate sites actually were considered as sources of rock for the causeway. Reports prior to the construction of the causeway had made specific note of Porcupine Mountain as a granite source.

Unionizing Policemen Meets Snag

NEW YORK (CP) — Teamster leader James R. Hoffa ran into new trouble Tuesday over his drive to unionize policemen.

Godfrey P. Schmidt, one of the monitors appointed by a federal judge to clean up the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, asked his two associates to order a halt in the police unionization drive.

Schmidt, an anti-Hoffa member of the watchdog board, wrote a letter to board chairman Martin F. O'Donoghue describing the Hoffa plan to bring policemen into the truck union as a "piece of unmitigated gall."

He said the plan in defiance of public policy.

"A man like Hoffa, with so many underworld ties and connections, should not be permitted to make plans for an unholy alliance between himself, his corrupt associates and friends and law-enforcement personnel throughout the United States."

Hoffa announced in Miami a week ago that the teamster executive board had authorized a campaign to bring policemen, firemen and all other categories of state, county and municipal employees into the teamsters."

Oppose Halifax Property Sale

HALIFAX (CP)—The industrial commission has recommended against acceptance of a $145,000 CPR bid for four acres of property near the Halifax Forum.

A railway trucking subsidiary —Smith's Transfer—intended to use the land as a terminal for trucking operations.

Mayor Charles Vaughan said it was the commission's view that it would not be fair to sell the land to a concern that would operate in competition with similar operations in the area.

BROOKLYN, Mass. —(AP)— Socially - prominent Miss Isabel Russell, 45, of Westwood, a fashionable Boston suburb, was arrested Wednesday on a charge that she murdered her 74-year-old father, Joseph Ballister Russell, during the Labor Day weekend.

A warrant was issued for her arrest at the conclusion of an inquest Monday.

Russell was prominent in Boston business circles for a generation as a member of the insurance firm of Obrion, Russell and Company. His pajama-clad body was found in bushes outside their Westwood home Sept. 7.

Police failed at the time to find signs of violence or evidence of foul play.

Nickel Strike Talks Continue

TORONTO (CP) — Labor Minister Daley said Wednesday he will keep International Nickel Company and mine - mill union negotiators at the conference table "until Christmas if necessary" in his latest bil to end the prolonged strike at Sudbury and Port Colborne.

As the second day of the third round of government - sponsored peace talks was adjourned without comment from the company or workers, the minister reinforced the belief that he is adapting a get-tough attitude towards both sides.

"The only way this thing can be settled is by negotiation," he said. "We are going to keep them talking and threshing this thing out until there is nothing left to thresh."

Mr. Daley said the adjournment of talks until today would give both sides the opportunity to "examine their position."

"This is too important to hurry."

N.S. Gov't Cracks The Whip On Towns Retaining Fines

SYDNEY, N.S (CP) — Over the last 30 years the city of Sydney has pocketed about $100,000 in fines assessed for infractions of the Criminal Code.

Three other Nova Scotia communities have pocketed lesser amounts for the same infractions.

The attorney - general's department has tried unsucessfully to stop the practice, saying the money rightfully belongs to the provincial treasury.

Tuesday the department lowered the boom. The communities would forward the monies as of Jan. 1 or the stipendiary magistrates would be made responsible for all monies collected.

The other communities are North Sydney, Sydney Mines and New Waterford.

In Sydney the fines average about $8,000 a year.

However, the department told the city in future it will pay the salary of the stipendiary magistrate once the fines are turned over to the province. This will mean the city may lose only $2,000 annually.

The fine issue reached a climax last week when the town of Dartmouth asked the government for assistance in building a new courtroom. The town pointed out that unlike Sydney it was unable to keep fines.

That started the ball rolling and all towns and cities now will receive the same treatment.

C.N.R. Delivers When Santa Sends Out Call For Help

MONCTON, — When Santa calls for help with Christmas deliveries, he usually turns to the railways, and the Canadian National Railways always pitches in with a willingness that makes it one of the jolly man's principal aids during the festive season.

Swiftly and efficiently CNR hustles turkeys, presents, Christmas cards, mail, trees and telegrams from one end of the country to the other.

Thousands of people want to get home quickly for the big day. Tons of baggage accompany them.

Big department stores do a "land office" business and must oe supplied with vast quantities of goods.

In fact, the list of duties with which Santa taxes the Canadian National every year seems almost endless.

STARTING POINT

Where does the railway start? It starts by rounding out the family circle. This means that passenger and operating departments must transport thousands of eager holidayers to that important destination — home — and fast.

It's not a dull, routine trip, either. Travellers pick up some of the Christmas sentiment as soon as they enter any one of CNR's many stations throughout Canada. As integral parts of the communities they serve, stations are gaily decorated.

Once on the train, travellers find that some of CNR's conductors have added personal Yule decorations to coaches.

On the diners and dinettes they are confronted with specially prepared Christmas menus, including the Canadian National's pride and joy — plum pudding made from a century-old recipe.

FOUR TONS

More than four tons of pudding, eight tons of turkey, 500 gallons of minecmeat and thousands of pounds of cranberry sauce and jelly aid the traveller to eat his way home.

But this isn't half the job Santa expects of the CNR. Freight and express departments fill homes with presents, Christmas mail, turkeys and thousands of smaller items.

Telegraph agents even send telegrams signed by Santa to goggle-eyed youngsters across the nation on "the" morning. They also help bring into closer touch those who can't be with families on the 25th.

HELPS SANTA

Those who can't get home come in for special attention in other ways. If the Canadian National can't take them home, it helps Santa to do the next best thing. It brings Christmas to them.

CNR hotels go all out to invoke the Christmas spirit.

Rotundas, archways, corridors, grills, lounges, dining rooms and foyers are decorated in an individual manner suited to the distinctive charm of each building. Special music and carols are played in all dining rooms while special menus, candles and centerpieces add to the Christmas atmosphere.

In short, helping Santa to help others to a Merry Christmas is a big job for the CNR.

Thor Missiles Prove Accurate

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Both the Thor missiles fired Tuesday on the east and west coasts of the United States landed within five miles of their targets, a missile source here said Wednesday.

Each of the rocket dyne-powered Douglas missiles went their full scheduled range—about 1,500 miles—the spokesman said.

"The success of the launchings at Vandenberg air force base and Cape Canaveral means that we now have an intermediate-range ballistic missile which is fully operational," he said, "and this less than 36 months after the first Thor contract was signed.

"This is an exceptional record when you consider that it frequently requires 10 years to take an airplane from the drawing board of the prototype stage."

LEG BROKEN, CLIMBS 1,3000 FEET

In a climb described as a miracle by doctors, Malline Matthews, 18, crawled painfully 1,300 feet up a mountain slope near Hope, B. C. after her family car had plunged off a road. Malline made the climb with a broken leg, barefooted and freezing cold. Reaching the highway, she flagged down a motorist who, by chance, was a drug salesman carrying a supply of cortisone. The drug is credited with saving the lives of two others in the car at the time of the plunge. Malline's mother and a friend. Her father died before a doctor could reach him.

Colombia Mourns 84 Fire Dead

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Colombia mourned Wednesday night for 84 victims of fire and panic that turned a department store into a death trap for Christmas shoppers.

The fire and frenzied stampede swept the Vida store in downtown Bogota Tuesday night.

Fifty were injured and dozens of others affected by smoke and fumes from flames created by the explosion of a short-circuited display of Christmas lights.

The loss of life was the largest on record for a department store fire. Files of the National Protection Association, in Boston, showed it doubled the previous high—the death of 41 persons at Christchurch, New Zealand, Nov. 18, 1947.

MEALS WITH A FOREIGN ACCENT

A touch of herbs . . . a hint of garlic . . . the subtle flavor of almond — such simple things can give our favorite foods a cosmopolitan air. For example, here's a delicious Macaroni Espagnole. It starts with my quick, easy 3-Minute Cheese Sauce — and takes on exciting flavor, through simple seasonings. The secret of this recipe is the s-m-o-o-o-thness of the sauce, made with double - rich, better-blending Carnation Milk.

MACARONI ESPAGNOLE

(Makes 6 servings)

1 large can undiluted CARNATION EVAPORATED MILK
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2 cups (8 ounces) grated process-type Canadian cheese
¼ cup chopped green pepper (may be omitted)
2 tbsps. finely chopped onion
1½ cups well drained canned tomatoes
1 small clove garlic, finely chopped
4 cups drained seasoned cooked macaroni

Simmer Carnation, salt and mustard in saucepan over low heat to just below boiling (about 2 minutes). Add cheese. Stir until thickened and smooth (about 1 minute longer). Combine remaining ingredients in large mixing bowl. Add sauce. Mix thoroughly. Turn into buttered casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) about 30 minutes.

BABIES THE WORLD OVER have food needs that are pretty much the same. And Carnation Evaporated Milk is used more for baby feeding throughout the world than all other brands combined. Carnation is specially digestible . . . outstandingly nourishing . . . absolutely safe. Eight out of ten mothers who feed their babies a Carnation formula say — "My doctor recommended it!"

France is famous for its pastries. And much of the glamour of one of the favorites — delicious "open-face" cream pie — lies in the rich, smooth vanilla cream filling they use. The fresh-cream flavor of Carnation Evaporated Milk does marvels for this kind of filling. And Carnation's special blending qualities give a satiny, luxurious goodness unmatched even by results you get with cream.

FRUIT PIE PARISIENNE

(Makes a 9-inch pie)

1 large can undiluted CARNATION EVAPORATED MILK
⅔ cup water
¾ cup sugar
5 tbsps. cornstarch
½ tsp. salt
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 tbsp. butter
1 tsp. vanilla
Baked 9-inch pie shell
1 pint fresh fruit
Glaze (see below)

Heat Carnation and water. Combine sugar, cornstarch, salt; stir in Carnation mixture. Cook over low heat or in double boiler, stirring frequently, until thickened. Add small amount of cooked mixture to eggs; stir and pour into remaining mixture over heat. Cook 5 minutes longer. Add butter and vanilla. Cool; pour into pie shell. Top with halved fresh strawberries, whole blueberries or sliced peaches, etc. Cover with glaze; cool. Glaze: Stir ¾ cup jelly (currant, apple or apricot) with 1 tablespoon water over low heat until jelly melts.
