KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidney, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 75c bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

W. R. Watson, Druggist, Charlottetown, P. E. Island.

CRUEL SPORT IN INDIA.

HUNTING DEER WITH A PANTHER IN THE JUNGLES.

Hindooes Care Nothing for Amusement Unless Accompanied by Physical Suffering or Great Danger—The Battle of Hands and the Swinging Festival.

India is a land of sport, but accidents are always much surprised to find that the Hindooes, who are so fond of amusement, must have something cruel about it, either by the man or beast. It is to India, by the way, that Europe and America have introduced the most popular British entertainments by the Hindooes.

Hindooes are great cock fighters, says a writer in the San Francisco Chronicle. Large sums of money are spent on these contests, not are the birds furnished with spurs to make the combats still more sanguinary. The cocks use only nature's weapons and the Hindooes are never so eager to satisfy the Hindoo craving for bloody spectacles. Of horse racing the Hindooes are passionately fond, and a race will practically close all business. The government printing offices at Allahabad have on occasions been closed because the Hindooes abandoned their duties to see the races. A stepphase where there is every possibility of someone being thrown exists a wonderful fascination on the people. Hindooes do not hesitate to call themselves the greatest physical warriors in the world. Their hunting, too, is of the cruel order. Panthers, or, as they are called, the "black cats," are found to hunt deer and kill them. There is no gun attached to the hunters, but there is a great deal of danger to the unfortunate shikari who trains the ferocious beast. The panther is blindfolded, a leash is placed around his middle, and he is thus led to the place where deer can be found or where the deer have been driven by a swarm of beaters. The assembling, mounted upon elephants or horses or in some way, the hunters are then led to the open and the hood quietly removed, and this is the supreme, the agonizing moment. The cheetah, which is a more furiously hungry, has been known to turn upon his trainer as the quickest prey, and this is the supreme, the agonizing moment. Myriads of poisoned hairs.

What Causes the Itching in the Hand? Lightly Touches the Nettle.

The leaf and stem of a nettle are literally clothed with erect hollow hairs. If one of these hairs is viewed under a microscope, says Good World, it is seen to be a hollow tube, free end, after tapering to a very fine degree of thinness, finishes as a little hook, which in the other direction, after gradually becoming more robust, it suddenly expands into a large bulb corresponding with the poison gland of the stinger. The point of the hair is very brittle and contact with our skin causes the end to snap off, leaving a hollow needle point which readily pierces our cuticle, and pressing upon the bulb at the other end the poison is forced through the central channel and inflames our blood. The tender hand who strikes the nettle are stung for their moment. Because their sensitive hands are so easily served to break the brittle points and render them fit for piercing, but the rough hand breaks the hairs at their thickest parts, where they are too stout to prick. Our common nettles, though they are capable of inflicting considerable annoyance upon many persons, are of no significance, nevertheless, to be included among vegetable monsters, and we have only referred to them for the sake of making out the enormities of some big connoisseurs of the nettle family. These are, first, the Urtica stimularis and Urtica urens, the first of the East Indies, species whose stings upon one's hand is sufficient to cause the arm to swell with a most frightful pain, which lasts for weeks. But even one to be severe in its effects, in comparison with the Urtica urens, which grows in Timor, where it bears the significant title of Diabolus, or devil's leaf. The effects of its stings last for a year and have often produced death.

Brother Talnage has resigned once and been fired out three times, but he's there yet.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Change for the better," said the cashier of the pool-room, as he paid out the cash to the winner.—Texas Siftings.

The labor organizations have not yet adopted the baseball rule. They go out the first strike.—Florida Times Union.

The people who talk most of giving the devil his due often forget to pay their share of the minister's salary.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Some pessimists may still contend that marriage is a failure, but in the bright lexicon of the experience of matrimony there is no such word as failure.—Baltimore American.

"For all practical purposes," ejaculated the barber, "I will watch him in one pocket and the silver spoons into another."—"I am considerable of a bi-nasalist myself."—Chicago Tribune.

"Let 'em sit up high," said Uncle Eben, "but don't forget that dah an moh practical reason 's a good job of white-washin' dah dey is in a bad job of landscape painting."—Washington Star.

It Thought It Was.

It was a busy night in the barber's shop. It was a cold night, too. Which shows how versatile a night can be. The scrape, scrape, scrape of the razors was interrupted only by the clatter of the barber's remarks; also by several customers who had entered and departed, invariably leaving the barber and a departing from upon his forehead. At last his victim was released from his chair. Donning his hat and coat, the victim walked to the door, opened the door, and passed out, but he turned for a moment to draw on his gloves, leaving the door open.

"That the door," yelled the head barber, "this ain't no sawmill!"

The victim seemed surprised. "Isn't it?" he retorted. "Your razor made me think it was." And he had to go to the night, leaving the door open behind him.—Harper's Bazar.

A Disadvantage of Health.

A visitor among the poor in the east side of the city found unexpected testimony to the disadvantages of health in one of her recent calls. Mrs. B. has a family of a dozen children, and like most of her class, she had her set of teeth in a desperate condition. "How are the children, Mr. B.?" enquired the caller.

"All very well, indeed, ma'am, very well indeed."

"You ought to be thankful, I'm sure, with so much sickness about."

"Yes, ma'am, I suppose I ought to be thankful,—I'll tell you, ma'am, when they're well they eat an awful lot!"—New York Tribune.

The Largest Bottle in the World.

A firm of champagne manufacturers at Freyburg, I., have ordered a gigantic champagne bottle to be "constructed" for them by a glass works in the Grand Duchy of Baden. The bottle measures 8 metres in length with a diameter of 24 metres; it weighs 28 wts., and has a capacity of 15,000 litres. The article is to be exhibited in the spacious vaults and cellars of the firm, where it is expected to draw customers.—Basler Nachrichten.

A Powerful Water Wheel.

A Sioux City inventor is exploiting a "new and powerful water wheel," which develops 80 per cent. more power than ordinary wheels. As wheels of the ordinary type develop 75 per cent. or more of the theoretical power of the water, a practical demonstration of the claim would appear to be somewhat difficult.—Power.

Scrofula in the Neck—Bunches All Gone Now.

Blanche Atwood, Bangorville, Maine.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: 'Gentlemen—I feel that I cannot say enough in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For five years I have been troubled with scrofula in my neck and throat. Several kinds of medicines which I tried did not do me any good, and when I commenced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there were large bunches on my neck so sore that I could not bear the slightest touch. When I had taken one bottle of this medicine, the sores had gone, and before I had finished the second the bunches had entirely disappeared.' BLANCHE ATWOOD, Bangorville, Maine.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.
