Searletown WI Members Observe 40th Anniversary

SEARLETOWN — The members of the Searletown Women's Institute with their husbands and a number of special guests celebrated their 40th anniversary in the late fall of 1961, in the form of a banquet catered to in a hospitable and friendly way by the members of Middleton W.I. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Craig. Centering the head table was an anniversary cake made and decorated by Mrs. Fred Platts.

Following a delicious hot turkey dinner all were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Archie Robinson. A toast to the Queen was proposed by Mrs. Harold MacQuarrie. All joined in singing the National Anthem. The toast to the Institute was proposed by Mrs. Adelbert Palmer, after which the Institute Ode was sung. Mrs. John Parker gave a toast to the men stating that although Women's Institute work is for the women, there are times when we have to call on our husbands for help. Ladies sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

A most gratifying report of the work accomplished by this Institut over the past 40 years was capably given by Mrs. Walter Wright.

A highlight of the evening's program was the presentation of a Life Membership Pin and Certificate to Mrs. Wright who became a member 40 years ago and through all these years has been "large in her thoughts, charitable in her works and kind in her deeds." An address was read to her by Mrs. Ken Muttart. A gift of an Institute Cook Book was presented to each of some former members who were present at the organization meeting, namely Mrs. William Trainor, Mrs. Henry Callbeck nda Mrs. George Burns, also one sent to Mrs. May Allen now residing in Vancouver, B.C., and who was a charter member.

Mrs. Aubrey Cutcliffe, Fredericton and a former convener of Home Economics was guest speaker and delighted her audience with a most interesting talk on the National Convention of the Federated Women's Institute held in Vancouver, B.C. last June and to which she was a delegate. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to her by Mrs. Leslie Waugh.

Thanks to the hostess and members of the Middleton W.I were also given by Mrs. George Affleck for their efforts put forth to help make this event a success.

All left for their homes challenged to keep in mind the high ideals and courage exemplified by the life of our founder, Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless, and to go forward working together for Home and Country.

Community Honors Citizen On Birthday

KENSINGTON — "Happy Birthday to You", sung by a goodly number of the residents of Irishtown-School District, greeted one of its senior citizens, Mr. H.B. MacLeod and his wife as they entered the community hall on Wednesday evening, Jan. 10, in response to a special invitation to be present.

Mr. Archie Johnstone on behalf of the gathering, explained to Mr. MacLeod who was completely taken by surprise, that the party was in honor of his 85th birthday, also that the people of the district were grateful for his services to the community, and his unfailing kindness, especially to the children.

A program followed which included contests, games and auction forty-fives, Julie and Gwendy Campbell sang two duets, accompanied by Mrs. Borden Campbell. Vocal selections by Lois, Leta and Donnie MacLeod were accompanied by Donnie on the guitar. Slides of P.E.I. scenes were shown by Archie Johnstone, who had the audience guess and write the location of each; later re-running the slides while he gave the correct location.

The guests of honor were then escorted to the platform by Lois MacLeod and Alan MacLeod. A pot of mums was presented to Mr. MacLeod by Mrs. Robert Stavert on behalf of the district. A box of chocolates from the children of the district was presented by Elizabeth Evans. A birthday cake made by Miss Millie Cousins, was presented by Mrs. Harold MacLeod.

Mr. MacLeod thanked everyone, especially the children, in a few heartfelt words. He said this was the third occasion in which he had been honored by the community, first when he settled here, and second when he "took on a wife", for which he had never been sorry as they had been very happy.

A singsong, lunch and dancing was enjoyed before the company finally dispersed after wishing Mr. MacLeod many more happy birthdays.

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD ROLAND COOLING

Nuptial Vows Exchanged In Double Ring Ceremony

Poinsettia, potted plants and Yuletide decorations created the floral setting in Summerside Trinity United Church for a pretty wedding on Saturday, Dec. 30, at 2.30 p.m., when Donna Agnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Colwill, Summerside, became the bride of Howard Roland Colling, son of Mrs. Harry Cooling and the late Mr. Cooling of Charles Station, N.B. Rev. C. R. Webber performed the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Eric Sheen was organist and accompanied Miss Edith Betton as she sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her street length wedding gown of white silk organza over taffeta, featuring fitted bodice buttoned down the back, long sleeves coming to points over the hands, scalloped neckline and a large bow at the waistline back. Her shoulder length veil was held in place with a headdress of sequins and pearls and she carried a cascade of red and white carnations.

Miss Helen Ford, as maid of honor, was gowned in red wool, gathered at the waist with unpressed pleats, round neckline and elbow length sleeves. Her headdress was a matching pillbox and she carried a semi-cascade of white 'mums. Miss Phyllis Colwill, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, was gowned in red identical to the maid of honor, with matching pillbox. She carried a semi-cascade of white 'mums.

Mr. Douglas Freeman was best man while William Brocklebank and Albert Cyr ushered the guests to their pews, which were marked with red nosegays on white doilies and tied with red ribbon.

Mrs. Colwill chose for her daughter's wedding a sheath dress of winter white, with fushia hat and gloves and a corsage of matching carnations. The groom's mother was gowned in brown wool with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations.

A reception for 65 guests was held in Epworth Hall, where the bride's table, with its attractive arrangement of lighted tapers, was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with doves and wedding rings. Miss Kathleen Ellis was in charge of the guest book. Assisting in serving were cousins of the bride Judy, Emily and Linda Colwill, Mildred Compton, Blanche Pauptit, and Ann Bell.

Waistline Return Is Fashion News For Spring

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP) — Fashions often draw inspiration from current conversation topics.

The twist dance and the Cleopatra movie are cases in point. But it is coincidental that the new oblique line and the flutter of drapery can be tagged to the dance craze.

Spring silhouettes were established months before the advent of the twist.

The Cleopatra motif showed up more strongly in costume jewellery than in clothes.

Twenty-five Canadian fashion editors attended this 38th semi-annual press week showing by the New York couture group, coming from Victoria, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Brandon, Toronto, Montreal, Niagara Falls and Val d'Or, Que.

WAISTLINE RETURNS

The fashion news, of course, was in the return of the waistline with many of the higher waist look. This is not the tight high-bosomed Empire silhouette of a few seasons back—so very difficult for most women to wear—but a gently lifted line.

This spring suits are again in their perennial top spot.

However there is no one silhouette. At least four styles seem to equal interest. There is the short jacket, the longer finger-tip sheath-like jacket and at the other extreme, the high-buttoned cutaway shape that is popular in both suits and the jacket of dress costumes. Lastly there is the double-breasted suit, particularly dramatic with brass buttons. This double-breasted silhouette carries over even into coats.

New coat treatments to watch are the high set-in sleeves and the slightly-longer sleeve itself.

Flutter is an important spring look, especially in layered chiffon for evening. Ruffles appeared on everything from hemlines to miniature evening capelets.

For spring prepare for an avalanche of ruffles and frills, soft white touches, color gamut of strong greens, sapphire blue, apricot, lots and lots of black for late day and continued interest in black and white.

WOMEN TRAPPERS

MERIGOMISH, N.S. (CP)—Two housewives of this northern Nova Scotia community each got their quota of five beaver pelts during the fall trapping season. Mrs. Charles Crosby and Mrs. Dorothy Stoneburgh, who went with Mr. Crosby on his trapline last year, decided to try it by themselves this year.

The year 1961 showed progress in the organization, and an honor roll financial achievement.

The officers for 1962 are: honorary president, Mrs. Samuel Campbell; president, Mrs. L. S. Webster; 1st vice - president, Mrs. H. J. Huggan; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Edwin Cook; secretary, Mrs. D. N. Ives; Tidings agent, Mrs. Charles Hamm; Tidings reporter, Mrs. David Weight; Baby Band superintendent, Mrs. Percy Sharam; reading course superintendent, Mrs. John Lewis; visitation, Mrs. Herbert Horne; membership, Mrs. P. J. Proud, Mrs. David Wright, Mrs. H. J. Huggan; chairman of program and music committee, Mrs. H. L. Mitton; pianist, Mrs. Albert E. Baker.

Following the business proceedings, Mrs. T. G. Ives with the aid of a map gave the lesson on India. She traced the history of the educational and medical evangelism of the Baptist missions from its begining to the present day. She presented a vivid and challenging picture of the work in the vast land of India.

Hostesses were: Mrs. Samuel Campbell, and Mrs. Percy Sharam. Mrs. Charles Hamm assisted in serving.

Park Royal UCW Group Elects Slate Of Officers

At a well attended meeting of the women of Park Royal congregation, which filled the church hall Jan. 10, it was resolved to reorganize immediately as "United Church Women" in keeping with the action of the Church on the National level. The former Women's Missionary Society and the Women's Association have been reorganized into what is believed a more effective arm of the church concerning women's work.

The report of the provisional committee, at work on the matter of the transition from the old to the new for several months, was received. This committee presented three recommendations. After lively discussion the following motions were enthusiastically approved by the meeting: First, that the congregation re-organize in districts (six in number). These districts would be zoned in an area of one or more streets. Within the district further divisions for the purpose of meetings and work would be made. These would be known as units - with at least two or more or as many as were necessary in any one district. Any woman would be free to attend the unit of her choice within the district in which she lived. The advantages of this plan were outlined to the meeting. It was voted to re-organize in this way immediately.

The second recommendation was for the acceptance of an allocation on the congregation. It was discussed and moved to be accepted as our share of the wider work of "United Church Women."

The third report was the recommendation of the nominating committee which was as follows: honorary president, Mrs. Neil Darrach; president, Mrs. John Mummery; 1st vice - president, Mrs. Louise Johnson; 2nd vice - president and convener of manse committee, Mrs. Arthur Campbell; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. Anne Ayers; secretary and convener of membership committee, Mrs. Anne MacLeod; treasurer, Mrs. Hilda Wright; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Hilda Stewart;

Committee conveners: Christian citizenship and social action, Mrs. Laurene Tye; community friendship and visiting, Mrs. Muriel Jenkins; co-operation in Christian education and missionary education, Mrs. Miriam West; finance, Mrs. Lorna Darrach; flowers, Mrs. Dorothy Crawford; literature and communications, Mrs. Edna Seaman, nominations, Mrs. Viny Pickard; press and publicity, Mrs. Edith Robinson; programs, Mrs. Martha Johnson; social functions, Mrs. Rita Howatt; stewardship and recruiting, Mrs. Marjorie Read; supply and social assistance, Mrs. Jean MacKay.

The women present then divided up into groups according to the district which they represented. In these groups plans were laid for the subdivisions, their officers and the place of the first organizational meeting.

The general meeting opened with a worship service conducted by the minister Rev. J. H. Tye, who also chaired the meeting.

A social hour was enjoyed and the members met those of their new groups. The Charter Roll was signed by all present. Many new ladies were welcomed to the fellowship of women's work at Park Royal. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks being extended by Mrs. Dean Read to the provisional committee and especially to the secretary, Mrs. Gladys Currie, for the extensive work that had been done in preparation for this meeting.

Good Furniture Can Be Planned To Suit Room

By EDNA BLAKELY

TORONTO (CP)—If women decorated their homes with the same care that they dressed, their homes would be much more attractive, says Harold Rosnick, a Toronto interior designer.

Instead of purchasing a piece of furniture and hoping it will fit into a room, the entire room should be planned in advance. Then the pieces can be purchased one at a time, but they will be co-ordinated.

"People wouldn't build a house without a plan and most women sew with a pattern and cook with a recipe but they buy furniture without a plan," Mr. Rosnick said.

Since most of the family's time is spent in the living room, den or playroom, Mr. Rosnick recommends that it be furnished first.

The best possible furniture should be obtained and it can be bought as the family can afford it.

Mr. Rosnick said he is annoyed by people who ask: "What are they showing?" He said good taste is not a matter of trends but the co-ordination of furniture and accessories into a room which reflects the personality of the owner.

CHANGES UNNECESSARY

Tasteful furniture did not have to be replaced often. "Anything good in design and quality doesn't have to change. It's only novelties that change."

If neutral shades were used for major items, the colored accessories could be easily changed.

Other simple changes could be made by switching the arrangement of the furniture.

The style or period of furniture should be chosen to suit the individual's taste. Traditional furniture offered elegance and timelessness.

Modern furniture was functional and easy to care for. Some pieces had dual roles such as benches that doubled as coffee tables. Because it is neat and simple, it could make a small room look spacious.

EASILY CHANGED

Swedish modern furniture was easily changed. Since springs were not used in chairs, the cushions could simply be recovered to change the whole color scheme of a room.

Oriental decor was extremely subtle and quiet. It was elegant and because of its proportions, suited apartments and small homes.

The Spanish influence saw the wide use of metal, screens and fibres. The brilliant colors could be used successfully for a warm, attractive room.

If television was to be in a room, the chairs should all have protective arm covers to save wear and tear on the chair.

MARY HAWORTH

Errant Spouse Returns; Wife Questions Staying

Dear Mary Haworth: My problem is my husband. He has been, and still is, in love with another woman for more than five years. He even let me and our three children for over a year to be with her. During that time he provided for us.

The children love him dearly and when they started to become emotionally unstable because of his absence he returned. However, where he was once full of energy and zest, now he is indifferent to everything.

I know he still sees her occasionally and she is always willing and waiting. We have been married 19 years and I am deathly afraid of losing him as the children get older.

I have tried everything to hold his interest, such as keeping the house and children sparkling and being attractively dressed when he comes home from work. I have also tried to learn more about his work, investments, which I find difficult, as I have little time for study since the children were small.

Here the other woman has the advantage of me, for she works in his field. In fact, they invested together and jointly owned several business enterprises.

He still carries pictures of her, which I haven't seen but he told me he has them, and I agreed he could keep them. Is there anything more I can do, that I haven't mentioned? Or should I just be patient and hope for the best? CS.

Dear C.S.: One of the most mature, potentially most rewarding things you can do—that you haven't mentioned—is to live each day to the full, in terms of peace and courtesy, love and joy; as if it might be the only day you were ever to have with your husband and children. Thus it will be a day well lived, without "deathly fear" of the unknowable future.

As of now, you are living not so much in the real present—in which your husband is restored to the family—as you are projecting into the future, worriedly, to a time imagined, when he and the children won't be with you. This amounts to trading the here-and-now for a kind of nightmare day dream; so that even today, you feel as if your husband is lost to you.

But the fact is, when your husband came home for the children's sake, he was closing the book on the other woman with unconscious finality (whatever his feelings at the time). She probably recognizes, if he does not, that any advantage she once possessed, in the formative phase of their romance, has now been spent.

An errant husband may return to a forgiving wife for various reasons—practical, sentimental, selfish, or unselfish—and in time to rebuild a good, or at any rate a mutually valued partnership. But seldom, if ever, does a man find his way back to a paramour once their alliance is set aside for any length of time, by rival demands upon feelings—as in this case.

Man is by nature conservative; and the persuasive pressures of law, order, duty, social approbation (or disapproval), the pull of respected traditions, etc., are powerfully influential in keeping him on—or restoring him to—the straight and narrow path of life. Such forces are working on your behalf.

Take for your guidance this wise and loving counsel of St. Francis de Sales: "Do not look forward to what may happen tomorrow; the same everlasting Father Who cares for you today will take care of your tomorrow and every day. Either He will shield you from suffering or He will give you unfailing strength to bear it. Be at peace then, put aside all anxious thoughts and imaginings." M.H.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Wisdom Of Older Folk Lives On In Generations

The younger farmer was missing from his usual haunts of work this afternoon—gone from the house across the lane to attend, with many another friend and admirer from town and country, the funeral of a veteran Island farmer in the city. This man loved the farming, loved the fields, and had that enviable way with the stock which is the mark of a master stockman and altogether indicates a good and merciful man. Much respected by a host of friends, he had a kind word for all.

"The young may die—the old must" we remember. And it is a pity, we reflect, that much our elder farmers have known: the truths proven, the lessons learned in a long lifetime, goes with them and is lost in the grave. Or are they? Not all. We listened in recently to a group of farmers discussing a matter of the farming, each one lending his view to the subject.

"Well" one commented at length, "I remember hearing Mr.— talk about that when I was just a bit of a boy—and he was hard to beat as a farmer. He said—"

So the words of these elder folks, the lore and wisdom gained are not all lost when Death calls, but live on and on in the minds and hearts of later generations.

"Mack ... Ma-ack." James called this afternoon from the back verandah to the lad who had just come by from school.

Mack left off his reading, reached for cap and mitts and met his Granddad at the door.

"So you are home! I wasn't quite sure you had come" James said. "We have to take that trailer-load of manure to the field—you and I. And go on from these to tend those cattle at the other barns, and put out some feed for the goats and sheep. And" he added eyeing the sky and shadowing hilltops "the day's slipping!— What were you reading?"

"The Funnies" Mack grinned a bit shyly.

"Not the Funnies!" James echoed with a chuckle. "And we with all that work to do before the night catches us!"

"We'll soon straighten that away" the youngster nodded as the pair set off to the barnyard.

It is done now—all the work of day: every animal fed and made comfortable, including the new herdsire welcomed today to this farm. Only young yet, he is quite an attractive fellow and friendly, though as the months add to his stature, we know we shall see "Beware!" written plainly on his forehead.

"I hope he will be as kind as this older one" Mack offered, reaching in over the bars of his stall to pet him. "He's always as quiet as a kitten, isn't he, Gran'daddy?" he appealed to James.

James shook his head. "You never know. It doesn't pay to trust any of them, no matter how well-mannered they seem to be—no, no herdsire, ever, whatever his color or breed. And don't forget that!" he nodded.

And the weather so mild of late, it gave us a tantalizing glimpse of spring, has all at once turned colder. Tonight, we are back to winter again.

Until tomorrow—Diary—Goodnight.
