

MR. AND MRS. GRAFTON L. BERTRAM

Bertram-McMann Wedding Solemnized In Alberta

On August 26, 1958, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McMann, Carbon, Alta., was the scene of a quiet wedding when their eldest daughter Shirley Ruth was united in marriage to Grafton Lea Bertram, son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurie Bertram, Fredericton, P. E. I. The Rev. W. Muelor officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a fitted tan suit, with shoes, hat and gloves in all-white. She had a corsage of blue carnations.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Alois Sterns, was bridesmaid. She wore a powder-blue suit and white accessories. Her corsage was pink carnations.

Mr. Fred Lamont of Calgary, and formerly of P. E. I., attended the groom.

About forty-five guests attended the reception held at the Silver Spike Banquet Room in Drumheller, Mr. A. Barreth of Buseker, Alberta acted as master of ceremonies. Fred Ramont proposed the toast to the bride.

The couple then left for P.E.I. on their honeymoon, where they spent some time with the groom's parents, before their departure for the Middle East, where they will spend two years. After which they plan to make their home in Alberta.

CLYDE RIVER W.M.S.

On Sunday evening, November 2nd, 1958, the Women's Missionary Society of the Clyde River Baptist Church, held a thank-offering service. Mrs. J. Heber MacPhail presided. Mrs. W. A. MacLean, offered prayer and Mrs. R. D. Matheson read the scripture.

The speaker for the evening was Mrs. H. L. Mitton. The Missionary work at home, and in India, Bolivia, and Angola became more vital to all who heard.

Mrs. C. T. Vallis and Mr. Sterling Inman contributed the special music for the evening. The accompanists were: Mrs. Daniel MacNeill and Miss Florence Simmons.

Afterwards those who helped with the service were guests of the Women's Missionary Society at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Matheson. A social hour and sing-song were enjoyed by all.

It's So Easy To Serve Meals That Look Good

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN

"Are most homemakers careful to garnish and present foods attractively, Madame?" asked the Chef.

"Not always for the family," I replied. "However, they are careful to garnish. Let's consider the following menu as to the right and wrong presentation of the foods."

Tomorrow's oven dinner: Tossed salad bowl, oven-braised veal chops, casserole sweet potatoes, green limas with whole green beans, jellied stuffed peaches, coffee, tea, milk.

"The tossed salad bowl should be well chilled, Madame, the dressing tossed with the greens until it is absorbed. A top garnish should be added for color and interest. The greens should never 'slouch' in the bowl."

The oven-braised veal chops should be presented in a deep platter, gravy spooned around, a garnish of lemon slices and parsley at the edge. Never should there be a drop or smear of gravy on the edge of the platter!"

"The jellied stuffed peaches will look as beautiful as a magazine picture if they are cut into neat, shimmering squares, arranged in low glass dishes and smartly garnished with whipped cream."

"Bread slices should be cut in halves and neatly stacked, not sprawled on the plate.

"Coffee should never, never be slipped over into the saucer!"

Jellied stuff peaches: Evenly fill the hollows of six peeled halves of fresh or canned peaches with a mixture of chopped dates, nuts and green grapes or other fruit.

Make up 1 pkg. raspberry or lemon-flavored gelatin. Pour enough into an 8 x 8-in. pan to barely cover the bottom.

Arrange the peaches in the pan round-side up. Then carefully pour in remaining gelatin.

Refrigerate 4 hrs., or until firm.

To serve, cut in squares, a peach half centered in each portion, and place in shallow dessert dishes.

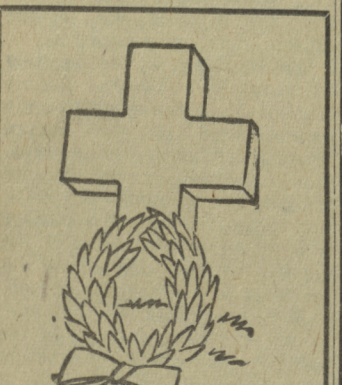

For the garnish, use a drift of chopped nuts or cookie crumbs and sweetened whipped cream or dairy sour cream, dusted with cinnamon. Serves 6.

TRICK OF THE CHEF

Cook green limas and whole green beans together about 35 min., in covered saucepan containing 1 in. boiling salted water and ½ tsp. rosemary.

Finish with a swirl of butter, preferably unsalted butter.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Brighteyed And Smiling, We Still Remember Them

"Down the old road, alone he reappears, His promised word he keeps; All's well, for over there among his peers A happy warrior sleeps."

Today they will reappear, come back in memories of kin and friends. Yes, all those whom the day pauses to honor. Up country lanes they will come, down a city street, once more home again. As when they went, bright-eyed, smiling, young, ever young.

"And there was . . . and a nice lad he was" James will say as the season of Remembrance returns to our conversation the names of the fallen heroes of the war-times we knew. And remembering, we shall see in mind the shafts of the cenotaphs rising heavenward in the sunlight, not only in this and adjacent districts but Island-over and far and wide where in proud inscriptions these keep the names of the gallant dead.

Not only on Armistice Day but often we speak of them with James — the boy of this or that farm of the district and others bereaved. And the children listen. "What was he like—the boy who never came home?" they ask.

And though he may have been long years gone, we find him still young-eternally youthful, the lad who with his comrades in arms, risked all, sacrificed all, even youth itself, that the world might remain free—the world that they knew.

Always young. Face, frame acknowledging no wear of the passing years, eyes lustrous, heads still unsilvered. So they remain in memory, those whom this Day remembers and honors. In his "Requiem" an Island boy of once Edgar McInnis has written:

"Sleep on, brave heart, they broken sword beside thee! The last red breach is stormed. Ther is no strife nor Sacrifice denied thee No trumpets' call to fierce assault again. Now with our bright blades sheathed And colours laurel-wreathed We come, thy comrades in the trampling flight And bear thee with a long proud song To the deep house of night."

Sleep on, brave heart! Our case is ours no longer. The world we saved rolls on without our aid. We fought for right, but hate and fear are stronger. We dreamed of peace, and dreams have been betrayed. But never troubled breath, can touch, these, who in death

Blow mute above thy buried Memory. Thou wilt not wake to the glorious morrow That mocks our anguish and our victory. Thy daring and thy pain, thy youth for visions slain.
