Colorful Spring Marriage Solemnized At O'Leary

O'Leary United Church, O'Leary, The flower girl was Miss Katherine Fraser of Halifax, N.S. The matron-of-honor wore a floor length gown, and the bridesmaids donned sheaths all of red, blue and white. The bride wore a white tulle and carried a basket of white and yellow mums. The best man was Cpl. W.A.R. MacDonald of Borden. The ushers were Cpl. Reginald Leach of Charlottetown and Cst. William Rowan of Summerside. For the reception at the Royal Canadian Legion at Summerside the bride's mother received wearing a sheath of beige metallic brocade with green and rose accessories and a corsage of red roses. The bridegroom's mother was in a pink linen sheath with a white hat and flowers of pink and white. For a honeymoon to New England and Ontario the bride chose a beige wool suit with brown and green accessories. The bridegroom's mother was in a white and green ensemble. (Photo by Heckbert Studio)

ELLEN'S DIARY

Anniversary Milestone Brings Great Happiness

What does it mean to a pair privileged to reach that far milestone of the way, which is the 60th anniversary of their marriage? We consider this one that we have just returned from attending such an event. Come from a city-home, we have, where to honor it, family and friends from near and far had forgotten this evening to join in that happiness which marks the occasion. We homed through a shower, a "growing shower" as we on farms say, one which came in good time to encourage bald and leaf. It will bring green in feathers the joy of grainbirds. Turnip seedlings will now meet the master's eye, in a long suit along his drills, as will the potatoes early planted. And on the pastures, the cattle will be bathed and clean.

What does this anniversary a year mean to a pair to whom the years have been kind? To both, we believe, it means a great happiness. They must indeed be glad, grateful to Providence, who had brought them both in good health to see this day.

She is a kind, motherly woman, with room in her heart and sympathy, and a helping hand for every babe and child, and a right touch, she held a two-month great-grandchild in her arms, with a smile that said the love he brought with him? Remembering too, as she looked back along the years, the lovely incidents of the everyday living, which remains with one who has mothered a large family? The years do not cross too, the passing of loved ones, which is a manner dim with time, but can return so easily and with a clarity to mind? And throughout all of life to remain a fine companion to the good husband he had wed; to be content with the affection of family and kin-folk, a circumstance which is the reward, of the outgoing self.

Shall we describe this bride of 60 years? She is neither short nor tall, pleasingly plump, her hair as white as snow, arranged prettily, glowing attractively for the event in a dark blue gown, her pink corsage matched pink in her cheeks. What marvels these are—these older couples who have together, yes, hand in hand, met valiantly the vicissitudes of life! Who have loved well and truly, and learned so much of life and its ways.

If we could only take up wedded life, with their knowledge of what to make it a success! A young matron signed I to a light. "But each couple has to live and learn" for themselves. And sometimes, I think, it is the hard way, with a quiver of doubt and stubbornness, neither willing to make a compromise over some issue that will in time be won wasn't worth the breaths they once wasted over it."

"And this is certain" an older woman offered, "both must feel something for they must wish each succeeding year may I and e e d be for them, the best year of all!" Until tomorrow — Diary — Good-night....
