statement said. The emergency power bill would place the government in a position to act swiftly in a crisis without consulting parliament. It might take the form of the "Defence of the Realm" Act which was passed in August, 1914, and which placed all the latent powers of the crown in the hands of the ministry.

The government is expected to use it immediately to place an embargo against the export of copper, nickel and rubber to Germany. In recent weeks German agents have been buying vast quantities of these war essentials, depleting the British holdings. Scrap iron also may be included in the ban.

The government may go ahead with its plan to compile a register of every man, woman and child in the country, primarily for military reasons but also as a safeguard against espionage.

Under it every person would be given an identity card which would form the basis for wartime rationing schemes. So much preliminary work has been done on a national card index that it could be completed within two weeks.

A statement issued at No. 10 Downing Street after the cabinet meeting said more men would be called up for the army, navy, air force and civil defence squads. No estimate was made but a figure of 200,000 was mentioned in unofficial circles. This would give Great Britain a standing army of nearly 1,000,000 men.

This announcement, made a few hours after France called up fresh reserves, was the reply of the western powers to German troop concentrations along the Polish frontier and the Reich's increased demands on Poland for Danzig, the Polish Corridor and Silesia.

British Policy Stiffens

Everything connected with the cabinet's decisions indicated a decided stiffening of British policy, a determination to stand by the Poles against any German ultimatum and to prepare for anything that may come.

Crowds gathered in Downing Street and cheered the ministers as they left the cabinet meeting. European stock markets continued to suffer war jitters.

The British statement declared there was nothing in the present situation which would justify the use of force involving a European war with all its tragic consequences.

It added, however, that if others "insist on the use of force" Britain is "prepared and determined to resist it to the utmost."

The British government, the statement added, "had no hesitation in deciding that such an event (signing of a Soviet Russian-German non-aggression pact) would in no way affect their obligations to Poland which they have repeatedly stated in public and which they are determined to fulfill."

The statement was broadcast in German in the hope that it might make clear Britain's attitude to the German people.

Members of parliament were summoned in a dramatic radio announcement of the cabinet's decision.

Prime Minister Chamberlain was expected to make a detailed statement on the European situation in the House of Commons which will meet Thursday afternoon at 2:45 P.M., British summer time, (10:45 A. M. EDT.)

He indicated he would try to push the emergency defence bill through both houses in one day. Parliament, however, may meet daily as long as the crisis continues.

Among the diplomats calling at the British foreign office during the day were the German and Italian Charges d'Affaires and the Japanese Ambassador.

The United States ambassador Joseph P. M. Kennedy flew back to London from the French Riviera where he had been on vacation for three weeks.

No decisions were taken by Britain or France regarding resumption of talks with Russia on the proposed tri-power mutual assistance pact. London and Paris were awaiting more detailed reports as to the nature of the German-Russian agreement.

The British and French military missions are remaining in Moscow but they had no meeting with the Soviet representatives today.

Russian circles in London said the non-aggression pact would be no bar to continuation of British-French negotiations in Moscow.

French officials remained silent on the German-Russian pact, but France was believed to be following "the same policy as Britain."

Meanwhile, German and Polish troops continued massing along the borders of the two countries and the German foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, was en route to Moscow to sign the surprise pact.

Girls, and the remaining twenty-five are Senior subdivisions. The total membership is about sixteen hundred.

GIRL GUIDES

"There were several new companies of Girl Guides and Brownies in the Province. The National President, executive officers and our members for their assistance and co-operation."

Education, Scholarship and Study Clubs

"The fostering of Education is one of the primary objects of the Catholic Women's League, and the stimulating of interest in the study of the organization in former years has not grown less during the year just closed.

The usual school prizes were awarded, and prizes were also given for Catechism, which in many subdivisions has been taught by our members. The Adult Education Movement has been favored in many of our subdivisions. At first the words "Education" and "Study" were looked upon by the adult as something which only grew on its own, but I think we are beginning to understand that as long as we live, we should be increasing our knowledge, and that membership in a study club is only another way of living. Nine subdivisions, with forty-three (43) groups and five hundred and four (504) members, have reported work of this kind. Among the subjects studied were The Mass, Economics, Liturgy, Catholic Literature, Handicraft and Current Events.

Social Service and Child Welfare

"As usual our members were called upon to do a large amount of social service work, especially in the towns, and during the winter months. Shoes and clothing were provided where needed, and milk, cocoa and tobacco were sent to undernourished children attending school. Newspapers, magazines and religious articles were supplied to inmates of the Infirmary, and fruit, candy and tobacco were sent them at Christmas. The social service work in connection with the Charlottetown Hospital was assisted by members, who met weekly and sewed for the Poor. Numerous families assisted in this way, would be otherwise very badly in need. Cash donations also were sent to relieve those in distress.

Citizenship and Book Review

"The work in connection with citizenship and book review has been carried on faithfully. Libraries and book-stands have been visited with the object of removing incense and immoral literature. Our members take a livelier interest in civic, provincial, and federal affairs, in a non-partisan way and they have representation on school boards and patriotic societies.

Religion

"Church Committees have been very diligent in the performance of their duties in this particular sphere. Requiem Masses have been celebrated for deceased members; masses were offered also for living members on their feast day, April twenty-sixth. During the past year we were called upon to mourn the death of our beloved Pontiff Pope Pius XI. On this occasión Mass, recommended by the Diocesan Council, was offered for the repose of Our National Executive Secretary, Miss Eva Dillon, was called away also, since our last convention, and for her soul also a Mass was offered.

Magazine

"Under present conditions, and owing to the many demands made on the members, for help, it is rather difficult to secure new subscriptions for the magazine.

Lay Retreat

"In September our members had the privilege of attending a Diocesan Closed Retreat, held at Beach Grove Inn. This Retreat was conducted by Rev. Daniel O'Sullivan, C. S. R., and was very successful.

Publicity

"The work of the Catholic Women's League had been reported in the press by local convenors in conjunction with our Diocesan Convener. We aim to present a record of our work to the public in the best way, that interest is stimulated and further information sought by non-members, and also by people in other parishes where the Catholic Women's League has not as yet taken root.

Finance

"During the year the amount raised by the subdivisions was in the vicinity of nine thousand dollars, of which has been $5 per cent of which has been used for parish and social service work. Nearly all subdivisions have been faithful to their obligations. We are pleased to report that many subdivisions have made donations to the St. Martha Building Fund. Donations have been sent also to the Dispensary, the Prince Edward Is. Tuberculosis League, the Orphanage, the Santa Paul Fund and to the Monastery of the Precious Blood.

Junior and Business Girls

"Our Junior Subdivision in operation now two years, shows a dollar very co-operation, and the Business Girls subdivision continues to carry on very successfully and its members take an active part in all parochial work.

Convention

"Our Diocesan Convention was held in August 25-26, 1938, at St. Dunstan's University. Representatives from twenty-one subdivisions answered the roll call at the first meeting. Reports were sent from all subdivisions. The sessions were interesting, and the discussion lively. The convention was pronounced by all to be a grand success.

Thanks

"In conclusion we wish to express our thanks to our Beloved Bishop Diocesan Chaplain and to all subdivision Chaplains for their counsel, and to our National President, executive officers and our members for their assistance and co-operation."

JURY RETURNS

Dr. Giddings and Dr. Yeo, who performed an autopsy on the body of Mrs. Large, reported their findings. The full report was read by Dr. Giddings and corroborated by Dr. Yeo. Two bullet wounds were found, one missile entering from the right shoulder and travelling to the lower part of the neck. The other bullet penetrated the left side, passed through the heart and left lung, lodging in the base of the right lung. It was the latter wound which caused death, the medical authorities said. The other wound was not necessarily fatal.

Both bullets were located and were produced in court.

The wound in the back was "almost impossible to locate" and was identified declared when questioned by a jurymen.

Dr. McKenzie told of being called to the Chandler home very shortly after 2 o'clock Friday last. He found a man and a woman lying in the hall. The woman was on her back on the right of the witness, the man was on the left. A revolver was between the woman's legs, below the knees. Examination revealed the injured woman was dead, the witness said. The man was lying on his face, close to the woman, with his head in the same direction, towards the front door.

Dr. McKenzie told how, when he turned the man over on his back to further examine him he opened his eyes and moved his arms.

The ambulance was then ordered and the injured man removed to hospital.

Dr. Howatt, who treated the injured man, said his wound was on the left side of the chest.

"Shots And Terrible Screams"

Mrs. H. M. Chandler, mother of the dead woman testified she was upstairs lying down when she heard "shots and dreadful screams." She was not certain which she heard first. She ran down the stairs and found her daughter and Roy Large lying there. She put her hand under her daughter's head and saw blood coming through her clothing.

The phone was right above the body of her daughter and she screamed into it to "get a doctor or the police there's murder here."

Mrs. Chandler said she did not know of anyone being in the house except the family and had not heard a sound, even of conversation until she heard the "shots and terrible screams."

The first shot she heard she thought was an explosion somewhere, she said.

Const. L. A. McInnis told of picking up the revolver on the day of the shooting and turning it over to Detective Corp. Cordwell of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Five discharged and one live shell were in the gun he said. It was lying between the dead woman's legs just below the knees. Roy Large's arm was towards the gun and across the woman's right leg with the fingers about four inches from the gun. A blood stained paper and pencil were on the floor also. The paper pertained to a divorce and the custody of a child, the witness said.

Joan Chandler, 16-year-old sister of the dead woman told the jury she was sleeping on the sun porch when the shooting occurred. The shots woke her up. She heard no screams. Sometime before then the phone rang and her sister answered it, the witness said. In reply to a question Mrs. Large replied that it was Roy on the phone and he wanted to give her a paper.

Sold Cartridges

L. A. Diamond, clerk at Pennell & Chandler's hardware store told of selling six centre fire 32 cartridges to Roy Large about 1-25 on the afternoon of the shooting. Large when idly questioned by the clerk said he wanted the ammunition to shoot a horse which had broken his leg at Fred Cameron's stables, Upton.

At that time Large appeared perfectly normal. He was calm and did not appear to be drinking, the witness said.

Mrs. William Tred, who lived adjacent to the Chandler home testified she heard Joan Chandler yelling following a report which she believed at the time was an explosion. She ran to the Chandler home and found Mrs. Chandler kneeling on the floor holding her daughter's head. Questioned as to what happened Mrs. Chandler replied "he shot her" the witness said, and questioned whom? answered "Roy Large."

At this point Mr. J. J. Johnston interrupted proceedings to explain he was representing Roy Large, whom he said was "even now charged with murder." Mr. Johnston said he objected to including evidence of conversation between the witness and a third party when the accused was not present or at least not in a position to know what was taking place.

Dr. McGuigan, Coroner, instructed the official stenographers to strike the evidence of conversation from the records.

Large "Drinking" Witness Says

Fred Cameron, Upton Farm horseman testified he had a gun from Roy Large, his nephew, about a year ago. He got it to shoot a horse but did not use the weapon as the animal recovered. Large asked for it about four weeks later. It was a .32, the witness said, but he did not know if it was the same gun as the one produced in court. He had not examined it, he said, simply put it in a drawer and left it there until Large asked for it.

He saw Roy Large the day of the shooting, he said, at the home of Margie's father, his brother-in-law. He had dinner there each day during Exhibition week and saw Large on each day. Large had been drinking, including Friday.

Roy did not eat any dinner Friday, the witness said. He seemed "all riled up" about the court proceedings that morning concerning the child, the witness said.

Reta Dowling, who was walking along the street not far from the shooting, he said, at the home of Margie's father, his brother-in-law. He had dinner there each day during Exhibition week and saw Large on each day. Large had been drinking, including Friday.

Grasshopper Menace

As many fields are infested with grasshoppers we are asking the farmers to keep a look out for same. If they find any destruction of crops, we would advise using poison mash. This Department is absorbing part of the cost of this treatment.

Directions can be obtained from our Department or from the Entomological Laboratory, Experimental Farm.

Chandler home at the time of the shooting described what she heard as two shots close together and then a short pause and another. She heard "at least three" shots, she said.

The weapon used in the shooting was a .32 Harrington & Richardson side-loading center fire gun, Detective Corporal Cordwell of the R. C. M. P. testified. There was "no evidence of fingerprints on the gun," he said.

No Change In Hudson Bay Insurance Rates

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.—(CP)—There will be no increase in the insurance rates on shipping out of Hudson Bay this season but a reduction may come in 1940 if 20 or more cargoes are taken from Churchill without mishap this year.

The Imperial Shipping Committee which examines marine insurance rates each year in London, making its announcement through the Transport Department here today, said the Hudson Bay route "need not be considered more risky than the St. Lawrence," apart from the delay in getting salvage if a mishap occurred late in the season.

High rates of insurance on shipping through Hudson Strait have been subject of examination by the Imperial Shipping Committee almost annually for a number of years, and there have been some reductions as aids to navigation were perfected and use of the gyro-compass resulted in numerous safe passages by grain carriers in and out of Churchill.

Because of the small number of cargoes taken from Churchill in 1937 and today's report covers both 1937 and 1938.

Grain taken from Churchill is usually made up of that stored in the elevator from the previous crop and some from the current harvest, the shipping season being restricted to August and September.

In 1937 two cargoes were taken in August and none in September, and in 1938 there were three cargoes taken, all in September. Vessels using the port are aided by the ice-breaker N. B. MacLean which patrols the Strait each summer.

During the nine seasons since the route opened there have been 64 voyages to Churchill in our opinion the stage of development may now be considered as over," the report says.

The way is adequately charted and equipped with the usual aids to navigation, and the exceptional circumstances on account of which the warranty is imposed — ice, fog and magnetic disturbances — are known and have been provided against by the Gyro Compass, direction finding by radio and the very efficient services of the Canadian Patrol vessels."

HOTEL PERFORMANCE

LONDON.—(CP)—A horse doing tricks in the reception room of a Strand hotel attracted the attention of passersby here. It was Champion, the mount of Gene Autry, American motion picture star who is staying at the same hotel where Tom Mix stayed with his trick horse years ago.

Fourteen persons—10 of the 12 passengers, and the entire crew of 4—died when the Pan-American "baby clipper," above, crashed in the harbor of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Gliding down for a landing after a flight from Miami, Fla., the twin-engined Sikorsky amphibian struck a submerged dredger. Part sank immediately, the rest burned to a charred mass.

Among the 14 persons killed when the Miami-Buenos Aires airliner crashed in Rio de Janeiro harbor was Professor James H. vey Rogers, of Yale University, one of the country's most noted authors on monetary affairs, and one-time unofficial economic advisor to President Roosevelt. Also among the dead were the commander of the ship, Captain A. G. Person and his co-pilot, George B. King, both of Coral Gables, Fla. Captain Person was a veteran of more than a million miles of flying without an accident.
