No Change Is Foreseen In Coliseum Week Dates

By NEIL A. MATHESON
Provident farm Editor
There seems to be little prospect, it was learned yesterday of the Home Week being moved from mid-August to a September date, as suggested by the Prince Edward Island Tourist Association in a brief this week to the P.E.I. Legislature.
Talks with men like Cecil Stewart, president; H.J. Kennedy, general manager of the show; Frank Acorn, secretary and treasurer, indicated the show people feel there are no prospects of a change in the date of making the change. Agriculture Minister Andrew MacIver said that he could see why the fair people deem it unwise to revert to a September date.

Livestock Director, L.W. Roper, had some comments on the livestock show's viewpoint. He said that the show originally was held in early October when it was started in 1883. It shifted to the late September date usually started around September 15 and was shifted later to the mid-August date. Mr. Stewart noted that Old Home Week has built up a major tourist attraction in the mid-August period. It's a time when the holiday season makes it possible for many people to return to the province, and for most to come each year.

But the early September opening period effective in 1962, was the best of most of these people. They have to get home to let their children return to school. "And we can't compete with school needs," one spokesman said.

Foreign Buying Of Bond Issues Shows Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal government urgins and actions apparently have succeeded in limiting new bond borrowings in other countries by provinces municipalities. But the amount of foreign investment in new Canadian bond issues increased sharply last year.

These facts stood out in a report today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics which showed a net capital inflow of $276,000,000 last year from stock and bond transactions between Canada and other countries.

CONTRAST IN READERS, NEWSPAPERS

The younger and the older generation in both readers and newspapers are displayed here as Miss Edith Eldershaw, Tignish, turned several papers dated 1915. Mr. Doyle, an ardent reader of the Guardian for many years, and who likes his age to remain a secret, can well remember the content of the news contained in the old paper. One

Mayor Says Housing Plan Is Tied To Redevelopment

"You cannot have any intelligent appraisal of our housing needs here until we have an adequate housing survey," Mayor A. Walthen Gaudet said yesterday. He added that any move towards municipal housing should not be made without full consideration of all factors involved.

Mayor Gaudet stated it was not simply a municipal housing matter as it was of necessity tied to a redevelopment plan. "The survey will graphically show where our present housing is and where any redevelopment should come," he said.

Because of this necessary factor, the housing plan had to be tied to a redevelopment project. The mayor expressed regret at the delay in having the housing survey completed and a step up in obtaining the maps which were such a vital part. However, said the mayor was expected shortly, and council will now vote on what direction to proceed.

Recalling that housing was a part of his platform when running for election two years ago, he said that within two weeks he had convened a meeting with the officials of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. and the then Mayor of Halifax, Mr. Vaughan.

He said it was the feeling of this informal meeting that a municipal housing plan for Charlottetown should be aimed at providing for rental units no higher than $45 a month. These people - "senior citizens," he said - are the ones who are most in need of help.

Regarding them, he said that any contemplated housing must, of necessity, be kept near the center of the city. "These people do not have cars and cannot afford to take them to the doctors or to church; they have to walk."

'Mommism' Is Seen One Major Cause Of Delinquency

WINNIPEG (CP) — Louise Lynch, a lawyer from Saint John, N.B., and the only woman member of the national parole board, said Friday that the dominance of the mother in the home is one of the major causes of juvenile delinquency.

She said in an interview that to a great extent it is the male's own fault he surrenders his family authority.

"I wouldn't want to go back to the Victorian father, in whose presence you wouldn't dare breathe," she said. "But that Dagwood comic strip is a dangerous, insidious thing, sapping the very foundations of the home."
