DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,

The Weather in May.

WHAT MAY BE EXPECTED AT SEA DURING THE MONTH.

The advance sheets of the pilot chart of the North Atlantic Ocean for May gives the appended forecast of the weather that may be expected at sea during the month : Fair weather will prevail generally over the North Atlantic, with occasional northern gales along the American coast and moderate gales along the Transatlantic steamship routes, north 40th parallel. Northers in the Gulf of Mexico will occur less frequently and will not last long, but are liable to be of great violence. There will be a notable increase of fog off the Grand Banks and to the westward of the 60th meridian. The northeast trades will extend farther the northward.

A copy of the chart is devoted to northern weather and ice, and on this subject the report reads :—

Observers at stations along the east coast of Newfoundland report an absence of northern ice along that class. One berg was sighted off Cabot Island on February 5th. The harbors on the south and east coast have remained open all winter.

Vessels arriving by the high northern routes from the north of Scotland have not sighted any ice to speak of during April.

This absence of ice and the reported moderate weather in the northern latitudes stamp the season so far as a remarkable one, especially when contrasted with the severe winter in the United States, where the harbors on the east coast as far south as Norfolk were frozen over for weeks. As no reports have been received from the vicinity of Davis' straits, it may be that some bergs will be sighted off Belle Isle and to the eastward along the 50th parallel as far as the 42nd meredian during the latter part of May and in early June.

On the subject of the currents of the north Atlantic a chapter is devoted, which reads in part as follows :

It is contemplated to publish a small subchart on the next pilot chart to illustrate the general features of the currents of the North Atlantic, and to encourage our voluntary observers to continue their co operation.

In some parts of the North Atlantic there is considerable conflict in regard to the strength and direction of the current, especially of those in the Bay of Biscay.

The fact is, that the currents in the Bay of Biscay depend largely on the direction of the wind. During May the forecast indicates that the wind will blow one-half of the month from the north east and the rest from the south south west.

A large volume of water flows into the Bay of Biscay from the gulf stream, and it flows out again, some by the way of Brest and some by way of Cape Finisterre.

During the past five years there were 176 vessels of the British merchant marine wrecked on the north coast of Spain and Portugal. Much of this loss may have been caused by too much reliance on the force and direction of the currents as shown on the chart.

The direction and force of the wind must always be considered with reference to all the currents of the North Atlantic.

Don't Stuff a Cold.

If you do you will, nine times in ten, have a fever to starve. A cold is a shock received by the myriad nerves that bristle near the surface of a human body. This shock is transmitted to the nerve centres, and then back to the mucous membranes, forcing a great amount of blood to those membranes, creating a more or less severe irritation, and consequent rise in the temperature, followed by chills. Excess of food in the stomach still more increases the temperature ; and, worst of all, helps clog the secretions or natural outlets of the body. It is high time we broke away from an old notion which, like some others, has done more harm than good. For example, in years past how many poor fever sufferers, burning with an internal fire and thirst, were hurried to an untimely grave because not allowed cooling drinks or a bit of ice by the old time treatment for fevers, as foolish as the adage for fools. At last one cunning delirious patient got to a pump of cold water and drank his fill; determined not to leave until the well ran dry, he slacked the fever, recovered, and doctors learned a lesson. Experimenting with a severe cold is a dangerous custom, as most persons try one remedy only until some friend suggests another "sure cure," as Mark Twain so humorously describes. When slight hoarseness or tightening of the nasal membranes warns one of a skin exposure or chill from wet, act promptly; a delay is dangerous. With children it may mean croup and strangulation; with adults, catarrh, bronchitis, perhaps pneumonia. If neglected, nothing can prevent the sneezing, red nose and woe begone look of a person with a cold. Scores of mothers would as soon go to bed without matches in the house as without that old-fashioned remedy, Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, near at hand for croupy children. Used with a mild laxative, as described in a pamphlet which I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., will send free to anyone. Johnson's Liniment will cure a cold for adults quicker than any known remedy. A mild, nutritious diet, a gentle physic to open the secretions, and a bottle of that old Anodyne from your druggist, will conquer any cold. Johnson's Anodyne Linimentwas originated by an old family physician more than seventy years ago.

A Cruel Disappointment.

A KENTVILLE BOY SNATCHED FROM HIS BRIDE AT THE ALTAR.

According to a recent despatch from Montreal, all the city is talking of an escapade which some call a lucky escape, and others say is a case of kidnapping. Last September, George Leary Huntingdon, of Cold Brook, King's County, N. S., entered McGill as a student of applied science, boarding with Mrs. Harris, 21 Brunswick Street, who had a pretty daughter named Ruth. Some days ago the young man's parents learned through the McGill authorities that Miss Harris and the student were to be married, and a mental dread of the alliance in question having seized upon them, very severe measures to prevent the wedding were resorted to. At 7.30 p. m. the bridal party, consisting of Mrs. and Miss Harris, young Huntingdon and a Mrs. Collins, started off on foot for the residence of Rev. James Fleet, pastor of Knox Church, who had agreed to tie the knot at 8 o'clock. In the meantime Dr. Kelly, of the High School, and Professor McLeod, of McGill, had already reached the clergyman's home, and when the intended groom, who does not appear to be possessed of much will power, arrived, he was importuned a little and threatened a good deal more, and finally, amid the shrieks of the daughter and the indignant remonstrance of the mother, hustled into a cab and was driven to the residence of Detective Grosse, a mile away, followed by Mrs. and Miss Harris. Grosse told the ladies that the young man was not there, and they returned disappointed and very mad to the city. Huntingdon had however, escaped through the back door, drove to St. Henri and boarded, as pale as a ghost, the east bound train for Nova Scotia. Mrs. Harris and daughter dwell most eloquently upon the wickedness of those who dragged the Cold Brook boy from the very arms of his promised wife; while the McGill people assert that the student was unduly influenced by Mrs. Harris, and add that Huntingdon told Detective Grosse that if he had married Miss Harris he would have left for the States the following morning. The ladies in question threaten all sorts of things in the way of law suits.

Protest Against Home Rule.

LONDON BROKERS MAKE AN UNUSUAL DEMONSTRATION.

London was the scene of an unusual demonstration on Wednesday last. Eight hundred brokers, headed by leaders bearing the Union Jack flag and wearing Union Jacks of paper in their hats, in token of their devotion to the cause of the union and their opposition to Irish Home Rule, marched in procession from the Stock Exchange to a Unionists' meeting in Guildhall. Upon reaching Guildhall and before entering, the brokers sang the anthem "Rule Brittania," and cheered loudly for the union, for Lord Salisbury and other Unionist leaders. A crowd assembled evidently not in sympathy with the brokers, and lent variety to the cheers by occasional hoots.

The Guildhall was thronged with unionists. As Lord Mayor Knill, the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain and other prominent men were entering, part of the platform collapsed and scores of people fell, but none were seriously injured. Mr. Chamberlain delivered an address in which he reiterated his prophecies of financial ruin as the outcome of Irish home rule. Mr. Chamberlain was constantly cheered by his auditors. He declared that the Irish demands on the Imperial Parliament would be unending, especially when Great Britain should be involved in war. He declared also that notwithstanding the protests of Irish Nationalists a co-ordinate executive in Ireland must ultimately follow as the result of the home rule.

Prepare for the Worst.

DR. JANEWAY'S ADVICE RESPECTING THE COMING OF CHOLERA.

In speaking of the likelihood of cholera gaining a foothold in America this year, Dr. Janway of New York tersely advises everybody to be prepared for the worst. This may seem at the first glance the talk of an alarmist, but it is in reality sound advice. There is no cause for panic, but a systematic preparation in view of a possible epidemic of cholera is really essential. Quarantine regulations need to be observed. The work of the scavenger should extend to every hole and corner of cities and towns. An uncontaminated water supply is essential. The matter of sewerage is important. But there is yet another and also very important consideration. It is an undisputed fact that disease of any kind, and especially such a plague as cholera, will foster most quickly, and with the most deadly effect, upon an already diseased or debilitated system. It therefore becomes the duty of every person to as far as possible secure himself or herself from its ravages, by confronting the dreaded enemy with a strong and healthy physical system. Comparatively few persons find themselves in that condition at this season of the year. The vast majority, indeed it may be said that all persons, find it necessary to fortify themselves by the use of some remedial agency, to restore lost vigor and vitality and so be literally prepared for the worst. The grateful testimony of thousands has established beyond dispute that no more effective combination for this purpose is offered to the public than Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic and Hawker's liver pills. These are standard remedies, the formulas of which are endorsed by leading physicians on both sides of the border; and they present to everyone at moderate cost the most efficient means of regaining perfect health. They revitalize the blood, stimulate the digestive organs to regular and perfect action, restore to the nerves that force and strength which they have lost, and remove from the system all traces and effects of debility. No time should be lost in hesitation or to make a choice between remedies; for there is no other agency so sure and effective as Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic and Hawker's liver pills. They are within the reach of all classes, and now is the time to secure the boon of restored health which they place within easy grasp.
