Patients at the Provincial Sanatorium enjoyed one of the nicest Christmas parties they have ever had as a result of the efforts of Miss Stearns and the kitchen staff, and Miss MacLennan and the staff of nurses.

Featured were the meals served the many patients on Christmas Day, each tray being decorated under the supervision and careful planning of Miss Stearns. Special trays for Christmas Eve, and for breakfast, dinner and supper on Christmas Day were prepared, approximately 240 for each meal being required. Gay napkins, miniature trees, wreaths or candle decorations were on each tray, and each meal found different candy baskets, fruit, greeting cards and favors adding to their gay appearance.

Hand-made stockings, filled with candy, nuts and fruit also made their appearance, and the menu for Christmas dinner was proof that the kitchen staff had worked long hours in preparation, Turkey, cranberry sauce, Christmas pudding, and special ice cream were only a few of the many tempting dishes set before the patients.

From the youngest patient who is not yet three, each and every one of the Sanatorium patients expressed the feeling that they had enjoyed a wonderful Christmas, and their appreciation of the many extras which had been provided for them was beyond words.

One patient who has spent nine Christmases in the Sanatorium stated that he thought that if he were well and outside, he would want to come in to spend Christmas as a patient.

Each of the rooms was decorated with its own tree, and the halls and living rooms, as well as the recreation room, and school room were treated to touches of spruce boughs and gay red ribbons until the entire building breathed the spirit of Christmas.

Santa and his helper appeared on Christmas Day and gave toys to the younger patients and clothing to older ones, and each patient received a gift from the Sanatorium on their Christmas morning tray.

A number of the extras provided were generously given by Church organizations and various clubs throughout the Province.

For the first time the patients were able to hear Christmas music from a city church as they listened by a special hook-up to the Carol service at Trinity United Church on Christmas Eve, Rev. J. T. Sobel of St. Paul's gave a Christmas message previous to Christmas, and the Roman Catholic patients celebrated Mass on Christmas morning.
