

Placing The Wreath Of Remembrance

St. Laurent has attacked a Quebec premier and a provincial government directly, hit the troubled Quebec political scene like forked lightning.

NATIONALISTS "SINCERE" The prime minister, under attack recently by nationalist groups in Quebec, said he believes they are "sincere."

"There are sincere, honest, convinced nationalists who see in the growth of this Canadian nation something which damages the thesis of Abbe Groulx (Canon Lionel Groulx of the University of Montreal) that there must be a French-Catholic state in America which would be sovereign and autonomous, and which should be separated from these cursed Protestants.

"And these people see what has been happening for the past few years—that the population from Newfoundland to the Pacific coast is becoming a satisfied people.

"Whether we like it or not, the people who are at the head of governments are only instruments in the hands of providence. . . . Mr. St. Laurent said that when there was talk between the provinces and the federal government about amending the constitution he always maintained nothing could change in the constitution without the consent of the provinces.

"But between true autonomy and autonomy as a screen to avoid talk about the administration of those who are responsible, there is a difference. . . . Mr. St. Laurent told his Liberal listeners it is their task to explain this to the people of Quebec.

United Church General Council To Consider International Affairs Today

By RAE CORELLI Canadian Press Staff Writer SACKVILLE, N. B. (CP)—The United Church 16th general council will turn today to a solemn appraisal of international affairs in a world "sorely divided, troubled and full of fear." The 375 lay and clerical delegates to this regular biennial conference of the church's highest court will gather in the Sackville United church for a careful stock-taking of their position in all parts of the world and to take note of significant developments in the last two years.

The representatives of 11 conferences across the nation were rested and refreshed after a week-end sightseeing tour of Prince Edward Island by car that broke the rigorous conference schedule at the halfway point. Present indications are that the council will have covered its 48-page agenda and be ready for adjournment sometime late Thursday or early Friday.

The international affairs committee will introduce its report by reaffirming its task: "To give help and leadership to the United Church in the field of international relations." It will disclose a "need also for well-planned conferences on international affairs" but confess to "many inadequacies."

FULL OF FEAR The preamble will say that the committee "continues its labors in the knowledge that today's world is sorely divided, troubled and full of fear."

"Today the church faces a world in which national sovereignty is more apparent than real. The struggle is not so much one of nation against nation as of man against impending destruction. . . . Today no man has security in his own nation. Man now is a world warrior or a world citizen."

Thus, it said, Christianity's primary task is "to do everything possible for the cause of world order and world citizenship." Two services of worship were held Sunday in the Sackville United church. Rev. Leslie E. Cooke, secretary of the Congressional Union of England and Wales, led the morning devotions. Rev. Colin A. Roberts, secretary of home missions of the Methodist Church of Britain, preached the evening sermon.

The council hurried through its abbreviated Saturday session to the special five-car train that took the delegates to Borden, N. S., where they transferred to cars for the island tour.

BROADEN PROGRAM They approved the report of the committee on religious education in public schools which recommended that provincial governments be urged to broaden their teacher-training programs so that "competent instructors" in religious education could one day be admitted.

Sidney E. Smith, president of the University of Toronto, seconded the motion for adoption of the report by saying:

"I must confess that I am somewhat skeptical about the results of merely adding just one more subject to the curriculum. This is particularly true in relation to subjects involving social or spiritual values. "For example, on many occasions I have expressed my doubt about the advantages that may flow from a special course in citizenship. Teachers should use all their courses to illuminate, the abiding principles that are needed for an ordered and decent society. "If this is true in the temporal realm, it must be axiomatic in relation to the spiritual values. Religious education in the schools, if truly effective, should permeate all the courses and, indeed, the whole atmosphere of the school."
