Would Honour Former President

PARIS (Reuters) — Socialist Andre le Troquer today opened his term as president of the National Assembly by proposing that a unique honor be bestowed upon his predecessor, ailing, 80-year-old Edouard Herriot.

He said he will ask parliament to name Herriot "honorary president" of the National Assembly. Herriot, veteran radical, was president of the assembly from 1936 until 1940 and again after the Second World War from 1947. He announced last month that he would not seek re-election because of ill-health.

dent of the National Assembly" — a title unprecedented in history which would show the assembly's affection and gratitude.
