

Lists Major Problems In Atlantic Salmon Fishery

MONTREAL (CP) — President Vernon E. Johnson of the Atlantic Salmon Association said today the most important development last year concerning the association was a "rising public demand" for a more vigorous and practical handling of the Atlantic salmon problem.

Mr. Johnson listed two apparent causes for public concern. One was the impact of the declining salmon supply on tourism, the other was a "consciousness that properly-regulated natural resources could make a far more substantial contribution to the economies of New Brunswick and Quebec."

His remarks were contained in the text of an address released for publication before delivery.

TWO PROJECTS

Mr. Johnson, of Montreal, told the association's annual meeting he put "high value" on two survey projects initiated during the last year. One is a University of New Brunswick attempt to determine the importance of Atlantic salmon to the province.

It was expected to be finished early this year.

The other concerns a Laval University survey to "get the facts" of the Atlantic salmon's contribution to Quebec. The two will cost about $5,500.

Mr. Johnson said both would provide comprehensive, uniform data badly needed to create understanding among the various interests involved in the salmon situation where there is no over-all authority.

He said that 1955 "saw a steady decline in the catch of the June, July and early August salmon by both rod and net. There was a sharp increase in the fall runs in late August and September."

"Low water influenced the spring run to some extent, of course, but these two facts remind us that something must be done and they indicate that if something is done it will be productive."

Mr. Johnson referred to conferences last year between association and federal and provincial authorities, and said he expected today's meeting would provide additional matters for discussion.

MAY CHANGE DATES

These might include consideration of variable opening dates in salmon waters.

Others might be a change in Newfoundland opening dates to conform with other eastern provinces, reform of the public guardian system and a study of the pollution problem to effect a solution satisfying both the fishing and industrial interests.

Mr. Johnson also referred to a personal matter involving his position as head of both the association and Forest Protection Limited, which has possible conflicting interests in the salmon question.

"I would like to see the president of the Atlantic Salmon Association in the strongest possible position from the viewpoint of public opinion," said Mr. Johnson, who has headed the association for more than two years.

"I would not want the work of the association jeopardized for any reason nor do I want you to ignore the reality of sometimes conflicting responsibilities."

Predicts Big Expansion In Newsprint Industry

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's newsprint industry estimated today world demand for Canadian newsprint will double in the next 25 years with shipments rising to 12,500,000 tons a year by 1980.

It forecast also that the Canadian pulp and paper industry, representing $2,000,000,000 in capital, will have to spend $4,000,000,000 in the quarter-century to expand production to meet the anticipated big consumption rise.

R. M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, told the Gordon economic commission in a 50,000-word brief that Canada's forests are capable of turning out the required increase in pulpwood provided the federal government co-operates in forest management through tax incentives and other measures.

But Mr. Fowler warned that too much "unbridled abuse" by Canadian and American politicians and publishers may cause some producers to turn from newsprint to other forms of pulp and paper production.

MANY RAP INCREASE

A recently announced price increase brought criticism from 10th street of the border. Premier Duplessis has prepared a bill to control newsprint prices and deliveries to Quebec newspapers.

"Newsprint is a politically explosive commodity," Mr. Fowler said. "... the easiest way for an American congressman or senator to get his name into American newspapers is to make some statement about newsprint."

"There is a certain cheap and easy appeal in proposals to make the U. S. which gets about 80 per cent of its newsprint from Canada a trip to the border," he added, maintaining that economic isolationism still persists in the U. S.

Mr. Fowler also turned criticism on federal anti-combines laws and the courts which rule on them, charging they backened the reputation of Canadian business. Calling for drastic amendments, he said segments of the law are a "blot" on Canadian criminal procedure.

As for those in Canada who continually talked about building up steel and other industries, they would lead Canada to disaster if this resulted in restrictions on Canadian primary production.

Unrest In Jordan Has Anti-west Undercurrent

Editor's note: Associated Press correspondent Wilton Wynn has just returned to his post in Cairo from a trip to Jordan, where where censorship has been in effect. In the following dispatch he reports on conditions in Jordan.

By WILTON WYNN
CAIRO (AP) — A little British soldier who learned the ways of the Arabs on camelback and around the desert campfires of the Bedouins is target No. 1 of anti-Western elements who spearheaded violent riots in almost every town in Jordan last week.

The little man is Lt. Gen. John Bagot Glubb, chief of the general staff of Jordan's crack army, the Arab Legion. He is called by his enemies "the uncrowned king of Jordan."

Fifteen to 20 were believed killed scores wounded and hundreds arrested in the last seven days as aroused opposition elements sought to smash every symbol of the West in Jordan—and to these people Glubb is the prime symbol of Western penetration.

ORDER RESTORED

As the week ended, order was restored through most of the country and the week-long curfew was lifted in the chief cities. Restive elements temporarily called off the struggle after achieving their first political objective—a government promise that Jordan would not join the Western-sponsored Baghdad Pact.

But victory—flushed opposition leaders from left to right declared the next objective is to put the nation's army under Arab control. That means they believe Glubb must go.

Since the Arab Legion is 65-nearly by a British subsidy of nearly £8,000,000 annually, opposition leaders reason the financing must be placed in Arab hands, after which the Arabs will be able to get rid of Glubb and other British officers commanding the Arab Legion.

As head of a broad opposition coalition, national Socialist Suleiman Nabulsi says the money should be paid to Jordan as rent for Brit' bases in the country under the British-Jordan treaty of 1948. A second method suggested—and the one most popular in Jordan at the moment—is to have neighboring Arab states, Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Syria, pay the subsidy. Reports from Damascus say the three states already have

Electrocuted By TV Short Circuit

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A four-year-old boy was electrocuted by a short circuit in a television set Sunday. The victim, Gary Putnam, was viewing a program with his mother, Mrs. Arnold Putnam. "One minute he was sitting there and when I looked again he was lying on the floor," the weeping mother related. He had simultaneously touched the metal chassis of the television set and a nearby radiator.

Decide Train Crew Blameless

TRURO (CP)—A coroner's jury decided Saturday that crew members of the CNR's Ocean Limited were not to blame for the death of woodsman Boyd Moore, 49, killed when struck by that train Friday at nearby Onslow.

Engineer Ed Saunier of Moncton, said he and fireman J.T. Breaux, also of Moncton, saw black form between the rails but didn't realize it was a man until the train was too close to stop.

MUST DEVELOP NATION

"For the Canadian economy as a whole, it is the development of our great primary industries that provides, and must continue to provide, the basis of our prosperity and growth."

"... we cannot place an embargo on iron ore and compel other countries to buy from us steel shapes and sheets; we cannot forbid by government decree the export of pulps and force other countries to take our fine paper..."

"They can and will turn elsewhere for the raw materials they need or find alternative materials to maintain their industrial production."

The Canadian newsprint industry, he said is starting the next quarter-century from a position of strength. Canadian production was almost five times greater than its nearest rival, the U. S.

By 1980, newsprint needs by Canadian newspapers would rise to an estimated 965,000 tons a year more than double the 430,000 consumed in 1955.

The U. S., Canada's biggest customer with one-third of its spend-
