nite indication of the amount of aid hoped for from the United States.
The proposed outlay totals $3,400,000,000. Britain's entire budget for the current fiscal year is $3,455,000,000.
The statement was handed to U. S. Ambassador Lewis Douglas Thursday night.
The statement said the Government is anxious to contribute "to the defence of the free world in the present threatening situation."
Britain's defence appropriation for 1950-51 ran to $780,000,000. Defence Minister Emmanuel Shinwell told the House of Commons last week immediate rearmament measures resulting from the Korean war would account for a further annual expenditure of $100,000,000.
The new program will be submitted to Parliament for approval only when Britain and the United States have worked out some kind of a deal on the whole issue, the announcement said.
The United States last week had asked all the Atlantic Pact Allies what they proposed to contribute to the west's over-all defence program.
Replies were called for by Aug. 5.
(At Washington President Truman said he welcomed the development. He expressed the hope that other North Atlantic treaty countries would take similar steps.)

Thrill fans can expect to see a savage jungle spectacle, amazing displays of Johnny's aquatic prowess and a thrilling story about a fabled land. In addition, Johnny has to fight a brutal, human opponent in a slashing, bruising fight to the finish!
Screenplay by Arthur Hoel and Don Martin, based on the King Features Syndicate newspaper feature, "Jungle Jim," concerns the fabled treasure of the lost African Land of Drumm and the efforts of greedy adventurers to appropriate its precious stones. Miss Verdugo,
