Social Agencies Must Reduce Services

MONTREAL, (CP) —This city's main charitable agencies told the city executive committee Monday they will cut their activities "radically" if the committee enforces its decision to discontinue grants.

In a letter to Mayor Jean Drapeau, committee chairman Pierre DesMarais and other members of the seven-men executive, the Inter-Federation Council said:

"If the executive committee maintains its decision, the federation would be forced to reduce their services so radically that the city will be obliged, according to the law, to create other agencies similar to those now operating under the aegis of the federation. This would mean the discarding of complex services whose organizing and grouping represent years of effort, experience and constant search for perfection."

The Inter-Federation Council represents the four big charity agencies of the city: the Federation of French Charities, Welfare Federation, Federatoin of Catholic Charities and the Federation of Jewish Community Services. These in turn are responsible for 96 agencies and social services.

The letter, signed by Maurice Trudeau, chairman, was the latest in a series of criticisms since Mr. Desmarais announced the executive committee's "reluctant" decision early last week. The committee was struggling to balance the city budget and could not continue the grants — totalling some $750,000 — since the administration was "not a social agency," he said.

Meanwhile, the 99-man city council was scheduled to meet today to discuss public reaction to the move.

Canada's Exports Show Upward Trend To The U. S.

By The Canadian Press

For three-quarters of a century Canada's main export lines were tied mainly to distant shores—the overseas markets of Britain, France, Germany and other countries of Europe.

Then came the Second World War and an uneasy peace which saw a radical change in the pattern of Canada's export trade. The vital market for Canada no longer is overseas but close at hand—the United States.

For eight years without a break, Canada has been selling more goods to the U. S. than to all other countries combined. Canada in 1954 exported about $3,950,000,000 worth of goods, a drop for the second consecutive year from the peak of $4,355,000,000 in 1952.

But in 1952 about 53 per cent of Canadian exports went to the U. S. Last year more than 60 per cent went south.

TREND OF FUTURE

Is this the pattern for Canada's trading future? Will Canada continue to depend more heavily on the U. S. than on all other countries combined?

Oliver Master, assistant deputy minister of trade at Ottawa, says it is too early to make a firm prediction.

"It may still be too early to say that the old order has been superseded," he said writing in the department's magazine, Foreign Trade. "Temporarily, at least, it has been."

The next few years should help clarify whether Canada's major export interest lies in the overseas or in the North American markets.

INTERESTED IN BOTH

"We shall certainly continue to have an immense interest in both. But will the chief trend be toward confirming our new trade pattern or towards swinging back in some degree to the old?

"Part of the answer will be found in the comparative freedom to do business which Canadian exporters enjoy in the U. S., on the one hand, and in the overseas countries on the other.

"Where will be easing of trading conditions make its greatest headway? Or, to put it in another way where will the resistance to more liberal commercial policies dig itself in most strongly? For Canada these are vital questions."

Shawinigan "Rights"

In addition to being one of the largest producers and distributors of hydro-electric energy in the world, The Shawinigan Water and Power Company, through ownership of Shawinigan Chemicals Limited, is an important factor in the electro-chemical and metallurgical industries. In our opinion, its common shares are attractive to those seeking investment in companies most likely to continue growing with Canada.

We recommend that shareholders exercise current rights (expiring February 28) to acquire additional shares at $46 per share. To present and prospective shareholders, we offer facilities for the purchase or sale of rights and shares.

We have prepared an informative memorandum on The Shawinigan Water and Power Company. Copies available on request.
