Join A Slimming Club

By IDA JEAN KAIN
If you repeatedly bog down in attempting to lose weight, try a slimming club. It isn't such a club in your neighborhood, invite a few likely candidates to join you in the venture and start a club of your own. A newly formed group of over-weights in Ohio is doing just that.

I've become flabby fat. I went from 143 pounds to 200 pounds for my 5' 5". My doctor says I must lose weight for my health's sake. At 25 I feel much older.

We're enthusiastic about getting started. We all know reducing will take determination and will power. But with God's help, we will all succeed.

SEKSMITH, Alta. (CP) — Aunt Jo's face beamed when she told her: "Thirty-five years I've been here. And in that time, Lord love us, I've delivered close to 100 babies."

Hard worker
Aunt Jo says now that the past was "nothing", but many mothers in the community will testify otherwise. When the delivery of the child was over, then the real work began. In addition to looking after the newborn and the mother, nurse Haakstad would stay in the home and cook and care for perhaps five or six children and their family.

It was in the early days that the Haakstad, who came to Canada first being known to the community of Seksmith. Someone in the village was having a baby and needed attention. Johanna was living with her parents in nearby LaGlance.

So it was that Aunt Jo became "localised". A two room shack was rented, providing two beds. Little by little, the farflung medical community got used to the idea of visiting Aunt Jo, rather than being visited.

TRIBUTE FROM MOTHERS
In 1948, more than 2,000 mothers of the Peace River country paid tribute to Aunt Jo. An appreciation day was organized and all the mothers in the North who had been nursed by Johanna contributed $1 for each baby born in the nurse's "maternity hospital."

MARY HAWORTH Her Intentions Are The Best

Dear Mary Haworth: The problem is our teenage son's intolerance of my aging mother's presence in our household. Mother's mental health has been on the decline for five years. She is now 66, and some weeks ago she tried to end her life with an overdose of sleeping pills.

On the advice of psychiatrists, after family consultations, she has come to live with me (the eldest daughter) to be away from her, who is the cause of most of her emotional stress at present.

Mother is harmless, and not ill enough to be hospitalized. However, she needs constant care and watching and I am having in being helpful, and my husband is considerate and kind—even giving up our bedroom without any hesitation.

But the rub is our son, Ben, now 14, an only child. Grandma has invaded his family privacy and he resents it. He can't share his home life or his parents with her, although he was often her guest during his school vacation in younger years. He deliberately hurts her by ordering her about, arguing with her over trivialities, and even pushing her out of the way.

Mother is a frightened soul, anxious to keep out of his path, even retreating to her room when he is off to school or finished with TV. He will leap into a discussion, uninvited, to support me against her.

CHAMPIONS GRANDFATHER
Mother's not charming company, it's true, and Ben doesn't enjoy her depressive state. However, she makes a real effort to show interest in his activities; although she isn't capable of sincere affection any longer, as he must sense, and at my wit's end, trying to please him—knowing he can't cope—while also trying to make her feel welcome.

As grandpa seems to be the victim, Ben is angered by the fact that I prefer to care for my mother instead. Can you advise me how to handle the situation?

D.S.: It is to be hoped that you've had the benefit of really first-rate psychiatric opinion, in planning your mother's care.

This I say because I'm not sure that you are acting wisely to secure the good of the greater number, and to safeguard the family welfare, when you turn your household upside down to give her guarantee of your concern. There is a possibility, which you should explore, that she is tyrannizing, in an infantile way, over all of you; and this indeed may be a factor in her sickness—or senility, if such it is.

Even though your husband is kindly disposed and readily cooperative so far, it occurs to me that you may be blindly risking your marriage security, in taking such hasty measures as turning him out of his accustomed bedroom, to provide sanctuary for your mother.

ROBBING PETER?
If long-term arrangement is under consideration, she shouldn't be installed in his place, in any sense of the word. You are equipped to assuage her needs of creature care, only if you can cater to her without radical upset to her.

Film star Marilyn Monroe hit the headlines with her hip wriggles and bare midriff; olympic discus-thrower Nina Ponomareva, making a late start, easily won newspaper attention by displaying a penchant for hats.

The press reception accorded Marilyn on her arrival to make a movie with Sir Laurence Olivier had to be seen to be believed. It was pandemonium, reporters trying to shriek questions above the clatter of the photographers.

More Coffee?
Brazil has been testing portable aluminum irrigation systems to increase the coffee crop. Results are startling: yield per tree is more than doubled. Even if applied only to half of Brazil's coffee crop, production would be increased by 3,700,000 bags!

Our own Canadian farmers have found endless ways to use Canadian aluminum: Piping for orchards, field crops and stock... foil for mulching... roofing and siding for barns, brooders and silos... cans and pails for dairy farms.

Canadian output of primary aluminum is being further increased to supply the makers of these and a thousand other products useful in agriculture, industry, defence and the home.

In October, Covent Garden Opera House had one of its most glittering seasons ever when the Balsho Ballet Company, led by the 46-year-old ballerina Ulanova, danced before enthralled audiences.

Canadian women in the entertainment world held a warm place in British hearts. Libby Morris from Winnipeg, Patti Lewis of Toronto and Barbara Kelly of Vancouver became firm favorites with British TV audiences in '56.

Toronto actress Sharon Acker, who came over with the Stratford, Ont. Theatre Company, signed a British film contract.

The fashion world boomed in 1956. British women never looked more elegant, and conservative use of makeup gave way to the carefully made-up look with emphasis on eye cosmetics.

Most popular hat seeing the old year out was the cossack type favored by Princess Margaret. Women wearing them could be seen every few yards along fashionable Regent Street.

Milliners predict the same style will be featured next spring, made in light-colored straws.
