CANADIAN PLAYERS COMING

The set for "Romeo and Juliet", which will be presented at Queen Charlotte High School at 2:30 on Nov. 25, was designed by Miss Marie Day, brilliant young Canadian designer.

Playing a gracious Lady Capulet will be Sydney Sturgess who, although born in Malaya, is a great grand niece of Chief Justice Edward Palmer of Prince Edward Island.

She played in amateur theatricals in Malaya and in Chile, where her parents lived for some time. She studied at the London College of Music and then joined a repertory company. In 1939 she met and married Barry Morse and played with him on tour with Dame Marie Tempest and A.E. Matthews.

After the war she and her husband and two children came to Canada where they played at the Mountain Playhouse in Montreal in one of its most successful runs. They have had many engagements in Toronto and Miss Turgess has had a season with the Stratford Festival.

She will also pay Mrs. Higgins in "Pygmalion" which will be presented at 8 p.m. Nov. 25. The Kinsmen Club of Charlottetown is sponsoring the visit of the Canadian Players.

Big N.S. Fish Company Would Cut Out Small Fry

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — A Halifax fish-packing executive said Wednesday Atlantic fishermen would be better off if there were fewer small processors, but admitted he is stumped on how to thin their ranks.

"They are rugged individualists," said C. J. Morrow, president of National Sea Products Limited, which processes about half the fillets produced in Nova Scotia.

Mr. Morrow spoke at resumed hearings of the royal commission on price spreads of food products, expected to complete its taking of evidence Nov. 22. 0'

Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman of the seven-member commission inquiring into the gap between producer returns and consumer outlays, told a press conference it will be "some months" before the commission presents its report to the government.

SYMPATHY FOR FARMERS

Dr. Stewart, replying to reporters' questions, said "real incomes" have risen faster than food prices. But he appeared to sympathize with farmers who say they are selling below production costs.

Displaying a chart showing that food costs have been climbing since 1951 while farm returns were falling, Dr. Stewart said farmers have a capacity of "persistence" despite low prices.

"They just tighten their belts, forget about depreciation and live on their capital."

Mr. Morrow was Wednesday's only witness before the commission, which has received 64 briefs in coast-to-coast hearings started last April and adjourned in October.

NOT KEEPING PACE

In a formal submission, Mr. Morrow said the Atlantic fishing industry is not keeping pace with other Canadian food industries. He recommended depreciation allowances for trawler owners, higher prices for fishermen and an industry - wide campaign to promote sales.

Replying to questions, he said an educational job can be done. "Fish properly prepared is a good dish and should have an appeal to those who are watching their waistline."

Under questioning by Mrs. Dorothy Walton of Toronto, he admitted that United States prices pretty well call the tune in Canada as well.

On Mr. Morrow's point that primary producers would be better off if there were fewer processors, Dr. W. M. Drummond of Guelph, Ont., asked how smaller operators could be eliminated.

Mr. Morrow said he hasn't any idea, but perhaps time will do the job.

Small processors did not develop new methods and lacked capital to carry them through glut periods. This tended to create a buyers' market and depress prices unduly in times of small over-supply.

TIGHTER INSPECTION

The Halifax executive said fish quality sometimes leaves something to be desired, but expressed hope tighter inspection plans will remedy this.

Expressing the view that the price spread in the fish industry is not "excessive," Mr. Morrow said a higher average level of fishermen's prices is necessary. An increase of one cent a pound to fishermen would mean an increase of five or six cents a pound for fillets.

To attract capital to the industry, he recommended depreciation allowances for income tax purposes along the lines of those paid in the United Kingdom. Trawler owners should be allowed to depreciate their boats to 140 per cent of cost.

The hearings continue today.

Winter Work Is Topic Of Groups' Discussion

Representatives of the provincial government and the city council attended a meeting of the local employment advisory committee of the National Employment office, last evening held in the employment office in the federal building.

Alex MacIsaac, provincial minister of labour and Frank O'Neill, city councillor, joined in the discussion about the possibility of carrying on certain types of work in the winter time.

The local employment advisory committee is now concerned with the preliminary stages of the annual Winter Jobs Campaign.

Mr. MacIsaac was not able to tell the meeting of any hard and fast decision made by the provincial government, but he gave his own personal views on the prospects of carrying out work in the winter time. Mr. MacIsaac said that within the past few days, while in Moncton, he had discussed the problems with the ministers of labour from Nova Scotia and the province of New Brunswick.

These gentlemen were also concerned with providing work during the colder months of the year. Mr. MacIsaac mentioned several possible projects but emphasized that his government had not given much thought to the winter campaign as yet.

ENCOURAGING

He explained that the Federal government's idea of providing half the wage costs for certain projects would need to be explored, to see what could be done to the best advantage. His remarks were encouraging to the committee.

Councillor Frank O'Neill said there was a distinct possibility that some sewer work would be carried out weather permitting. This work would take advantage of the federal offer of assistance recently announced, by the federal government.

Mrs. A. R. Henry, women's representative on the committee, reported that she was getting in touch with a number of women's organizations, and hoped to have representatives of the organizations at the next meeting.

NAMED CHAIRMAN

Arthur Wright, chairman of the committee to arrange a TV panel, announced the probable date of televising, and also the names of those who would constitute the panel.

Elric Campbell representing the Canadian Legion on the committee was named as chairman of the panel.

Last night's meeting was well attended with P.E. Palmer acting as chairman; David Wright, represented Agriculture; Eugene McCabe, carpenter's union; Louis Condon. Canadian manufacturers' association; Mrs. Arthur Henry, women's organizations; Arthur Wright, retail trades; Elric Campbell. Canadian Legion.
