

Joint Meeting Of UCWs Held In Kensington

The joint meeting of the United Church Women of Margate Pastoral Charge was held in the Manse, Kensington, on Monday evening with 34 in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Arthur Profit presided and the devotional period was in charge of the Long River United Church Women, with Mrs. Ernest Dunning as organist. The hymns "Come Let Us Sing of a Wonderful Love" was followed by scripture reading by Mrs. Ralph Johnstone. Mrs. Fred Doughart read a review on the chapter. The hymn, "In Christ there is no East or West" and prayer by Mrs. Gerald Johnstone closed the worship service. A two-minute silence was observed in memory of the deceased members. This was followed by a suitable poem read by the president.

It was decided that the buying committee will look after the needs of the Manse, and Margate will be in charge of putting the church announcements in the press for the next year. A motion was passed that we lower the allocation for one year; Long River, $60.00, New London $60.00 and Margate $60.00.

Mrs. Ray MacLeod was appointed chairman for the election of officers for the 1966-67 term. A motion was passed that the officers be re-elected: president, Mrs. Arthur Profit, Margate; vice president, Mrs. James M. Campbell, New London; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Archie Johnstone, Long River; secretary, Mrs. Andrew Johnstone; treasurer, Mrs. Fred Doughart. Margate U.C.W. will be in charge of the worship service, and Long River will be in charge of refreshments for next year. The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer. Refreshments were served by New London U.C.W.

Social Worker Regrets Stigma Of Retardation

OTTAWA (CP) — Society tends to despise the retarded adult because he is "stupid," says a United States social worker.

"Probably no other handicap has so much stigma as lack of intelligence," says Jerome Nitzberg, assistant director of the New York City Association for the Help of Retarded Children.

Based on his experience in centres for retarded adults, he says even social workers sometimes, subconsciously join in the "popular scorn" of the unintelligent.

Retarded adults may deny or minimize their handicap, but they are troubled by it just the same, he writes in the magazine Canada's Mental Health.

He quotes an 18-year-old with an IQ of 83 as saying: "Retardation is not good to have. A lot of people don't understand what it means. You go around feeling that people don't want you because you are retarded."

His opinions differ on association with "normals."

One woman of 36 with an IQ of 64 said: "If a girl wants to go out with a normal boy they could. If you dress clean and neat and talk sensibly they don't know unless you act silly or talk nonsense."

Mr. Nitzberg says many retarded adults use "helplessness and dependence to attract attention and protect themselves from independence and responsibility despite their angry claims to adulthood."

Pioneer Women's Journals Show Stresses Of Times

TORONTO (CP) — Young men in Canada "are absolutely panting for wives and can't get them." Nor should women think these men are mere beasts.

The quotes, from a fashion magazine of the early 19th century, help explain some of the fascinations such publications held for present-day readers.

They also reflect the problems of pioneer women, says Mrs. James Collard of Burlington, Ont.

She is searching attics, basements and libraries for early Canadian prints and magazines to prove her contention that these along with the fashions of the day, show the times, stresses and developments of the 18th and 19th centuries.

She has about 900 prints and 300 journals.

"These books were used by the women," she said in an interview. "They were as important to them in 1820 as the women's magazine today is as a guide to fashion, home decor and the housewife's arts."

Single English women, "a mere drudge in England," were told in 1832 that many of the pining men in Canada could provide a comfortable life in the distant land.

The Lady's Magazine and Museum of Belles Lettres, Fine Arts, Music, Drama, Fashions, etc., made the comment in its December, 1822, issue in stamping strongly for English women to consider Canadian husbands.

The article, entitled On the Present Alarming Stagnation of Matrimony, said the invention of the steam engine and of gas-light had removed the romantic instincts of English swains.

All an English girl had to do was put up $8 for a husband — the British government would subsidize her travelling expenses to Canada.

In a letter to one of the 19th century British magazines a lady about to come to Canada was warned to bring her own china, cutlery and glass with her.

Among the oldest prints is Mrs. Collard's collection are some dated 1774.

There are also copies of the Journal des Luxus et des Modes printed in Germany from 1786 to 1826.

Chicken Nice With Rice In Tasty Paella Entree

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN — In Spain, paella is classified as a rice dish, but here in the United States it is served as an entree based on two or three protein items: chicken, clams (or other shell fish) and sausage, another-cooked in rice.

"We do not always use the same quantity of rice," a Spanish homemaker confided to me.

"If unexpected guests arrive, and there isn't enough chicken, we just add more rice!"

Measurements level: recipes for 6

CHICKEN PAELLA 1 (3 lb.) broiler-fryer, disassembled, reserve giblets 3 tsp. salt 1 1/2 tsp. A'ccent 1/4 tsp. pepper 1/4 tsp. oregano 4 c. not-cooked rice (white or brown) 1/2 sliced onion 1 peeled section garlic, crushed 1/4 c. cooking oil 1/4 pt. cleaned loose clams, fresh or canned (save liquid) 1/2 lb. Spanish sausage (dry) or skinless frankfurters 2 c. boiling water plus liquid drained from clams 4 envelopes chicken broth powder 12 well-scrubbed clams in-the-shell

Accompaniments: 1 lb. cooked whole green beans 6 romaine leaves 6 whole small tomatoes Rub chicken with seasonings. Add dry rice, onion, and garlic. Fry in skillet in oil until all is yellowed. Transfer to 4-qt. kettle.

Chop chicken giblets quite coarse; add and stir thoroughly. Add loose clams with their liquid; and sausage or frankfurters sliced 1/2" thick. Pour in 7/8 c. of water. Add broth powder dissolved in remaining 1/4 c. water. Simmer covered for 40 min.

Transfer to casserole. Place clams in-the-shell around edge. Cover and bake 15 min., at 375 degrees F. or till clams open.

To serve: Present the Paella as is. Place the casserole on a large serving platter, and surround with "bundles" of the cooked whole green beans, alternating with romaine leaves.

and small fresh tomatoes, skinned and brushed over with not-swet French dressing.

TOMORROW'S DINNER Sliced Avocados with Sliced Pickled Beets Chicken Paella with Flaky Rice Green Beans Sauté and Tomatoes.

Spanish Cream (repeated by request) with Chilled Fruit Cocktail or Pass a Basket of Assorted Grapes Coffee Tea Milk

SPANISH CREAM WITH CHILLED FRUIT COCKTAIL 1 1/2 envelopes unflavored gelatin 3 c. milk 1/4 c. sugar 3 eggs, separated 1/4 tsp. salt 1 tsp. vanilla 2 c. chilled fruit cocktail (canned)

Stir gelatin into milk; let stand 5 min.; scald and add sugar. Beat egg yolks; stir in 1/4 c. of hot milk; stir back into remaining milk. Cook - stir till mixture coats spoon; beat egg whites stiff; fold into hot milk mixture. Stir in salt and vanilla. The mixture may look a little curdled but don't worry; it's supposed to separate.

Rinse a qt. mold with cold water; pour in milk mixture; chill until firm, about 4 hr. Unmold the Spanish cream; surround with chilled fresh or canned fruit cocktail. Top with rosettes of whipped cream or whipped topping.

THE CHEF COMMENTS — Medsames: As you can see, the recipe in this column for Spanish Cream is easy to make; yet it is really a de luxe dessert.

It may be served not only suaced with fruit cocktail, but with a chocolate or butterscotch sauce and nuts; or with half-thawed frozen raspberries or sliced peaches. Or for gourmet sauce, mold it in cups, turn out, pour over a tablespoon of Curaco, and top each serving with a swirl of whipped cream and toasted shredded almonds. Extraordinary!

Room Problems Can Be Solved By Dividers

If hunting for a house or apartment has you frazzled because you can't find one with a good room layout, don't be discouraged. Room dividers may solve the problem perfectly.

Walls can be "shortened" or "lengthened", jutting columns concealed, and windows beautified by new see-through dividers that you can put up with just a screwdriver.

Ideal for those who move often and, therefore, this type of easy-to-assemble "wall" is a practical long-range investment.
