Life Insurance Not Interrupted by War

The inherent safety of life insurance, and its enviable record in every previous national emergency, are emphasized in the current cooperative advertising of the life insurance companies in Canada. Notwithstanding war conditions, life insurance will continue to honor all policies in accordance with the terms of the individual contracts. This statement is made on behalf of more than four million policyholders throughout Canada. It is significant to note the remarkable growth of life insurance in the last 25 years. At the beginning of 1914, life insurance in force totaled $1,160,000,000 whereas at the end of 1919 this amount had almost doubled to well over the two billion mark. Today the force of life insurance stands at over six billion dollars.

Similarly, payments to policyholders and beneficiaries showed a substantial increase from $29,900,000 in 1914 to $42,000,000 in the year 1919. Disbursements last year exceeded $150,000,000. During the last war and the influenza epidemic that followed, life insurance continued to meet every policy guarantee promptly and in full. Such a record commands the confidence of every Canadian policyholder.

Life insurance stands out as Canada's greatest co-operative enterprise. It is a true democracy in which millions of thrifty men and women have united for mutual protection.

In Memoriam

MR. HUGH MacLEAN

There passed away in Charlottetown, after a long illness, on Monday, Sept. 15th, the late Hugh MacLean at the age of eighty-one years.

The late Mr. MacLean, a son of the late Donald MacLean and his wife, the late Sarah Ellis, was born in Tyne Valley in 1838. He spent his early years in Tyne Valley with his parents, and when a young man moved to Searletown where he became one of the well known farmers.

In 1858, the late Mr. MacLean married Janet Campbell of Wellington, and to them were born three children, two sons and one daughter. One son and the daughter passed away some years ago. A beloved widow and son, G. MacLean of Timmins, Ontario, remains to mourn the passing of a loved husband and father.

A few years ago, the late Mr. MacLean and his widow moved from Searletown to Charlottetown. Besides a beloved widow and one son, the late Mr. MacLean leaves to mourn three sisters, Mrs. Henry Williams of P. E. I., Mrs. Mary Ritchie of Tyne Valley, Mrs. Thomas Adams of Arlington, P. E. I., and three brothers, William of P. E. I., Edward and Daniel of Northern Ontario.

MRS. JOSEPH HANNING

On Tuesday, April 9th, a wave of sadness passed over St. Margaret's and the surrounding vicinity, when it became known that one of its most esteemed and beloved ladies in the person of Mrs. Joseph Hanning passed peacefully away to her eternal reward at the age of 75 years.

The late Mrs. Hanning had always been of an unusually robust constitution, but for some months previous to her demise, it was apparent to intimate friends that her strength was waning while on her own part, when eventually and aside from realizing more fully than herself that the end was drawing near.

With that calm strength of unflinching faith and the abiding equanimity arising therefrom, she felt no qualms as the wings of the summoning angel fluttered near. Rather, composed in soul by frequent reception of the sacraments administered by her kind pastor, Rev. Father George McDonald and in his absence by Rev. Fathers Callaghan and Sinnott and toward the end of Holy Viaticum, comforted in body by all that medicine and skillful nursing and kind ministrations could accomplish or suggest, she gave her thought to comforting those whom she feared.

might be disposed to mourn. "Margaret Anne," as she was familiarly called, was a woman of excellent qualities, loved and respected by all who knew her. Capable and industrious in all that appertained to her own particular duties, her leading by both precept and example, exercised at all times a most beneficial influence in the material sense, while in her home she was a model of kindness and all that an amiable mother could be, self-sacrificing and patient, she waited kindly on her family and her memory will be forever fresh in their minds and the vacant place in her home can never be filled. She was a good obliging neighbor and the host of friends whose custom it was to visit her home will forever miss her, for she was always ready to extend a hearty welcome to every one and treat them with unlimited kindness.

She leaves to mourn three sorrowing daughters, Mrs. Lazarus MacCaugh, Mrs. Andrew Macdonald and Mrs. D. L. O'Healey, all of St. Margaret's parish, an only granddaughter, Mildred O'Healey, eighteen other grandchildren and one brother Martin Macdonald, of Oakland, California.

Her funeral was held on Wednesday morning, April 26th, and the large number of carriages that followed her mortal remains to St. Margaret's Church despite the bad condition of roads, gave testimony how she was loved and respected by friends and neighbors. A Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. Father McDonald, who also officiated at the grave where her body was tenderly laid to rest beside that of her husband who predeceased her six years ago. There to a most glorious resurrection.

The pall-bearers were A. J. McKinnon, Daniel Brvan, Aeneas McDonald, A. D. McCormack, Joseph MacEachern and Dan McDonald. Hearse driver, James A. McDonald. May her soul rest in peace.

Smite Any Note Call it "Swing"

MONTREAL, Sept. 18.—(CP) —To 83-year-old George Labadie jitter-bugs to the contrary—"swing is not music." Moreover, the former military musician and composer believes that "swing is a bad habit that has harmful effects on children who want to learn the beauty of music."

Labadie, who composed 10 military marches before falling eyesight ended 61 years of active playing recently, claimed that "you can throw a handful of notes anywhere and that's what swing is." He argues that "you don't have to know a thing about music to play swing, because you can hit any note and it goes." Wistfully stroking his battered but carefully packed sousaphone—the biggest instrument in the brass section of the band—Labadie said: "Real music is beautiful. Each note in a bar can be heard distinctly, whereas in swing the notes sound as though they are crashing together and jumping out in a huck."

Labadie believes that swing might be harmful to students of "real" music because it is popular right now and possibly is paying the "best money."

Labadie's passionate love of music brought about his acceptance of the job of taking care of the bandroom and instruments at the Canadian Grenadier Guards armory here when his forced active retirement two years ago threatened to sever him from the men and things that had become part of his life.

"Kathleen," as he calls the bulky sousaphone which he keeps in the bandroom but which he no longer plays, helps him remember the years when he toured Europe with the Sousa band of New York; when he played with the 13th Regiment band of Brooklyn, the Chicago Marine Band and practically every military band in Montreal.

His greatest pleasure comes now from hearing his marches played. Among his compositions are "Here

GREASEPROOF PAPER SAVES FOOD

The few cents spent on buying some grease-proof (or waxed) paper is saved over and over again by the money you save on food going bad. Listen to these hints and then go forth to buy some paper.

Don't throw away the pastry that is left over on baking day. It will keep for a week wrapped in greaseproof paper and kept in a cool place.

Bacon, too, will keep for many days, even in warm weather, if you heat it until it changes color slightly and then wrap it in greaseproof paper.

The sandwiches you have left over from that coffee-and-cake party will keep moist and palatable until tea-time the next afternoon if you put a slice of bread at the top and bottom of the pile and wrap them in the greaseproof paper.
