

British Morality Report Sparks Anger And Dismay

By CAROL KENNEDY
LONDON (CP) — Rumblings of anger and dismay, from the Archbishop of York down to grass-roots parish councillors, are echoing through British churches in the wake of a controversial report on morality that appears to condone pre-marital sex and adultery.

The report, commissioned 2 1/2 years ago by the British Council of Churches, was intended to define and propagate the Christian case for chastity before marriage and faithfulness within it.

But the working party of 13 clergy, doctors, writers and teachers assigned this brief found themselves unable to define or recommend one simple standard. They argued that the complex, realistic problems of today cannot be solved by a precise formula evolved centuries ago.

In the end they sidetracked their brief, presenting all sides of the issue but reaching no conclusions. And when they came to consider criticisms of the orthodox Christian standpoint, the authors declined to condemn pre-marital or extramarital sex as invariably wrong, taking the view that some circumstances might justify it.

Most Rev. Donald Coggan, Archbishop of York, condemned this as "disservice to the personal and family life of the nation." Other leading clergymen followed suit.

COMES BEFORE COUNCIL
The row likely will reach a climax when the British Council of Churches debates the report at its annual assembly today and Wednesday.

The Council, formed in 1942 to promote church unity, embraces 23 Protestant denominations. The Archbishop of Canterbury, Anglican primate of All England, is president. The Church of Scotland (Presbyterian) delegates were quick to dissociate themselves from the report. The National Assembly of Evangelicals, representing some 500,000 church members, reaffirmed in an emergency debate that absolute standards of morality are taught in the scriptures and deplored situation ethics where an action was judged right or wrong according to the circumstances.

The pocket-sized report, entitled Sex and Morality, has already gone into a fourth edition within a week.

CASUAL SEX PERILOUS
The report stresses that casual sex is perilous and that physical relations cannot be separated from love or long-term commitment without the partnership—and society generally—suffering some harm. But it says many people, whether Christians or not, no longer accept church authority on sexual behavior.

Among other controversial recommendations, it gives qualified approval to contraceptive advice for the unmarried and calls for abortion to be freed from many of the present legal restrictions.

Plague Spread Declared Threat

GENEVA, Switzerland (Reuters)—Mankind faces a growing menace of outbreaks of plague spread by rats, the World Health Organization has warned.

The organization lashed rapid urbanization and lack of appreciation of the danger as the main cause of the menace. Fleas on field rats carry the plague and pass it on to a growing number of town rats and hence to man as cities and their attendant stums spread into the countryside.

In face of the growing danger, scientists have gathered at the W.H.O. headquarters here for a five-day meeting to discuss ways of fighting the menace.

CYPRUS EXHIBIT OPENED

TORONTO (CP) — An exhibition of ancient art and craftsmanship from Cyprus opened Tuesday at the Royal Ontario Museum. The Loch collection consists of about 300 objects dating from around 2500 BC to 1000 AD, presented to the museum by the dowager Lady Loch. She and her late husband, Maj.-Gen. Lord Loch, gathered it while living in Cyprus, until 1860 a British possession.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. JAY BECKER

QUIZ
You have the following hand, neither side vulnerable:

♠74 ♥5 ♣Q83 ♦AK9762

1. Your partner bids One Notrump and your right-hand opponent bids Two Hearts. What would you bid now?
2. Your partner bids One Spade to which you respond Two Clubs. Your partner then bids Two Spades. What would you bid now?
3. Your right-hand opponent bids Three Hearts. After two passes, your partner doubles. What would you bid now?
4. Your partner bids One Spade to which you respond Two Clubs. Your partner then bids Two Notrump. What would you bid now?

1. Three notrump. You can't be sure that this is the best final contract, but the odds favor three notrump. Most players would treat three clubs over two hearts as a limit bid and not forcing, and it would therefore be unwise to run the risk of partner's passing opposite a hand likely to produce three notrump.
Partner is almost certain to have at least one heart stopper, and once this is granted, the best chance of game lies in notrump. Five clubs could be better than three notrump, but there is no practical way of re-ching contract without jeopardizing the notrump game.

2. Four Spades. You have only 9 points in high cards, but game is nevertheless probable in the light of partner's rebid in spades (showing at least five spades) and the value of your singleton heart. To bid only three spades in the hope that partner will go on to two pessimistic view is to take. You shouldn't expect partner to lose four tricks.
3. Five clubs. You can't afford to bid only four clubs because you would do that with a much weaker hand. The best way of showing your values is by jumping to five clubs, which just about represents your hand. If partner passes, you will probably make five clubs; if he raises to six, you will probably make that also.
The trap to avoid is four clubs. This bid would not be doing your hand justice.
4. Three spades. You have the high-card values for a raise to three notrump, but you have the wrong distribution for this kind of bid. If partner has a five-card spade suit, the hand will probably play better at spades, but if he has only four spades, the best contract is likely to be notrump.
The three spade bid (forcing) asks partner to choose between spades and notrump, depending on the length of his spades. The final decision belongs to him.

Posthumous Bravery Award Made To Ontario Boy Scout

OTTAWA (CP)—A mother accepting a posthumous award for her son was among 32 recipients of honors from the Boy Scouts of Canada at a Government House ceremony here.

Governor-General Vanier, the country's chief scout, in presenting the awards for bravery and dedication commended the courage of the cubs, scouts, rovers and venturers receiving the medals.

The boys, ranging in age from 10 to 18, came from across Canada to the annual ceremony.

Mrs. Dorothy Burritt, a widow from Cooksville, Ont., accepted the Jack Cornwall Decoration on behalf of her son, David, who died of cancer a year ago at 15.

Scouting's highest award, it recognizes character, devotion to duty, great courage, endurance and gallantry.

The cancer began in David's leg when he was 14 and spread to his lungs. The leg later had to be amputated.

"David was terrific through it all," said Mrs. Burritt, a small blonde woman. "He would say 'a scout smiles in the face of adversity.'"

William Bridges, 18, received the bronze cross for "extraordinary gallantry" in rescue operations in an apartment building shattered by an explosion in Valle LaSalle last year. The rover helped at the explosion site from 8:15 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The smallest scout to receive an award was brown-haired Blair Isaac, 13, of Winnipeg, Blair, who saved a boy "more than twice his weight from drowning, got the silver cross. His reaction to being publicly honored by the Governor-General was "I was scared."
