The wise bride will shop carefully for wearing and apparel and accessories prior to the wedding. Her mother makes a good consultant. Roberta Lappin (left) models a going away suit displayed at T. Hair style picked to match costume

Hair styles continually change, but the bride who really wants to look her best coming down the aisle will take special care in choosing the style that will harmonize with her costume.

Her bridal hair style should be planned ahead, as are all the other numerous details of the wedding. In order to give herself sufficient time, she should visit her stylist about two weeks before the ceremony, taking her bridal headpiece with her. She and the stylist can then work out plans for a bridal coiffure, a coiffure which can later be combed into a style for travel and a more casual coiff for sports and relaxation.

SEVERAL STYLES
The stylist may try several arrangements until she and the bride decide on the perfect one.

The second step is a good foundation permanent which will help hold the hair firmly but softly in a number of different arrangements. There are many new permanents which leave the hair soft and easy to manage even on the first day of the permanent. This step should be taken the week after the bride's new hair style has been chosen.

Much planning needed for beautiful wedding

Every girl dreams of a beautiful wedding, whether it is in a setting from the delicate greens of spring to the vibrant reds and golds of autumn. The way to make this dream come true is in plenty of planning, and ample time to carry out these plans.

A future bride's mother is her best consultant, and should these two require further assistance, a bridal consultant and an etiquette book will help a bride-to-be through one of the most important ceremonies of her life.

LOOK FEMINE
Consultants urge a bride to strive to look feminine on her wedding day. Gloves, pretty shoes, and natural makeup combine to achieve this effect.

Simple bouquets are recommended "with not too many ribbons." The bouquet should not be too large and could have ivy trailing from it for a flowing effect. Carnations and painted daisies are popular for spring weddings.

Good meals cut divorce

Final advice is on the matter of registering gifts. When this is done, people will know what the bride needs.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — "It's quick, it's easy! Just pop it in the oven for three minutes and serve."

By keeping all these things in mind, and by following the rules of etiquette, the bride will find that her dream of a beautiful wedding has come true.

That's what the man on television tells you. "Just add water and bake."

Women, get back in the kitchen," she drives, "and find out how much fun and happiness you can get by devoting more time and imagination to the food you serve your family."

Miss Corbett, director of the restaurant in a big department store here, has proof that time spent in the kitchen can keep a family together.

She received a letter from a woman who said she and her husband planned to be divorced. The woman got a cook book, went into her kitchen and started planning and fixing meals.

"Dine — don't just eat. Eat with your feet under the table."

Get a cookbook — any cookbook. Sit down in a chair — a rocking chair is best — and plan your menu. Then go buy the freshest food you can find.

"Desire and pride and some natural shyness" Miss Corbett says.
