Emerson And Roche Enter London Final

LONDON (AP) — Australian tennis stars Roy Emerson and Tony Roche blasted their way into the final of the London Tennis Championships Friday, and the Americans only three days before the start of Wimbledon.

Emerson, reigning Wimbledon champion, edged Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., 6-4, 6-8, 6-4, but only after a fluctuating match that might have gone either way.

Roche, the left-hander who won both the Italian and French titles this year, outclassed Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., 6-2, 6-1.

In the women's semifinals, France's Francoise Durr scored effectively with lobs to beat Mary Ann Eisel of St. Louis 6-4, 6-4. Judy Tegart of Australia beat Trudy Groenman of The Netherlands 6-3, 6-3.

Ralston matched Emerson shot for shot for long spells. The match swung dramatically back and forth after two disturbances—an argument over a hole in the net and a shower of rain.

The hole was discovered in the ninth game of the first set when a service from Ralston was ruled to have gone through it. The umpire and the two players conferred around the hole and the net was changed.

Ralston eventually accepted the decision gracefully, but his concentration temporarily went to pieces.

He made two bad volleying errors and dropped his service to present Emerson with the first set. Previously, Ralston had lost only two points in four service games.

Emerson broke service again at 3-2 in the second set and appeared well on the way to a straight set victory. But a sudden shower gave Ralston the rest he needed to mend his shattered concentration.

After the break, he came back in top form, playing lobs and backhands like a master, and levelled at one set each.

American helped to defeat himself. He double-faulted twice in trail 0-1, fought back with brilliant service returns to level at 4-4 but served two more double faults in the next game and surrendered the match.

Emerson, who is trying for his third straight Wimbledon title, is seeded No. 1 for next week's tournament, with Roche No. 2 and Ralston No. 6. Riessen is unseeded.

to practise medicine or other secular professions, hold public office or work in commercial endeavors.

He gave to bishops the right to permit changes in garments and the external way of life of nuns and other members of religious orders. But he retained the power to alter their vows and internal regulations.

He also retained the right to make most exceptions to the general law that priests cannot be ordained before the age of 24. He said bishops could make exceptions of one year, but he had to rule on any greater exception.

RESERVED RIGHT Similarly, he reserved the right to approve marriages between relatives closer than second cousins.

His decree came six days after he postponed the effective dates of five ecumenical council documents, including the one on bishops.

They had all been scheduled to become operative June 29, but the Pope said that, on the advice of post-council commissions, he had decided they would be introduced more gradually into the life of the church.

The decree was the first in a series that will be issued over an extended period, until all sections of the pending documents have been implemented.

Other council documents, such as a decree on liturgical reform, already have gone into effect.

Longshoremen Push Efforts

MONTREAL (CP) — Longshoremen are working up to 16 hours a day in Quebec ports to clear a multi-million-dollar backlog of goods, but harbor officials estimate it will take three weeks to overcome the effects of the 39-day longshoremen's strike.

By an ILA executive ruling Tuesday, priority is being given to construction materials intended for the 1967 Montreal world's fair.

An Expo official said Friday all pavilions will be ready for the fair on schedule "though we're going to have to shuffle a bit to make it."

Le Mans Classic Today; Fords Pose Great Threat

LE MANS (Reuters)—American Fords are expected to make their strongest challenge yet to the Italian Ferraris in the 24-hour Le Mans, France, race today after a compromise settled a dispute which threatened to wreck the motor racing classic.

But Ferrari will be without the British former world champion, John Surtees, who walked out of the Italian team Thursday night after an argument with team manager Eugenio Dragoni.

Surtees, winner of the Belgian Grand Prix in a Ferrari on Sunday, was angered when Dragoni appointed Italian Ludovico Scarfiotti as reserve driver for the car Surtees was due to share with Britain's Mike Parkes.

Surtees flew to Italy Friday to discuss his future with Enzo Ferrari, founder and head of the Italian firm.

The Ford row with the Le Mans organizers blew up when the authorities disqualified Ford driver Richard Thompson for failing to stop after an accident in Thursday night's trials.

The organizers gave Ford special permission Friday to substitute a driver who had not taken part in any of the Le Mans practice sessions.

The compromise means that Graham Hill, another British former world champion who was to have teamed with Thompson in a seven-litre Ford, will be able to take part in the race.

Ford had threatened mass withdrawal of its eight, works-

Dr. J. Sutherland Bonnell Addresses Graduates

MONTAGUE BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN "We are sorry to hand you the world in such a mess, however we know you can and will cope with it successfully," stated Dr. J. Sutherland Bonnell, last night to the Graduating class of the Montague Regional High School.

He advised them: "You must learn the spirit of self-discipline, we live in a time of resentment of control which makes self-discipline necessary. The leadership of our country must and will be in your hands. Canada must elevate her education to hold her place in the world however we must not lose sight of the fact that real progress of the world comes from the common man and there are shiny goals ahead for you all!" He was introduced by Bernard C. Brown.

Paul Kingsbury, chairman of the school board welcomed all to the exercises and extended a strong invitation to all to attend the annual meeting of the school in September.

John Hughes, principal of the school expressed the opinion that next year it may be necessary to hold the graduating exercises in the new hockey rink so that all will have space to attend.

Speaking of the years work he said this graduating class is the result of the planning of all the teachers, board, parents and student themselves. It is your duty to keep before your children the value of education. He stressed the value of the general course and the need for a vocational school in the area.

"We have 100 going out 300 coming in next fall which means more space, we will be filled to capacity stated Mr. Hughes. He also stressed the need for a cafeteria for the school. To the graduates he said "you set the pace for the school, you were mature in your work, you were mature in your thinking, which made you the best class yet. You will go a long way, come back to see us," he concluded. The valedictory was delivered by Donna Walsh.

Two numbers were presented by the former glee club of the school under the direction of Mrs. John McGowan.

Platform guests were: Mrs. Arthur MacMillan, Mrs. Dorothy Nicholson, Mayor B.H. Yeo, Rev. J.S. Bonnell, Paul I. Kingsbury, James Cain, Waldo Taylor, Stewart Dewar.

Chairman for the program was vice principal John Yeo. Eugene Murphy organized the prizes and certificates.

Following the program teachers, graduates and guests mingled and were served refreshments in the teachers room.

Summerside Academy Has Final Graduation

SUMMERSIDE — St. Mary's Academy, situated on Central Street here, last evening graduated its final class of students. No longer will the students pass through the portals of this fine old institution as later this summer it will be torn down to make way for a new residence for the Sisters of Notre Dame who have been teaching in this town since they first arrived here in 1868.

The guest speaker, J. Elmer Murphy, felt there was a uniqueness to the occasion due to the fact that this is the last graduation ceremony that the school will ever have and that "consequently the whole student body is in a sense being graduated."

Mr. Murphy, who spent his first three school years at the Academy, had some nostalgic memories about the school which he mentioned during the course of his address, generally directed to the students.

He gave some of the history of the Academy, stating that the first sisters of the congregation of Notre Dame, three of them, arrived by boat in Summerside on October 12, 1868 and immediately commenced classes with 39 pupils. The first convent was located on the property of the present school, but on the corner of Summer and Convent streets, directly behind the present building.

The present convent building was erected in 1884, thus making it 82 years old. The Academy teaches only up to grade 10 and from there students complete their high school education in the town or elsewhere.

EXPRESSES HOPE The sisters who are now teaching at the Academy will, teach in the public schools and Mr. Murphy expressed his hope that this will result in better relations between the faiths in the town.

He cautioned the students that when they registered in whatever school they attend they should feel neither superior or inferior to the other students and whatever pride they have in being a member of the Academy's student body, should be transferred to the next institution they attend.

Monseigneur J. F. E. O'Hanley reiterated Mr. Murphy's words that this was a unique occasion, adding "but all good things come to an end." He noted that the Sisters of Notre Dame, since their first arrival 98 years ago, had performed a great service, not only to the parish but to the community as a whole.

They had also made a financial contribution to the parish, the town and the province, he said. "In those 98 years," he added, "I am sure they have saved the town and the province millions of dollars."

Chairman of the closing was Charles Hogan.
