

Staples Family Hopes To Get Out Of Public Eye

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP)—James Stanley Staples, plagued by ill fortune since he associated with Soviet officials, is planning to leave Ottawa in a few days, jobless and not too sure where he will next go.

The former air force civilian clerk, whose evidence led to the expulsion of Soviet diplomat Genadi Popov for attempted espionage, also said Wednesday his wife has already quit her job and has left with their two children for an undisclosed city.

Employed as an apprentice accountant since he was fired from his Rockcliffe air station clerking job last June, Staples said he realized the publicity on the affair has been embarrassing to his employers. He suggested he should quit and they then proposed the move Friday.

He disclosed that his wife, a Rockcliffe station stenographer, left her job Tuesday and slipped out of the city with their children. The Staples family to begin a new life in some part of Canada, out of the public eye.

Meanwhile, it appeared likely that Prime Minister St. Laurent will discuss the whole affair with reporters at a press conference Friday.

One federal decision already made is not to request the expulsion of another Soviet diplomat, Victor Selivanov, Russian embassy third secretary.

Selivanov and Popov were named by the Pan-Canadian Anti-Communist League in its brief to External Affairs Minister Pearson demanding greater control over Soviet embassy activities. The league charged the two men had attempted to extract information about the CP-105 jet fighter from Staples.

OBTAINED NO SECRETS
Saaples said he accepted $50 from Popov. It appeared to be an attempt at bribery and he returned the money. He said he gave the Russians no military secrets. However, Selivanov also was named by a Toronto factory worker, Pavlo Hlyshanyza, who fled the Ukraine in 1944 and still has a 15-year-old daughter there.

He has charged that the Russians have been exerting pressure on his daughter to force him back behind the Iron Curtain. He said Selivanov wrote him, offering to help him get back.

The external affairs department investigated the Hlyshanyza case but through there apparently was some criticism of Selivanov's actions, the evidence was insufficient to accuse him of attempted intimidation.

Soviet Ambassador Dmitri Chuvahin has kept silent publicly over the Popov ejection. This contrasts with more violent reaction in press of a Soviet diplomat from a western country usually was met by ejection of a representative of the Western power at Moscow.

AMONG THE FARMERS

Federation of Agriculture Newsletter

OCTOBER ACTIVITIES

For the Prince Edward Island farmer October will be a month crowded with a variety of activities. There is still much of the bumper harvest to be stored, almost the entire potato crop to be dug and practically all the fall plowing to be dealt with. If the weather is favourable an amazing amount of work can be accomplished and that in spite of the fact that the days are getting very much shorter and the evenings closing in at a much earlier hour. Should the weather be broken and unfavourable much of the fall's work will run into November and it is not a comforting thought to remember that last winter set in about the middle of that month.

From day to day we hear our urban friends remarking on the wet weather, true there has been sufficient wet to hold up harvesting operations but there has not been enough to moisten to the point where it is fit for plowing.

It is possible to plow but only at the expense of a great deal of gasoline being used and much wear and tear on the plowshares.

BUSINESS CONCERN

Nearly all citizens appreciate the fact that agriculture is an important industry in the Maritimes and that the farmers' welfare is of concern to other occupations. There is evidence to indicate that more and more Maritime businessmen are becoming concerned with the problems and position of the farming industry. APEC set up an agricultural committee to study Maritime problems and increasingly business groups are including panels and talks on agriculture in the agenda of their meetings. It is important that farmers and farm organizations accept the responsibility of explaining to other groups the farmer's problems and the possible steps that may be taken to solve them. It is important also that farm organizations have available persons who are capable of discussing agricultural matters in public and who will make their time available when such opportunities present themselves.

Just as the farmer has misconceptions with respect to business so do many business people entertain ideas about farmers and farming that are in need of modification. Business groups are commended on their awakening interest in agriculture, the farmer should not be backward in meeting with businessmen to explain his viewpoint.

HAY OR GRAIN BURNER

The cow is, basically, an instrument for changing a variety of feeds into milk or meat. The efficiency with which the cow does this job will have considerable bearing on the profit to the farmer and the quality, cost and choice of feeds available will have much to do with the net returns. The cow was originally designed to convert roughage such as grass, hay, straw, corn and roots into milk. However, interwar high production per cow has induced many farmers to purchase pure bred breeders in particular to feed the cow large quantities of expensive grain mixtures. We remember of being told a number of years ago by an eastern Ontario farmer that a rule-of-thumb guide for purchasing concentrates was that if 100 of milk would not pay for 100 of feed then it was not profitable to buy the feed.

Tests carried out over a period of years to determine the relative profit in feeding cows (a) entirely on roughage (b) on roughage and light grain feeding (c) on roughage and heavy grain feeding (1 pound of grain to 3 pounds of milk) indicate that it was more profitable to feed good roughage with grain at the rate of 1 pound to 5 pounds of milk rather than all roughage or roughage and grain at the rate of 1 to 3 pounds of milk. With light grain feeding 1 pound produces roughly 3.4 of a pound of milk at the heavier rate it produces 4.5 pound. Whether or not the farmer should feed grain to his cows will depend on the price of milk and the price of grain. When the price of grain is $40.00 per ton and the price of milk is over $3.50 heavy grain feeding will likely be profitable but if grain is $75.00 a ton and milk below $3.50 per 100 it will likely be more profitable to feed roughage alone.

NOT INSURABLE

In a country with a climate such as Canada much employment is bound to be of a seasonal nature and while this may not have been the only reason behind the Unemployment Insurance program it is one which is of very great importance so far as many industries are concerned, this is not due to any lack of interest or thought on the part of organized farmers. Generally the Federation of Agriculture has been unwilling to recommend that the program apply to agriculture on a compulsory basis. The Unemployment Insurance Commission has possibly had some reservations as well as fearing the difficulties involved in dealing with a large number of farm operators. The Commission has also been reluctant to make insurance available on a voluntary basis. However, there may be good causes for believing that this may be the approach to the matter which will be accepted eventually. The farmer who employs seasonal workers would probably benefit to a greater extent than would the farmer who em-

Blame CNR For Transportation To Newfoundland

MONREAL (CP)—An organization of automobile dealers Wednesday blamed the Canadian National Railways for what it called a "deplorable transportation arrangement" between Newfoundland and the Canadian mainland.

A resolution to this effect was unanimously approved by nearly 1,000 delegates to the annual convention of the Federation of Automobile Dealers Associations of Canada.

A spokesman said copies will be sent to CNR President Donald Gordon and Immigration Minister Pickersgill, Newfoundland representative in the federal cabinet.

The resolution charged that severe congestion has occurred on railway sidings leading into the port of Halifax every spring and winter since Newfoundland entered Confederation in 1949.

LONG WAIT

In March and April of this year, 1,500 automobiles destined for Newfoundland were delayed on rail lines from Halifax to Truro, N.S., the resolution said. "Often, Newfoundland auto dealers have had to wait until May to get their new stocks."

The resolution added: "Only by providing suitable shipping space for proper and safe handling of auto and truck traffic between the mainland and Newfoundland can the present deplorable situation be corrected on a permanent basis."

At present, dealers suffer "severe and very real financial losses through interest charges and lost sales because of the one and two month delays in shipments."

The CNR sublets ocean transport between Halifax and St. John's. It is to private shipping contractors. Another main link is through North, Sydney, N.S.

Mr. Charles MacInnis, President of the Ontario Hog Marketing Board in a recent presidential address set out what in his opinion the objectives of organized agriculture should be. Said Mr. MacInnis, "It is the duty therefore, of organized agriculture to develop a program at this time which is not just a palliative, but a corrective plan. We must move positively toward a goal for agriculture which will supply efficient farmers with a standard of living comparable to the dignity of his position as a food producer. A standard of living which will enable him to provide for his dependants and make his proper contribution to the economic stability of Canada. We must move positively forward toward a sound business-like and modern marketing policy which will make use of a restored open market."

Mr. MacInnis also had something to say on human values, a statement which we feel is worth repeating. "There has been a great deal of study given to soil conservation programs. We need to conserve the top six inches of our soil, the water supply, our trees, and natural wild life. They are important to the future. Far too little, however, has been spent and far too little done about conserving those values which make human beings human."

"When a farmer works intelligently and diligently for six days a week to provide food for his fellow Canadians and others in the world, and then at the end of the week finds that his dependants are not as well provided for as the dependants of those who have served only eight hours for five days of the week, it does something to his way of life."

Young Pianist Commences Canadian Tour In P.E.I.

Malcolm Troup, eminent young Canadian pianist, gave a concert last evening at the Prince of Wales College Auditorium, under the sponsorship of the Charlottetown Chapters of the I. O. D. E. The hall was filled and the discriminating concert goers had an evening which left nothing further to wish for.

The programme began with Czerny who is of course remembered for his studies. (Almost a bugaboo of little junior students!) The Czerny on this occasion variations on the area "La Ricordanza" of Rode, Op 33 is a piano composition rescued from oblivion. Mr. Troup's prodigious technique, precision and velocity with which he played. Truly fleet - fingered!

Then came the majestic Sonata in F Minor, Op. 5 by Brahms. Mr. Troup's definitely belongs to the great Romantic tradition. He is an interpreter in the almost lost art of the grand manner in piano playing.

This Brahms Sonata is seldom over been accorded, and on a very great scale - "pomp and majesty." It requires from a pianist the utmost in endurance. During Mr. Troup's recent tour of Europe which was one of the greatest successes any young pianist has ever been accorded, he played the Brahms Sonata in Hamburg, the birthplace of Brahms. Hamburg gave him an ovation on this occasion. They hailed him as a virtuoso in the interpretery of their worshipped Brahms.

GHOSTLY ATMOSPHERE

In the "Gospard de la Nuit" by Ravel the influence of the teacher Gieseking was shown. Mr. Troup had studied this piece in Europe with Gieseking one of the world's greatest exponents of French music.

le. This composition is ghostly in atmosphere. Tarentella, Op. 43 by Chopin was a sharp contrast (the low of all art) with its rhythm of the dance.

Of the four studies from Op. 25 by Chopin, the first the Aeolian harp is the most familiar, and the last the A Minor "Winder Wind" the most difficult.

Legende No. 2 "St. Francis Walk on the waves" by Liszt is most descriptive. The sublime legend is the inspiration for this music again in the grand manner.

The chief encore was a patriotic composition, a paraphrase of God Save the Queen. This is dedicated to the Daughters of the Empire.

Mr. Troup's taste is for the larger greater works played in the grand manner.

His whole programme exemplified the highest virtuoso demands. In fact to quote the German press "Malcolm Troup is the strongest pianist of the rising generation." He will be heard again Saturday evening at Summerside.

Lone Sailor Plans To Wed

QUEBEC (CP)—A laconic Scot who made a solo crossing of the Atlantic in a tiny sloop says he's planning to feel like a man in a cage.

The trip was wonderful, he said, except for "four or five gales that blew me about a bit in the middle of the Atlantic."

His immediate plans, he smiled, are to reach Montreal first and secure his boat there, then return by sea to Scotland where he plans to marry. After returning to Canada with his bride he may follow his initial inclination and carry on to Australia.

How? with the Salmio, of course.

SETTLE 26 STOPPAGES

OTTAWA (CP)—Twenty-eight of the 52 work stoppages existing during August in Canadian industries were settled by the month's end away in search of a post-lice.

Later, comfortably settled over a couple of drinks, he expressed surprise at the interest people suddenly showed in him.

"One would think that I keep on starting at them from a cage, or something," he said.

WONDERFUL TRIP

He had found nothing unusual in the crossing. It was made solo because a partner let him down by announcing 24 hours before the scheduled departure that he couldn't come.

Foulkes Takes Issue With Simonds Over Jet Fighter

OTTAWA (CP)—Gen. Charles Foulkes chairman of the joint chiefs of staff Wednesday night took issue with Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, former chief of the army general staff, and Maj. - Gen. W. H. S. Macklin, retired army adjutant-general.

Gen. Simonds has said that cost of developing the new CF - 105 supersonic jet fighter is "money down the drain and that Canada should be working on guided missiles.

In a speech before the Canadian Industrial Preparedness Association, Gen. Foulkes said the intercontinental ballistic missile "is some way off and for some time to come the intercontinental bomber will provide a much more accurate delivery system than the ballistic missile."

MORE RADAR

Gen. Foulkes said more radar will have to be introduced into the air defence system to ensure that interceptions by fighters can be made beyond the settled part of Canada to avoid effects of radioactive fallout on Canadian cities.
