Canadian Government Becoming Impatient At U. S. Delay On Seaway

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—The Canadian Government is becoming "somewhat impatient" at United States delay on the St. Lawrence Seaway, Transport Minister Chevrier said Thursday.

The Minister said Canada is looking for an early reply from Washington concerning several questions involving the future of the $750,000,000 power-navigational project. Canada is committed to building alone the $300,000,000 navigation works.

Long Delay

In an address prepared for delivery to the Chamber of Commerce of this Lakehead city, Mr. Chevrier noted that the U.S. Federal Power Commission has been dealing for almost five months with an application of the New York State Power Authority to join the Ontario government in building the hydro works.

An FCC adjournment on Feb. 2, he said, indicates it may be some time yet before it reaches a decision.

"All I desire to tell our friends to the south," Mr. Chevrier said, "is that we are naturally becoming somewhat impatient at the delays in this matter, which to us is of vital concern."

"Will there be no end to these delays? Why should it be necessary to postpone decision for an unnecessarily long period? We cannot expect an early decision on the New York state application."

Would Like Answer

"These are questions to which Canadians would like an answer, and I believe no one can complain about our desire to have one."

Mr. Chevrier's statement was a reply to a memorandum the Canadian Government sent to the U.S. administration recently, suggesting that there be no further delays in a start on the seaway.

New Battles In Committee Are Looked For

OTTAWA, (CP)—The Army Works detachment in Ottawa spent $135,000 to renovate a house in 1952 without first getting authority to do so, according to an official document now in the hands of members of the Commons defence committee. The project was later approved.

The document is a summary of reports by the Defence Department's auditors about breaches of various rules by detachments of the Army Works Services in 1950, 1951 and 1952.

Expect New Battles

It is bound to provoke new battle in the committee because Opposition members want to see the auditor's reports themselves and not abridged summaries prepared by the department.

Most Striking Case

The summary of the Ottawa reports indicates that the Ottawa works detachment expended $135,000 "in excess of authorizations for the project on file." It doesn't give the total cost of the renovation of a home called Wallis House to make it into No. 13 personnel depot.

Refuses To Accept Apology For Bombing

LONDON, (AP)—Moscow radio announced Thursday that the Soviet Union has broken off diplomatic relations with Israel.

The break came three days after terrorists bombed the Soviet legation in Tel Aviv. Four of the legation personnel, including the wife of the Soviet minister, Pavel I. Yershov, were injured.

The bombing was attributed generally to anti-Zionist charges in Moscow in connection with a purge of nine doctors, some of whom were Jewish. The doctors were accused of destroying or attempting to destroy some top Soviet leaders.

Charge Connivance

The announcement of the break came a few hours after a Moscow broadcast accused Israeli police of "connivance" in the bomb explosion.

Moscow radio said a formal note to Israel severing relations was "in connection with the bomb explosion."

Israeli government officials, headed by Premier David Ben-Gurion, already had denounced the bombing as a "dastardly" act which they said reflected on the honor of the state of Israel.

A number of important resolutions were passed including the recommendation that during the coming year an educational program be launched to enable the buying public to become better acquainted with the several different product grades and varieties.

Another resolution of far-reaching importance was adopted which called for Messrs. David Peacock and James Nicholson to make an exhaustive survey of methods used in harvesting and handling grassilage, for the purpose of preparing a report which will be published in due time.

Other resolutions passed will be presented to the Government at an early date for consideration.

Other officers elected were: Mr. S. C. Wright, vice president, and Mr. A. C. Levesque, secretary.

The forese a necessity for them to make snap decisions on vital items such as Korea. They note a possibility of American defeats and Russian propaganda advantages in the unprecedented situation.

Previous pro-American majorities in previous sessions of the 60-country assembly, they maintain, have been won by a combination of two factors: U.S. policy was generally approved by the majority of the free world for independent reasons, and specific courses of action were drawn up after exhaustive consultations among many countries.

The U.S. delegation had, and still has, members whose primary task has been to coax, explain and exhort support for united front.

Now, with the assembly opening in 13 days, the U.S. mission has received no instructions from Washington and its "persuasion boys" have not begun work.

Some delegates privately are disturbed. They say they are held up in determining their own policies and complain it is "rather difficult to reach decisions at the last moment."

The new U.S. delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., is flying to Washington Thursday and delegations here hope he will return with at least the outlines of U.S. policies.

Communists Talk Tough Of New Berlin Blockade

BERLIN, (AP)—The Communists are talking tough about a new blockade of Berlin.

The East Berlin party leadership issued a manifesto, obviously backed by the Russians, which declared "further isolation" of the West sectors can be counted on if West Germany ratifies the European Defence Treaty next month.

Only Western adoption of the Soviet proposal for uniting Germany and Berlin can stave off such consequences, the Communists declared. Their manifesto was printed by the Soviet Army newspaper, Taegische Rundschau.

In West Berlin, a spokesman for the dominant Socialist party said the manifesto apparently is the starting signal for new measures against the West.

American authorities said the declaration was so bold and blunt it must be taken seriously. Nevertheless, Cecil Lyon, chief of the United States high commission in Berlin staff, commented tersely: "Sometimes they say one thing and do another."

While the West was weighing the words of the new threat, the Communists were going about measures that were suspiciously like preparations that preceded the Berlin blockade of 1948-49.

Salesman Missing Two Years Found At Halifax

By KINGSLEY BROWN JR., Canadian Press Staff Writer. HALIFAX, (CP)—A missing Quebec wax salesman who worked here two years as a male nurse named Paul Dupuis and became engaged, learned Wednesday that he is apparently married.

Mr. Dupuis was identified by R.C.M.P. as Laurent Dube, 32, missing since his car smashed into a bridge near Shediac, N.B., two years ago. His curlier's tam was found in the Seoudouk River.

"My wife?" Dube whispered when told by a Canadian Press reporter that the woman he married 4 1/2 years ago was travelling from Quebec to visit him.

"Nobody told me I was married," he sobbed. "I received no telegram. Are you sure?"

After a Quebec dispatch was read to him again, he said, almost audibly: "I guess it is good that I never married."

Mrs. Dube, who has been working as a sales girl and living with her father since her husband disappeared on a business trip said she was believed dead, said in Quebec she was "very glad to hear the news."

The Dube has no children. Dube, a handsome, dark, curly haired man who appears younger than his years, was identified through fingerprints on file since he served in the Army.

Reporter Al Savage of the Mail-Star reported the finding of Dube after learning about the fingerprints.

"I must be Laurent Dube, that's all," Dupuis said in an interview. "I will try to find out who my relatives are."

He said he must have picked up his medical experience while serving with the Canadian Army Medical Corps. While at the hospital he met an unidentified nurse and has been courting her steadily.

He said he awoke in a Truro hotel with $88 and no identification in his pockets. He recalled

Rosenbergs Lose Latest Appeal

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Eisenhower has refused to spare the lives of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, sentenced to death in the electric chair for conspiring to slip atomic secrets to Russia.

The Rosenbergs, man and wife, are awaiting execution in New York's Sing Sing prison.

They appealed for presidential clemency on the ground that they are innocent. With the appeal, federal Judge Irving Kaufman of New York granted a stay of execution until five days after the president announced his decision.

This does not necessarily mean the couple will die five days hence. The question of a date for their execution will come before Judge Kaufman again.
