

Basic Instinct...

sell out many nights over. She told me that Basic Instinct has opened new doors as to what is and will be allowed to be shown in movies under the rating Restricted.

If anyone has seen this movie, or plans to see it and feels the same way I do, please go the manager and tell her. One person can not make a difference, and I doubt one hundred people can make a difference because sex in movies in the nineties is pushed further to the limits with each new release.

I would also like to make a retraction referring back to my remark about other peoples morals. Apparently, I am a minority when it comes to matters such as this one, so, I take back what I said before and replace it with... I guess my values have not broadened with societies changes towards sex of any type on the big screen, thank goodness, because I fell it is very inappropriate. I also know I stand nearly all by myself when I say it is wrong for Basic Instinct to be shown in theatres under the rating Restricted. I will gladly accept both positive and negative feedback with regards to this article.

Review of Island Smoke

On Thursday April 2, I attended the premiere of Greg Dunham's play 'Island Smoke' at Offstage theatre. Although not for those with a weak constitution. It was a powerful, entertaining performance.

For some it may hit very close to home in its portrayal of an 'Island way of life'.

The play is set in rural PEI on a halloween night. The drama centers around an 'Island dope grower' trying to get out of the business. Paul Broadbent gives an excellent performance as the protagonist Ron Renay. L.K. Symth is heart-wrenching as Jenny, Ron's wife. Another strong performance is that of Corin McFadden in the role of 'Sully' a frustrated young man. Newcomer tot he stage, Wylaine LaFoy is endearing as Jenny's sister 'Carol.' Leith Chu rounds out the cast as 'Smolak' the buyer.

All in all a fine performance well worth attending. The play will be running at Offstage Theatre 64 King St. on Thursday April 9 at 8:00 pm, Friday April 10 at 11:00 pm and Saturday April 11 at 8:00 pm
