Sees Montreal Poor Port For Winter Traffic

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—The Irish freighter Carrigan Head is loading grain here for the return trip to Belfast after spending three ice-bound days in the St. Lawrence River at Montreal.

Capt. William A. Haddock told reporters here there should be a winter deadline on shipping into Montreal. "Next year," he said, "we will play it safe and come to Saint John instead of Montreal this late in the season."

Capt. Haddock, with 41 years as a seaman behind him, said he thinks any ship entering Montreal port this time of year is taking a chance.

The Carrigan arrived Saturday from Belfast with a cargo ranging from herring to linen and nylon stockings after what Capt. Haddock termed an "easy passage in spite of the enforced stay at Montreal."
