THE DAILY EXAMINER.

JUNE 11, 1892.

Trade of Canada.

TRADE throughout Canada seems to be well maintained, notwithstanding a temporary dullness in some parts. The ocean shipping arrived at Montreal in May, 1892, is 17,000 tons in excess of the highest previous record. A new unsubsidized steamship line to the West Indies will soon be started from Montreal. The Furness Line between St. John and Great Britain is increasing its service. Altogether the indications are that the Canadian trade of this year will be in excess of that of last year, which was $11,000,000 in excess of that of 1890.

The President of the Bank of Montreal pointed out a few days ago that the capital of that Bank has been increased from $350,000 in 1817 to $2,000,000 in 1841, $4,000,000 in 1855, $6,000,000 in 1880, and $12,000,000 in 1891, with a rest of $6,000,000. The growth of the Bank of Montreal is typical of the growth of the trade of the country. "As with the Bank of Montreal," said Sir Donald Smith, "so has the commerce of the whole country vastly increased within the last fifty and more, particularly twenty-five years."

"In 1868," continued the President, "the total value of our foreign trade was $131,027,532. Since then it has fluctuated more or less, moving at times upwards, and in other seasons receding; but you will be very glad to learn that during the last two or three years the tendency has been steadily towards expansion, and that the trade returns issued within the last fortnight and covering the entire fiscal year up to April 30, show an extraordinary development as contrasted with the preceding year, the figure of the export trade being: 1891, $77,452,314, and 1892, $88 435,793, and this, notwithstanding the McKinley Bill." These statistics show that great material progress has been made by Canada, particularly in recent years. It is, as Sir Donald Smith remarked, "gratifying to record that during the past year, when the securities of other colonies sank in value owing to their excessive borrowings and when there was a general depreciation in the value of European bonds, those of the Dominion, owing to a prudent abstention from the London market, continued to maintain their price."

There is no arguing against these figures and these facts. Still, there is abundant cause for continued caution and care on the part of business men.

—The Board of Trade of Halifax has appointed G Morrow, A. P. Silver and W. J. Stewart, delegates to attend the congress of the Chamber of Commerce of the empire, which meets in London on June 28th. The delegates have been instructed to take no active part in the imperial federation discussion, but to participate in the debate on other topics to come up for consideration. Is the Charlottetown Board of Trade not going to take any action in this matter?

The Races at Tryon.

A fine day yesterday and the well conducted races at the Driving Park made the large number of people who went to North Tryon thoroughly enjoy themselves. There were over 500 people at the track and the best of order prevailed. We give below a statement of the result of the races:

3-MINUTE RACE.

1 Jess, owned by Wm Murphy, Augustine Cove.
2 Maud Alaska, owned by Capt McKinnon, S'side.
3 Maud D, owned by ———

3 YEAR-OLD RACE.

1 Minnie S, owned by H Horne, Ch'town.
2 Egmont B, owned by Capt McKinnon, S'side.
3 Willie Lee, owned by N Dawson, Tryon.

GREEN RACE.

1 Lady Hilda, owned by G Thorne, Ch'town
2 Doll, owned by Wm Warren, Tryon.
3 Billy D, owned by ———

The judges were Mr. W. H. Manson, S'side, Mr. John Irving, Cape Traverse, and Mr. Bowman. Timer, Mr. P. S. Brown.

Sabbath School Day.

To morrow's services in the Second Methodist church, promise to be of a very interesting character. The whole day will be devoted to S. S. Anniversary exercises. Rev. W. W. Brewer will occupy the pulpit in the morning and preach a sermon suitable to the occasion.

In the afternoon, beginning at the usual hour, there will be a brief session of the school. Parents and friends of the children, together with the public generally, are cordially invited to be present at 2.45 o'clock, p. m., when an attractive program will open, in which members of the school will act the chief parts.

Reports and brief addresses will be given and a special collection will be taken.

There will be special features in connection with the evening service also. The pastor will occupy the pulpit and preach upon "youthful instruction that results in peace." The church and Sunday School choirs will join in rendering the musical part of the service. The evening offertory will be for the regular funds of the church. It may be added, by way of a special appeal, that if our friends will signalize this S. S. Anniversary by a liberal offering on Sabbath evening they will aid in the solution of serious difficulties, and greatly cheer the hearts of the church officials.

C. W. H.

One of the special provisions made in Minneapolis for the accommodation of the Republican convention delegates is the largest bar-room in America with 150 attendants to wait on the thirsty guests. It is in this that a good deal of the enthusiasm the despatches tell the country about will be generated.

PRINCE OF WALES COLLEGE

The Closing Exercises Last Evening.

NAMES OF THE PRIZE-WINNERS.

THE closing exercises in connection with the Prince of Wales College and Normal School took place in the Philharmonic Hall last evening. There was a large attendance of citizens generally, and very great interest was taken in the proceedings. On the platform we noticed the Hon. Frederick Peters, Premier of the Province and President of the Board of Education, Mr. Justice Hensley, R. R. Fitzgerald, Esq., Q C., Dr. Anderson and the teaching staff of the College and the pupils of the institution. D. J. McLeod, Esq., Chief Superintendent of Education, occupied a seat in the body of the hall.

The programme of exercises will be found below:

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN.

The essays by Miss Fairlie Durant, of Margate, and Miss Katie Hughes, of Emerald, were cleverly written and were well read. Both productions evidenced considerable literary ability on the part of the writers.

The valedictory was read by Miss Durant, and is as follows:

The college year has now drawn to a close, and the majority of us are about to sever our connection with this institution to take our part in the duties of life, for which our attendance here has greatly assisted us.

We are deeply grateful to our Professors for selecting such an excellent course of study, and for the care and patience with which they have endeavoured to smooth all our difficulties and to imbue us with a desire for knowledge.

Many important changes have taken place in the course of the term Owing to the resignation of Mr. Shuttleworth, professor of science, at the close of the last term, Mr. Harcourt, graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College, was appointed to fill the vacancy.

Towards the latter part of the first term, Mr. McLeod left us to accept the more responsible position of Chief Superintendent of Education. It is needless for us to enlarge on his recognized popularity as a teacher.

The appointment of Mr. George E. Robinson to succeed him was a matter of pleasure and congratulation to the students, to many of whom his name and talents were already familiar. We need not add that he has fully borne out the expectations that were entertained of him.

Last year, under Rev. Mr. Lloyd's tuition, we made considerable progress in music, notwithstanding the limited period during which we were under his instruction; but throughout this session our training has been continuous from beginning to end. The hours spent with him have been both profitable and enjoyable, and the instruction we received has enabled us to pass a successful examination.

The interest in athletic sports was increased by the kindness of Hon. Premier Peters, in presenting football jerseys to the College for the use of the team. There are still many improvements needed in connection with the College, but Mr. Peters has inspired us with the hope that these will soon be attended to.

The necessity of using the Philharmonic Hall for our closing exercises and also the crowded condition of Dr. Anderson's room at roll call, clearly show how much we need a hall of our own. The class-rooms also are entirely too small to accommodate the increasing number of students, and the arrangement of having them in seperate buildings causes great annoyance during unfavorable weather.

We would suggest that until the Government are able to build a new college, an extension be put to the rear of the present building.

As it is the custom of most colleges to have "colours," this year, with Dr. Anderson's approval, we have selected ours—bright blue and scarlet. We sent away for them, and as they have not yet arrived, we have adopted the best substitute we could under the circumstances.

And now, in conclusion:—It is with regret that we must say farewell to both principal and professors, and take our leave of the college, where we have so many pleasant hours; and however varied our duties may be, and in whatever part of the world our lot may be cast, we shall always retain a warm spot in our hearts for our dear old Prince of Wales.

Dr. Anderson, in replying to the valedictory, expressed his regret and the regret of the other teachers at parting with the students. But the parting was now necessary. The associations between teachers and pupils during the year had been very pleasant, and he hoped the pupils would carry out in after life, so far as they possibly could, the spirit of the instructions they had received while at the College. He then referred in complimentary terms to the former students of the College who have distinguished themselves abroad, as well as to some who have made names for themselves at home At Dalhousie, said he, we have had such clever Islanders as the Misses Ross, and Messrs. Brehaut and Duchemin; at McGill, Shaw, Longworth, McLeod, Molntosh and McPhail; at Harvard there are six or seven others, and at Cornell we have D. D Hugh, of Murray Harbor, and Victor Coffin, of Mount Stewart, and that other distinguished Islander, Prof. J. G Schurman, who has only recently been chosen President of that university which although one of the youngest institutions of the kind in the United States, ranks amongst the most advanced. At home we have the present Premier of the Province, the Hon. Mr. Peters, a student who distinguished himself in his day, and Mr. R. R Fitzgerald, Q. C., who was also a very clever scholar. Mr. Fitzgerald, if his memory served him, was an older student than Mr. Peters, he being in attendance at the time of his (Dr. Anderson's) arrival there some thirty years ago. He was pleased to have both gentlemen present on this occasion assisting in the exercises Miss Durant, in her address, referred to some of the difficulties experienced at the College owing to the lack of class-room accommodation. The difficulty, however, is not so much the want of class-room as the want of hall-room. Especially is this want noticeable in winter—for in summer the students have the large play grounds. It is almost impossible for the students to pass each other now without colliding; and as a matter of fact, collisions do occur, but they are always disposed of in a true Christian spirit. In conclusion, Dr. Anderson said the staff of the College would be glad to welcome back those who had to resume their studies and would be at all times pleased to hear of the success of those who were now leaving the institution.

The diplomas and medals awarded were then presented to the successful students by Premier Peters, who warmly congratulated the winner in each case. Dr. Anderson, in the course of some remarks, spoke highly of the work done by the students during the year, referring especially to the splendid records of Mr. Peter Grant and Miss Fairlie Durant, who stood first and second respectively, and between whom there was only an average difference of about four-sevenths of a mark.

R. R. Fitzgerald, Esq, Q C., remarked that there was one thing said by Dr. Anderson in the course of his address that was strictly correct, and that was that he (Mr Fitzgerald) was a student at the Prince of Wales College thirty years ago. Thirty years was a long period, but to him it seemed like yesterday. An occasion such as this has for every student a feeling that only an old student can have, and it gave him great pleasure to be present and assist at the exercises, as well as at all times to do all in his power to help along the institution. The College had done a good work in the past and is still doing a good work in the matter of educating young men and women, and fitting them for fighting the battles of life. Many of her old students have distinguished themselves abroad, a fact of which every true Islander must feel proud. The time of training in college was, to his mind, the most important in the life of the young man or woman. It was highly important that they should study hard during their youth to qualify themselves for their after life. Take advantage of the time of youth—and work hard. Greatness may be for you—or it may not. But work hard and strive for it. Mr Fitzgerald brought his remarks to a close by giving the students some excellent advice as to what books they should read—referring particularly to the study of history.

Premier Peters said he was afraid Dr. Anderson had converted the meeting into a sort of mutual admiration society The Dr. had referred to some of the young ladies and gentlemen turned out by the Prince of Wales College, and in so doing had spoken of himself (Mr. Peters) as a bright student. He denied the charge made against him. He noticed, however, that the soft impeachment came dangerously near a request for a new hall! He agreed with Dr. Anderson that a hall was very necessary, and regretted that they could not have one. If the public purse could only be stretched like the football jerseys referred to by Miss Durant in her valedictory, they would have the hall within twelve months! The Prince of Wales College was a most important part of our educational system. It is from it that we get our supply of teachers, and this year the quality and supply is fully equal, if not superior, to that of former years. It gave him great pleasure to be present and watch the closing exercises and present the prizes to those who have won them. It was an especial pleasure for him to be able to tell the students that they had done well and to advise them to keep on as they have begun. The essays were excellent, and he listened to them with the very greatest pleasure. The essay by Miss Durant was especially good—a gem in its way. The singing class was a new and especially pleasing feature—a feature that all agreed should be continued. Mr. Fitzgerald, in his address, told the students what histories they should study—and how they should read about Pharaoh's daughter and other such people of bygone days. This may be all very good from Mr. Fitzgerald's point of view, but for his (Mr. Peters') own part he would rather have an introduction to one good-looking young lady of our own day than to any number of Miss Pharoahs! He was not of those who would advise the student to study hard during the holiday season. Instead of studying, he would strongly advise them to throw aside their books and forget that there was such a thing as school till the vacation was over—to take all the outside exercise they could and when they resumed their studies after the holidays they would be able to do more and better work. The students and the college had his best wishes for continued success.

The various choruses by the choir of pupils under the direction of Rev. Prof. Lloyd were well given—speaking volumes for the thoroughness of the instruction imparted.

He Should Have Been There.

SIR,—At the Philharmonic Hall last night, I was surprised to find that the Superintendent of Education took no part in the closing exercises of the Prince of Wales College. It struck me at the time that Mr. McLeod, who, until his appointment as Superintendent, took a leading part in the work of the College, should have been on the platform last night with the other speakers. It only seems in accordance with the fitness of things, that the head of the Educational Department of the Province should have addressed the students of our P. W. C. on the occasion of their breaking-up for the summer vacation.

TEACHER.

Written for the Examiner:

Marcus Curtius.

Still, in these balmier days of Rome
The mother tells the child
That once, within the Forum, oped
A chasm deep and wild.

That every heart, with horror chilled,
Unto the altar hied;
Soothsayers, augurs sought the cause,
Yet answer was denied.

At length an aged seer proclaimed
"The gods will vengeance wreak,
Till sacrifice, cast in the gulf,
Doth penitence bespeak."

The heartless miser clutched his gold;
Affection claimed its own;
Yet, mystery beyond all ken,
Such gifts might ill atone.

'Neath blackened sky the winds moaned on,
Wide yawned the dark abyss;—
Oh, Heavens! was ever sore suspense
Or terror like to this!

. . . . . .

Hark! sweet as angel symphony
'Tis found! the offering's found!"
And forward press the eager throng
To find due vantage ground.

What star descendeth through the gloom
To rift dark sorrow's night?
Is't hero from the battlefield
Or monarch girt with might?

Up rides young Marcus Curtius
Upon his milk white steed;
No word, but waving of the hand,
As he dashes on with speed.

Unto the dreary chasm's mouth;—
The frighted charger springs,
He rears, he snorts, and foamy flakes
O'er Curtius' armor flings.

Fair picture for all spheres and times!
Upon death's borderland;
One gleam of sunshine for his crown,
See Rome's self martyr stand!

He gently soothed his noble horse;
Then, as from silver bell,
Upon the wondering multitude.
His calm, clear accents fell.

"Romans," he said, "not arms, not wealth
Heaven claims of you this day;
Nor gifts of wisdom, love or lore,
Howe'er so precious they.

"Hear me, Oh, citizens of Rome!
This lesson richly prize;
Best gift, and parent of good deeds
Is true self-sacrifice.

"I offer to the immortal gods,
Who list my solemn vow,
That life which for my country lived;
Which dieth for it now."

He backed his steed; threw down his casque;
Gazed on the sacred height;
Then—forward to the vast abyss
As soldier to the fight.

With right hand raised above his head,
His sword within its sheath,
He urges on the maddened steed
Which bears him to his death.

One moment, and with mighty bound,
He plunges to repose;
One dull, sad sound; but one, and then—
The yawning gulf doth close.
