A thank-offering to God, free of which was to be given to this Society. He did not wish his name to be known; and he only placed on his name the name of the Society, as a beautiful trait by christian faith and love, and with the hope some may be stirred up to do like works.

And now, brethren, among the many and various claims upon you for sympathy and support, may we not hope you will afford something for the Jew. It is without significance, that all the meetings held in Toronto, the Jewish meeting is generally one of the best attended and most interesting.

Be sure of this, the conversion of the Jew hath no ordinary claim upon the Christian; and we see with great satisfaction, that the Lord is daily increasing the number of Israel's friends here and elsewhere. We have been again privileged to receive a donation from Mr. Kirk's congregation at Malpasque amounting to £5.

Shall we remind you that the Jew is one of a people who have been the world's noxious manufacturers and God's most faithful witnesses and though they are still in darkness and tribulation, they cherish the recollection of their ancestors as deeply as any nation;—and all the more strongly perhaps, because there is nothing left to them but the name and memory of their abjector.

Shall we remind you, the Jew is never found so cold, so poorly degraded, but that his heart will leap for joy, when he is reminded that Israel shall yet be gathered; and yet will take her place among the nations, and be foremost in all that can make a nation great. With the missionaries of this Society, the predictions of scripture referring to the restoration of the Jews, are not only believed, but are earnestly and earnestly of the future glories of Jacob's race and family.

Indeed, we have seen the same spirit of the Jews, with them essentially and a lively hope, as the wandering Jew or the everlasting Jew as the legend has it, to be found in the hearts of the Jews, who are Agents in their efforts for the conversion of the Jew for no exemption from their labors till the second Advent of Christ.
